COULD HEAR IN GERMAN.

A Horse That Was Not Used to Instructions in Any Other Language.

"I bought a horse at an auction not long ago," said an Eighth avenue butcher, according to the New York Press, "and I thought I had got a bargain until I tried him a few days; then I concluded that I had been stuck. The horse was sound, had good sight, but he would not obey commands. He would not stop when the driver said 'Whoa!' nor start when he said 'Git up!' The animal seemed to be deaf, and the first chance I got I sold him to a German baker at a sacrifice.

"Shortly after that I met the baker, and he shook my hand cordially and expressed himself as being very much pleased with the horse I had sold him. I wondered at this and asked if the horse seemed to have any difficulty in hearing. To my surprise, the baker said the horse could hear as well as any horse he ever had.

"'Does he stop when you say "Whoa!" and start when you say "Git up!"?' I asked.

"'Oh, no!' exclaimed the baker, 'I don't say dot! I talks to him in German!'

"That horse must have belonged to a German before he was put up at auction. That is the only way I can account for his actions."

Congressional Pleasantries.

Champ Clark was making a speech in the house a few days ago when Mr. Mann, of Illinois, was called out of the hall on business. He was gone some time, but when he returned the same robust voice was still waking the echoes.

"Is Clark still champing?" asked Mr. Mann, frivolously, of Mr. Mudd, of Maryland, who was just coming out.

"He's champing a little bit," responded Mr. Mudd.—Washington Letter.

THE NAVAL SITUATION.

Loss of Japs' Warships Gives Russia an Advantage.

The Port Arthur Channel Is Free—Rr. Adm. Wittsoeft Can Now Make Frequent Trips to the Sea With His Vessels.

Washington, May 20.—Advices received at the Japanese legation from Tokio confirming the press account of the sinking of the cruiser Yoshino and the battleship Hatsuse, state that after the Hatsuse had been struck by Russian mechanical mines a Russian flotilla of 16 torpedo boats and destroyers appeared but were repulsed by the Japanese cruisers, which saved 300 of the Hatsuse's crew, including Adm. Mashiba and Capt. Nakao.

London, May 20.—The Standard's correspondent at Tien-Tsin cahles that while the Japanese fleet was covering the landing of troops near Kai Chau on Monday, a fierce engagement occurred at Hien Yen Cheng. Two thousand Russians were killed or wounded.

St. Petersburg, May 21.—So changed is the naval situation at Port Arthur by the Japanese disasters, naval officers say, that the officials would not be surprised should Rr. Adm. Wittsoeft, as soon as his "lame ducks" are repaired, make frequent trips to sea, as the late Vice Adm. Makaroff did, in order to harrass the enemy's operations along the western coast of the Liao Tung peninsula. They assert that the latest advices show the channel to Port Arthur is free, despite the Japanese claim to the contrary.

Second thoughts have caused the admiralty officials to discredit the report that the Japanese battleships Shikishima and Fuji have also been destroyed. It is believed that the Russian refugees from Port Dalny who circulated the report on arrival at Che Foo Thursday, probably confounded the Shikishima and Fuji with the Hatsuse and Yoshino. But the official advices do show that the Kasaga, which rammed the Yoshino, was damaged; and the opinion prevails that she must be seriously injured, necessitating her withdrawal from the fleet for a time.

London, May 23.—The correspondent of the Times, on board that paper's steamer Haimun, which is still excluded from the real theater of war, gives a review of the present position of affairs and says:

"Reserves from Japan are being brought to reinforce Gen. Kuroki's lines of communication which are being harrassed by Cossacks.

"Gen. Kuroki appears to be waiting for the landing and co-operation of a third army. It was while holding the Miao Tao straits against torpedo attacks from Port Arthur for the passage of transports with the third army that the Hatsuse met with disaster.

"Realizing that they were effectually isolated, the Port Arthur Russians made their desperation an excuse for sowing the whole gulf of Pe Chi Li with floating blockade mines.

"It is reported that they sent launches and junks to drop mines in the paths of the Japanese warships and transports. The mines drifted to the high seas and to Chinese waters, constituting the gravest danger to neutral shipping.

"Sunday the Haimun passed two floating mines within six miles of Wei Hai Wei. Even as the act of a desperate garrison this must be in violation of the law of nations."

Fusan, Korea, May 23.—From Chinese sources it is rumored that 2,000 Russians have reoccupied Hsiu Yen. Cossacks have been seen near Kaoliman and 13 miles west, none have been observed on the main road to Laio Cheng.

The Russians are scouting on all sides, but are disinclined to fight unless they are in far superior numbers. The recent landing of the Japanese forces at Takushan guarantees the Japan lines of communication.

London, May 23.—The Daily Telegraph Monday morning prints the following dispatch, dated May 19, from its correspondent at the Japanese headquarters, which the dispatch does not locate:

"There has been no change in the position here for the past ten days. Our advanced division is in touch with the enemy near Mao-Tien Pass, where the Liao Yang road traverses the defile. The Russian line extends from Hai Cheng to the west of Mao-Tien Pass."

Report of the Agricultural Department on the Matter.

Washington, May 23.—The department of agriculture has issued a report on "The Nation's Farm Surplus," prepared by George K. Holmes, chief of the division of foreign markets. It gives $4,500,000,000 as a conservative estimate of the value of the farm products of this country not fed to live stock in 1903, on the basis of the census valuation. The value of the exported farm products of this country in 1903 was $378,479,451 and the highest value reached during the last 11 years was $951,628,331 in 1901, due chiefly to cotton. The value of the exported farm products of this country is concentrated mostly in a few principal products. Of it in 1903 cotton constituted 36 per cent., grain and grain products 25 per cent., meat and meat products and live animals 24 per cent., these products equalling more than 85 per cent. of the exports of farm products last year. Adding tobacco, the exports of which were valued at more than $35,000,000, oil cake meal $19,839,279, fruits and nuts more than $18,000,000, and vegetable oils more than $16,000,000, gives a total of eight classes of products, each with an export value of more than $10,000,000, that comprises almost 96 per cent. of the entire farm products of 1903.

With recent years, ending with 1903, the cotton exports have been between three and four billions of pounds and the exported fraction of the crop has between 63 and 71 per cent. for a long series of years. The fraction of the wheat crop exported in the last dozen years has been about 31 to 41 per cent. and the exported wheat and wheat flour have yearly averaged somewhat more than 200,000,000 bushels since 1897, before which period for many years the quantity was usually 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels less. Only a small portion of the corn or maise crop is exported as corn, the highest percentage, 11 per cent., being for 1898. Notwithstanding the small percentage, the exported bushels reach 100,000,000 to 200,000,000. The beef exports weighed 385,000,000 pounds, pork exports 551,000,000, lard exports 490,000,000, oleo oil exports 126,000,000 and tobacco 368,000,000 pounds. Butter and cheese exports have declined decidedly within two or three years. The report says that within a few years the results of an enormous extension of orchard planting will begin to appear and some of these results may be in a much increased fruit surplus for export. The exports of animal matter are losing ground relatively with a corresponding gain by vegetable matter. Taking up the destination of the surplus, the reports says the United Kingdom takes about one-half, Germany about one-sixth and France, the Netherlands, Belgium, Canada and Italy from 3 to 5 per cent. each. China in recent years takes a million dollars' worth annually.

MISSIONARY BISHOPS.

Dr. Scott's election occasioned some surprise, as it was thought that Dr. Campor, of Liberia, would be the successful candidate.

The conference on Saturday elected the eighth bishop in the person of Dr. J. R. Day, chancellor of Syracuse (N. Y.) university.

Democratic Party Would Revise Those Schedules Which Now Shelter Monopolies.

The republican newspapers and congressmen have been busy all the winter trying to make the voters believe that if the democrats are successful they will at once inaugurate free trade by repealing the Dingley bill. In the first place even if the democrats elect their candidate for president and a majority of the house of representatives, the senate would still be republican, even if the democrats carried the legislatures of all the doubtful states that elect senators who will take their seats on March 4, 1905. The republican majority of the senate will probably oppose any tariff reform, but will surely vote down any radical proposition, so that bugbear is disposed of.

In the next place, the democrats, when in power, however much they would like to remit taxation, must raise enough revenue to carry on the government, and more than half the receipts must come from duties and imports. When the supreme court decided that an income tax, as levied by the democrats in 1894, was unconstitutional, that decision shut out all possibility of reducing the tariff below what would raise enough revenue for the government, honestly administered. There are only two other methods of taxation, the internal revenue and direct taxes, according to the population of each state. The latter tax would be unfair, because unequal, and could not, therefore, be considered. To increase the internal revenue taxes is unpopular, and to impose new taxes, such as those collected during the Spanish war, would meet as much opposition from the republican senate as tariff reform would, for their friends, the banks and other corporations, would pay their share, and that would be heresy to the republican leaders. It remains, therefore, to arrange the tariff taxes so that they will burden the taxpayers as little as possible, and yet produce enough revenue.

There are several schedules that would doubtless receive heroic treatment if the democrats had full power. The high protection the trusts now enjoy, and that gives those corporations a monopoly of the American market, would be repealed or greatly modified. Those articles which are sold by the corporations cheaper abroad than here would be the first to be cut down, so that the fear of competition would force the trusts to reduce their prices. The steel trust is the most conspicuous of the trusts that is sheltered by the tariff, and the duty on nails, barbed wire, steel rails, and, perhaps, some other products would be greatly reduced, and even in extreme cases placed upon the free list. Cultivators, plows, axes, table knives, horseshoe nails, sewing machines, harness snaps, meat choppers, borax, gunpowder, raisin seeders, rakes, sad irons, saws, shovels, sugar, and numerous other products are sold for export from 10 to 100 per cent. cheaper than the price paid by our own people. Such inequalities it will be the duty of the democrats, when intrusted with power, to reform.

It has been suggested by one of the most clear-headed democrats in the country that to prevent the disturbance to businsss that might result from general tariff reform, separate bills be passed reducing the duty on products that an exorbitant profit is charged for. That programme would not disturb any business but that of the particular trust affected, nor require other taxes to be imposed to provide for a deficiency in the revenue, for there is no revenue from such articles now, there being comparatively none imported. It must be remembered that the republican leaders have, by allowing the trusts to dictate the tariff schedules, built up an enormous monopoly in many products, and it will require care, time and caution for full reform and to release the people from the tariff tax and high prices that are now so burdensome.

No sensible man supposes that the democrats would wish to disarrange the business of the country; they have as much interest in prosperity as republicans have, and those corporations that are doing a legitimate business need fear nothing, but excresences must be removed, excesses retrenched and abuses remedied. That will be the programme of democratic tariff reform.

Feared to Show Its Hand.

Congress adjourned earlier than ever before in its history and refused to consider such legislation as the regulation of the hours of labor of government employes, the anti-injunction bill, the bill to prohibit the employment of Chinese in competition with American sailors and other matters too numerous to mention. The voters will remember this failure of the republican members of congress to do their duty by their constituents, a failure inspired solely by fear of possible political consequences were the party compelled to "show its books."—Boston Traveler.

——The g. o. p. is so badly frightened over the situation that it is reaching desperately into the chest of the moldy past and trying to drag forth the ensanguined garment.—The Commoner.

——President Roosevelt's administration has cost so much that inquiry as to whether it is worth the price is not unseemly.—N. Y. World.

——The rank and file of the party in all parts of the country want to drop past quarrels and dead issues; they want harmony on a sound platform upon which all democrats can stand and a strong candidate who will draw all democrats and the conservative independent voters; in short, the democrats want to get together for a victory which will turn the government back to tried and safe constitutional principles.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

His Action in Regard to Brigade Post Favors More of Persistence Than of Dignity.

If there could be any doubt as to Mr. Roosevelt's possession of rash proclivities dangerous to the American people, his late dealings with congress in the matter of Dr. Crum's appointment furnish additional absolute and convincing evidence.

Following his habit of threatening extra sessions, the president sought to bully congress into confirming Crum's appointment to the port of Charleston; declaring that he would reconvene the body for no other purpose than to deal with the matter, unless his will should be obeyed during the session just closed.

In declining to confirm Crum's appointment in 1903 the senate stood firmly upon the principal that appointees must be acceptable to local opinion. Upon the same principal was the recent refusal based. Mr. Roosevelt has had abundant opportunity to consult local opinion concerning Crum and the patent fact is that he knew Charleston's antipathy; but was too clever to fling wide the "door of hope," since the applicant had a dark complexion and looked like a vote-getter. The second even more than the first refusal of the senate emphasizes the erratic dogmatism of Mr. Roosevelt. Having gone out of his way to make unfair color discriminations, the president insisted in urging his selection upon the senate, and the senate replied unmistakably. The Roosevelt rashness is seen clearly in attempting to force Crum down the senate's throat after the first refusal; more clearly in the bullying menace of an extra session. To call an extra session of the congress of the United States, at the expense of the taxpayer, for no other purpose than to gratify the spleen or indulge the whim of Mr. Roosevelt—what could be more heedlessly despotic?

Mr. Roosevelt cannot claim that it was a bare threat. He is compelled to admit, says the St. Louis Republic, that he verily intended to follow it out to the bitter end. Nor can he be heard to assert that he was animated by a principle, since he abandoned his course through motives of policy, capitulating to his political advisers. The machine leaders deemed his stated purpose to be unwise, in that it would elevate the Crum matter to the size of a national issue. They argued that such action, however it might appeal to the negro vote, would repel a greater white element. Mr. Roosevelt compromised; the matter was allowed to "go over." Mr. Roosevelt thus stands convicted of the possession of a rash purpose, attributable solely to his temperamental bent; a purpose without judgment, and one which if followed would have resulted in sn outrage upon the nation.

DO A LITTLE THINKING NOW

Could the Country Afford Another Profligate Administration Like That Now in the Saddle?

The Roosevelt administration has acquired the distinction of being the most expensive in our history.

The administration of Polk, including the Mexican war, cost $173,299,366.

The administration of Lincoln, including the civil war, cost $3,347,802,909 in paper money, equivalent to from $1,500,000,000 or $2,000,000,000 in gold.

The first administration of McKinley, including the Spanish and Philippine wars cost $1,906,136,611.

The administration of Roosevelt, in unbroken peace, has cost $2,449,228,545 in gold. That, says the New York World, is nearly four times as much as was spent under the scandalous first administration of Grant and three times the cost of the first administration of Cleveland.

President Roosevelt certainly comes high. Must we really have him?

What the Republicans Fear.

The republican party has never been more narrow, reactionary, selfish and oppressive in its measures than in these last eight years, and it has been only as the restoration of sanity in the opposition has seemed more probable that it has tried to placate the sober public opinion that it has so habitually offended. As that restoration becomes more certain the effect will be more obvious and salutary. The republican leaders are recognizing that they have no permanent hold on the democrats, who between 1892 and 1896 turned defeat into triumph for the republicans. In proportion as these democrats are sure of a candidate, a platform and a party organization that they can trust and respect the danger to republican supremacy is seen to be more imminent and real.—N Y. Times.

Robbing Peter to Pay Paul.

The most ingenuous, if not ingenious, defense yet made of republican extravagance is the remark of the Springfield Union that the republican administration of Theodore Roosevelt has put $883,000,000 more into circulation than Cleveland did." What a delightful indifference to the fact that this vast sum was first removed from circulation by being taken out of the pockets of the taxpayers!—Albany Argus.

A Voice from the South.

The sentiment in favror of John Sharp Williams for the vice presidential nomination seems to be taking well in all parts of the country. Every democratic paper, both north and south, that has commentsd on it, so far as we have seen, has had something favorable to say with respect to it. It would be a graceful thing on the part of the northern and western democrats to work up Williams' boom and put the brilliant southerner on the ticket with Judge Parker.—Savannah (Ga.) News.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

THE JAIL GUARDED.

An Angry Mob at Central City Threatens the Life of a Negro.

Central City, Ky., May 21.—Central City and vicinity are greatly excited over a probable murder committed here about 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. Richard Stobaugh, white, suffered a crushed skull at the hands of Jesse Robertson, a colored boy, 19 years old. Robertson was beating the nose of Joe Stobaugh, a 16-year-old brother of Richard Stobaugh, against the ground, when Richard Stobaugh, walking up to them, said: "Boys, quit this now." Robertson, resenting the interference, threw a rock, which struck Richard Stobaugh between the eyes, crushing his skull. Stobaugh lies unconscious, and attending physicians say his recovery is impossible. Stobaugh was an upright and honorable farmer, residing two miles from Central City. He uttered no threats and made no attempt to hurt Robertson. He has a wife and three children. Robertson ran to his home, half a mile distant, where he was found under the bed, and arrested and landed in jail here. A large number of guards were sworn in to protect him from mob violence. County Judge Sparks, of Greenville, telephoned the officers here to put Robertson's bond at $2,250, which was not furnished. He also said he would send the sheriff and a posse to protect the Negro, or convey him to the jail in Greenville. Citizens are standing about in groups, and mob violence is imminent if Stobaugh dies.

Letter from Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., May 18, 1904.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Yesterday the voters of this city, by a majority of nearly 25,000, sanctioned a proposition known here as "the six million dollar dock loan." Under the authority thus given, bonds for the amount will be issued and turned into cash as speedily as possible, and the money will be used to pay for grading a few streets, and paving a good many in the burnt district, but the major portion will be devoted to reconstructing the docks on an amplified and greatly improved plan. This last improvement is expected to add greatly to Baltimore's ocean traffic, for we have water deep enough from here to Hampton Roads to admit the passing of steamers of deepest draught.

The vote of yesterday decided the last question involved in the general plans for reconstructing and rearranging the burnt district, and now nothing seems to stand in the way to hinder the rapid progress of the work.

Many new buildings are in process of construction, thousands of men are employed in clearing away the vast heaps of bricks, ashes and other debris, and the aspect of the district changes slowly, but surely. The Baltimore and Ohio Railway Co. has laid temporary tracks in a number of the streets, erected elevated platforms with inclined plane driveways so that loads of all sorts may be dumped into the cars, which are then hauled out of the city and the contents used by the Railroad Co. in repairing fills and widening the road bed. Thus was unexpectedly discovered a way to dispose of the greater part of the wreckage produced by the fire, and which seemed for a while to be a great elephant on our hands.

If all turns out as is now expected, twelve months from this time will see the burnt district largely restored, not to its former appearance and value, but greatly improved in all respects. There is much rejoicing today over the vote of yesterday, but there are many of our tax payers who view the action with anxiety. The tax rate in Baltimore is about 2¼ per cent. ($2 25 on the $100) on a valuation as to real estate of almost its worth. This is a burdensome rate in a city where money is only worth about 3 per cent. in safe securities. Meantime the unthinking are rejoicing while others are anxiously waiting to see what comes of this plunge into a heavy indebtedness. J. FRANK GRANT.

Cured His Mother of Rheumatism.

"My mother has been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism," says W. H. Howard, of Husband, Pa. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at all times walking was painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried, in fact, she is never without it now and is at all times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain that she was formerly troubled with." For sale by all Druggists.

Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment, Chamberlain's Pain Balm sets on this same principal. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by all Druggists.

Washington, May 27.—President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, called by appointment at the white house Thursday night and discussed with the president a number of matters affecting labor.

SHOT HIMSELF.

Son of an American Dentist Suicided in a Paris Hotel.

Paris, May 27.—Ivon Evans, known as Viscount d'Oyley, and a son of the American dentist, Dr. John Evans, died Thursday at a private sanitarium as the result of a bullet wound received under mysterious circumstances. The family is prominent here, Dr. John Evans being a nephew of the famous Dr. Thomas Evans, who assisted Empress Eugenie in her flight from Paris after the Franco-Prussian war. Dr. John Evans, who came from Baltimore, received the title of the Marquis d'Oyley from the pope, his older son assuming the title of Count d'Oyley and the younger that of Viscount d'Oyley, by which titles they were generally known.

The younger son, who was 24 years old, recently became enamored of Mme. Pfiucker, a Peruvian, who was sojourning at Vichy. Despite the protests of his family the viscount and the Peruvian visited the Riviera together, remaining at Cannes for some time. Dr. Evans energetically protested against his son's course, and finally cut off his income. This brought the couple back to Paris, where they arrived a week ago, going to the Hotel de Rivoli.

At 5 o'clock on Monday evening last, a shot was heard from the chamber of the viscount and when the proprietor of the hotel reached the chamber he found the viscount on a bed with a wound in his left breast. Mme. Pfiucker, who was in the room, said that the viscount had shot himself and although weak from loss of blood, the wounded man seemed to confirm this statement, saying that the shooting took place while he was handling a weapon.

He was taken to a private sanitarium where an operation was performed. Mme. Pfiucker remained constantly at his bedside.

Viscount d'Oyley became unconscious and lingered until Thursday morning, when he died, after which the police began an investigation which brought out the foregoing facts.

Mme. Pfiucker was interrogated by the police and later was given provisional liberty, but was told to hold herself at the disposal of the authorities. She bears out the theory of suicide by showing two letters which Viscount d'Oyley had addressed to the authorities, stating that it was his intention to commit suicide owing to family difficulties.

The body was conveyed to the morgue for a post-mortem examination.

Washington, May 27.—Cousins in this city of the Evans in Paris said Thursday night that they believed the name of the dead man was Allister Evans instead of Ivon Evans. He was, they said, about 22 years old. Apparently they had heard of his infatuation for some woman, said to be a Peruvian, but did not care to discuss the unfortunate affair.

IN THE JURY'S HANDS.

The Fate of the Four Defendants Now Rests With Them.

Rising Sun, Ind., May 28.—The jury in the Gillespie case retired to consider a verdict at 9:22 Friday morning.

The defendants remained in the courtroom while the jury went down to the grand jury room. After the jury retired Spann was surrounded by a bevy of pretty rosy-cheeked town girls, who made quite a hero of him.

That part of the court house where the jury is deliberating has been roped off for a distance of 200 feet or more, and no one is allowed near.

After being out two and a half hours the jury at noon showed no indications of agreeing, and Judge Downey permitted it to go to its boarding house for dinner in charge of the bailiffs. One juror asked permission to buy stogies, and this was taken as an indication that no agreement was in sight.

BATTLE AT KIN CHOU.

Japanese Loss Estimated at 12,000 Killed.

Stronghold Was Captured and There Is Little Now to Hinder Japanese Advance on Port Arthur, Which Has Begun.

London, May 28.—A dispatch to the Central News from Harbin says the Japanese losses during the fighting at Kin Chou are said to be 12,000 men killed. It is said that these figures have been confirmed by an official dispatch. Fighting, it is added, is still going on in the vicinity of Kin Chou.

Washington, May 28.—The Japanese legation has received the following details of the attack on Kin Chou:

The enemy built several covered trenches around the fort and Nanshan hill and held the place stubbornly under strong defensive works. Nevertheless after several attempts the Japanese finally succeeded in taking the enemy's position by storm and in driving them toward Nan Kue Ling. This severe fight contained for 16 hours. Adm. Togo telegraphs that a report was sent to him by wireless telegraph from the captain commanding the detached squadron consisting of four gunboats and a torpedo flotilla to the effect that the squadron reached Kin Chou bay and, co-operating with the army, hombarded Nanshan hill on May 26 and on witnessing our army occupying the forts on the hill the squadron withdrew from the scene of action. The captain of the gunhoat Shokai was killed and nine others were killed and wounded. The damage to the vessel was insignificant.

Tokio, May 28.—Subsequent reports received here indicate that the storming of Nanshan hill Thursday was a bloody affair. The Japanese first centered their fire on the Russian batteries, in which work they were aided by four gunboats from Kin Chou bay. They succeeded in silencing many of the enemy's guns. The Russians had constructed a series of trenches around the hill on a terrace protected by wire entanglements and other such devices. The Japanese made a series of rushes but they were in vain. The steady rifle and cannon fire of the enemy checked them repeatedly.

Finally at 3 o'clock in the afternoon the Japanese re-formed and stormed the crest of the hill. The Russians held to their position doggedly and it was 7 o'clock in the evening before the Japanese finally gained possession of the ridge.

A Japanese officer of high rank made the following statement to a press correspondent: "The Japanese in attacking Kin Chou and Nanshan hill had to fight against great odds. The Russians were in full command of the strategical advantages afforded by nature and these advantages were augmented by the newest inventions for defense. The forts on Nanshan hill were armed with heavy guns. The Japanese had only field guns, heavy guns being unavailable on account of the difficulties of transportation.

"Our army deserves great credit for having driven the Russians from this stronghold; it was a feat previously considered to have been impossible.

"I fear our losses have been heavy, but we have gained the strongest point barring our way to the investment of Port Arthur."

The Muscovites made several attempts to re-take the hills but after much loss of life, retired finally from the narrowest part of the peninsula, which has been held so long.

St. Petershurg, May 28.—It was rumored late Friday night that Gen. Kuropatkin had telegraphed some details direct to Minister of War Sakharoff, which will not be transmitted to the emperor until Saturday.

The general staff, in view of the foreign news of the capture of Kin Chou, admitted that there was little now to hinder a Japanese advance on Port Arthur itself, and that the actual siege of the Gibraltar of the east had begun in earnest. The staff insisted, however, on the ability of the fortress to hold out.

London, May 28.—The Tokio correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says he learns that the Japanese troops are now within 12 miles of Port Arthur and that the Russians suffered heavier casualties than the Japanese, who have taken guns and other materiel and a few prisoners. He predicts a further surprise, as Japan is now increasing her efforts in all directions.

The Tokio correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says that the Japanese captured many guns at Kin Chou.

Berlin, May 28.—The Militair Wochenblatt estimates that the Russian field forces, inclusive of the Siberian reserves, number 190,000, with 460 guns and that the European reinforcements now mobilizing will bring the total up to 250,000 with 538 guns.

The Japanese field army, inclusive of the reserves, numbers 226,000 men with 780 guns, but the Militair Wochenblatt says it does not know precisely how many have been landed.

THE VATICAN TROUBLE.

French Chamber of Deputies Approve the Course of Loubet.

Paris, May 28.—After an exciting debate in which Premier Combes and Foreign Minister Delcasse set forth the action and purposes of the government towards the vatican, the chamber of deputies Friday, by an overwhelming vote, approved the course of the governmant in recalling M. Nisard, ambassador to the vatican, and rejected all propositions of the extreme element for an immediate dissolution of the relations between church and state. The vote approving the action of the government was 423 to 95.

A resolution proposed by Mr. Ferrette, republican nationalist, inviting the government to negotiate with Pope Pius for a separation of church and state was defeated hy 507 to 18. A motion by M. Allard, socialist, to break off all relations with the vatican and denounce the concordat was defeated by 385 to 145. Premier Combes took the initiative in resisting all efforts to force the government to extreme action and his request that all questions regarding the separation of church and state go over until next January has the effect of postponing separation beyond the present session of parliament. M. Ribot, the minority leader, was among those voting in support of the government.

The debate attracted unusual attention and great crowds were present, including American Ambassador Porter and other members of the diplomatic corps.

THE PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER.

She Was the Guest of Honor at the World's Fair Grounds.

St. Louis, May 28.—Miss Alice Roosevelt, eldest daughter of President Roosevelt, was the guest of honor at the World's fair grounds Friday. She was accompanied by a large party of friends, including Mrs. and Miss Gatlin, whose guest she is during her visit to St. Louis.

Owing to a mistake the daughter of the president, to whom it was intended to extend the courtesies of the World's fair, was forced to pay the regular admission fee.

Instructions had been given to gatekeepers to admit "Miss Roosevelt in an automobile" but as she approached the gate in a phaeton the guard said that it was his duty to demand admission fees.

The King's Stature.

King Edward is not so tall as many people imagine and whenever his majesty is photographed in a group he is invariably put to stand on some small eminence, such as a step, in order that he may compare as well as possible with those about him. Not Going Abroad.

Steamship agents are not happy because the spring bookings for Europe are not so large as last year, and they do not anticipate any great increase in westward passengers because of the St. Louis exposition. BOTH JAWS SHOT AWAY

Still a Successful Business Man.

A man who had both jaws shot away had trouble eating ordinary food but found a food-drink that supplies the nutriment needed. He says:

"I have been an invalid since the siege of Vicksburg, in 1866, where I was wounded by a Minie ball passing through my head and causing the entire loss of my jaws. I was a drummer boy and at the time was leading a skirmish line, carrying a gun. Since that time I have been awarded the medal of honor from the Congress of the United States for gallantry on the field.

"The consequences of my wound were dyspepsia in its most aggravated form and I finally proved ordinary coffee was very hard on my stomach so I tried Postum and got better. Then I tried common coffee again and got worse. I did this several times and finally as Postum helped me every time I continued to use it, and how often I think that if the Government had issued Postum to us in the Army how much better it would have been for the soldier boys than coffee.

"Coffee constipates me and Postum does not; coffee makes me spit up my food, Postum does not; coffee keeps me awake nights, Postum does not. There is no doubt coffee is too much of a stimulant for most people and is the cause of nearly all the constipation.

"This is my experience and you are at liberty to use my name." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

A CLOUD OF WITNESSES

Memorial Day Sermon by "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1904, by J. M. Knox.)

Chicago, Sunday, May 29, 1904.

Text:—"Therefore let us also, seeing we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the Author and Perfecter of our faith, who for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising shame, and hath sat down at the right hand of the throne of God."—Heb. 12:1, 2.

GOD'S spiritual kingdom has its cloud of witnesses to testify concerning the reality of the kingdom, its mission and its ultimate and glorious triumph in Christ Jesus, and this nation which the hand of God has planted has its cloud of witnesses to speak of its divine birth, its sacred mission and its exalted destiny. The writer of the Hebrews has just finished inscribing in the sacred hall of fame the names of the splendid galaxy of heroes of faith, and reaches the climax in our text. He points to the cloud of witnesses as example and inspiration, he exhorts to earnest, faithful living, and holds up the Christ as the perfect pattern and guide. Inspiration from the past, obligation of the present, dependence upon the Divine, are the thoughts with which the message is weighted and freighted. The cloud of witnesses of the spiritual kingdom speak a certain and important message, and the cloud of witnesses of the nation speak for it just as surely and authoritatively. There are the men of past generations whose personality has made its impress upon the nation, whose genius has wrought splendidly in the weaving of the fabric of the national life, whose virtues have been stamped into the character of the nation, and have made it the greatest and most enlightened and most progressive upon the earth. There are the patriots of peace and war, whose sterling qualities, integrity, fidelity, fearless and undaunted spirit in the face of every changing fortune, have provided the solid ballast which was needed to keep the nation upon an even keel and steadily upon its course. And from the ranks of genius and from the great throngs of the common people have come those heroes who, in the hour of the nation's peril, have given their lives that the honor and integrity and union of the nation might be preserved.

"In thousand shaded valleys,
On thousand sunny hills,
In thousand of still alleys,
Beside the rippling rills," the soldier dead sleep. Who can tell the numbers? Their graves dot the landscape, north and south, east and west, and they rise in memory as a cloud of witnesses for the nation.

AND the nation honors these soldier dead, this great cloud of witnesses to the nation's peril and need, to heroic sacrifice and death, to the triumph of righteousness and truth. Ah, how "They merit all our hearts can give;

Our praises and our love they claim;
Long shall their precious names survive,
Held sacred by immortal fame.

"Honor the memory of the dead,
Where'er the sun of Freedom shines;
Wreathe with fair flowers each sleeper's bed,
Cherished and loved, as holy shrines."

But when the nation has honored its defenders with words of tribute and decked the grassy mounds with the fragrant blossoms, is that all that is to be realized from the annual Memorial day? Are we to give and receive nothing in return? Are we to drop the passing tear and the fading flower upon the graves and then go away and forget? Or is there to be an answering message back from the silent dead? Are they not to rise as a mighty cloud of witnesses to bear their testimony to the living present? Paul marshals his valiant hosts before the disciples of Christ in order that he may stir them to more intense, purposeful living. And as the nation's splendid cloud of witnesses rise before us at this Decoration day time, may we not exclaim: "Let us as citizens of this nation, which has been purchased and maintained at the cost of the precious blood of its brave sons, lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, not forgetting to look to God, who plants the nations and marks out their sacred mission"?

EVERY soldier's grave bears silent but eloquent witness to a national unity preserved, to a national sin purged, to a national destiny assured. The familiar saying, "United we stand, divided we fall," is trite but true. And the union which draws together the states of the north and the south, the east and the west, has been purchased at awful price. Bismarck, whose consuming ambition was the welding into one confederacy the German states, said on one occasion, before success crowned his efforts: "To attain this end I would brave all dangers—exile, the scaffold itself! What matter if they hang me, provided the rope by which I am hung binds this new Germany firmly to the Prussian throne!" And it was this spirit which stirred in the breasts of the young manhood of this nation, and their blood was poured out upon the altar of the nation's need, and each drop shed was a link in the chain which bound the nation together. Every soldier's grave therefore speaks of national unity, a unity which emphasizes a common interest and an enlarged destiny. But as we visit the silent cities of the dead, and pause before the rows upon rows of grassy mounds under which rest the bodies of those who poured out their lives for the nation, we ask: Was this great and precious sacrifice made for national unity alone? And as we ponder over the question there comes back the answer: Nay, it was more than national unity, it was a nation being purged from its sin—the sin of slavery and oppression.

BENEATH the soil of the nation rests the sacred dust of her defenders. Their lives have been lived, their mission wrought out, their duty accomplished, and succeeding generations have moved upon the scene of the national life and maintained and confirmed and intensified that which the nation's heroes achieved. Their part is to be the cloud of witnesses for the nation, our part, who live and remember the deeds which have made their memories glorious, is to feel the thrill of inspiration from the past, and to resolutely and bravely assume the obligation of the present. Those who once were the heroic actors upon the scene of life have passed away. How the Memorial day reminds the nation of this. They are no longer the strong arms of the nation, and the loyal hearts, but they have become the spectators of the national drama and are watching the living actors to see the part they play. The figure which Paul gives us in our text is of the Roman arena. About on every side in the seats of the spectators is the cloud of witnesses. In the past years they had run in the arena of life and achieved mightily for truth and righteousness. Now others have taken their places, and they are watching with intense and absorbed interest to see how they in turn will run. It is an inspiring picture. And appropriating the thought for the nation, here is its great cloud of witnesses. How well they have run the race of life. How mightily they have wrought the nation's deliverance and given it the promise of a glorious destiny. And now, having passed up above into the place of the spectator—the cloud of witnesses—they are watching you and me to see how we will run. They are looking to discover how the sacred trust imposed upon us is being discharged.

INSPIRATION comes to us from the past, and the present brings its sacred and precious obligations. What that inspiration is we know as we read and remember the glorious deeds and brave lives which have made this nation what it is to-day. What that obligation is must in large measure be determined by the individual for himself. Our text furnishes a suggestion as to what that obligation in its general bearing is. Lay aside every weight, and the sin that doth so easily beset you, and run with patience the race that is set before you, Paul urges. The athlete contending for the prize is before Paul's vision. He sees him strip for the contest. He sees him lay aside everything that might hinder him in running; yea, and for days and weeks previous to the contest he knows that that runner has kept himself from every indulgence which would rob his muscles of their strength or his nerve and will of their power to hold him steadily and earnestly to his task. And he knows, also, that that runner does not expect to win the race at one bound, but that he is going to patiently keep his feet treading the arena's path until the goal is reached. All these were the obligations which rested upon that contending athlete, and there are obligations resting upon every patriotic son of this great nation. The obligation to lay aside every weight. To put away the sin that so easily besets one and honeycombs the life with weakness and disease. To patiently pursue the course laid out before him until the goal is reached. What are some of the weights which may hinder you and me running well for the nation's good?

FIRST of all, I think we may put selfishness as the greatest weight which the individual and the nation is carrying. From it arise a myriad of other evils, positive in their nature and destructive in their tendencies. It is selfishness which establishes the liquor man in business; it is selfishness which brings monopolistic and industrial oppression; it is selfishness which makes every man a seeker of his own pleasure, a gratifier of his own appetites and lusts, and an indifferent witness to the evil and wrongs and suffering about him. Selfishness stifles true manhood, it destroys loyal, faithful citizenship, it paves the way for corruption and crime. Analyze the great perils and the great evils of the day, and see if they do not have their root in selfishness. It was selfishness (the supreme thought of self and what self wanted) which brought sin into the world, and it is selfishness which keeps sin steadily at its awful task of ruining men's lives and destroying their souls. But to specialize further, there are intemperance, reckless love of ease and pleasure in its myriad forms (and how ingenious are the devices and schemes of the devil to lead the human race astray these days), greed for power and for gold, lowered standards of honesty and morality, a growing irreverence and Godlessness, a loss of public spirit and real patriotism. And it is these which must be laid aside in order that, as individuals and as a nation, we may run well. The cloud of witnesses about the nation is our inspiration to better living and doing. They are our imperative call to duty. Their achievement points to the grand destiny of a great nation. Let us look to God for help in the present, and for guidance through the unknown years of the future.

"God of our country, o'er us
Thy shield of glory spread!
Go Thou before us;
Direct the paths we tread.
Faithful in every duty,
To us Thy grace be given
And Thou, the crowning beauty
Of fadeless wreaths in Heaven."

T. H. INGRAHAM DEAD.

Head of Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Died Suddenly.

A Remarkable Coincidence Is That Former Grand Chief Arthur Died of Apoplexy While Attending a Meeting of Engineers.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 28.—Thomas H. Ingraham, assistant grand engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, dropped dead Friday at the biennial convention of the organization here.

Mr. Ingraham was absorbed in work when he lost consciousness and fell from his chair. He expired almost immediately. His health had not been good for some time.

The body will be taken to Cleveland next Sunday by a committee of the brotherhood.

Mr. Ingraham, who was 69 years old, had been first grand engineer since 1873. He was initiated into the brotherhood in the Fort Wayne division in 1855 and had held several offices in the order. He had been mentioned as a possible candidate for the office of grand chief engineer at the present convention, but it was understood that he had refused to allow his name to be considered. There was no opposition to his re-election as first grand engineer. He was a Knight Templar and a Mason.

Cleveland, O., May 28.—Thomas N. Ingraham, assistant grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who dropped dead in Los Angeles, Friday, at the biennial convention of the organization, lived in this city and was very widely known. He had been connected with the brotherhood for more than 30 years, previous to which he was a locomotive engineer. He is survived by a son and two daughters, his wife having died several years ago.

A remarkable coincidence in connection with Mr. Ingraham's death is the fact that former Grand Chief P. M. Arthur, of the brotherhood, died suddenly of apoplexy while attending a meeting of engineers at Winnipeg last year.

M'DONALD ACQUITTED.

Jury Says He Is Not Guilty of the Murder of Miss Schafer.

Bedford, Ind., May 28.—The jury Friday returned a verdict acquitting James McDonald, who was on trial for the murder of Miss Sarah Schafer.

So quietly was the arrangement to receive the verdict that McDonald's wife was not in the courtroom. After the verdict was announced there were cries of "Good, Jim," and applause. McDonald's attorneys refused to allow him to make a statement. The verdict was reached on the seventh ballot. The first stood nine for acquittal and three for conviction. McDonald was formally discharged by the court and left the courtroom. There was no demonstration.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 28.—The Star Friday night offers a reward of $1,000 for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Miss Sarah Schafer, the Bedford school teacher.

TERRIBLE FLOODS.

Thousands of Head of Stock Were Drowned in Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., May 28.—Division Superintendent Bignell, of the Burlington, who returned Friday from the flooded districts in Greeley and Nance counties, gave details of what is regarded as the worst flood ever known in that territory. Three persons have lost their lives—John Pollard and Edward Bennender were drowned and William Ray killed by lightning. Thousands of head of stock were drowned. One stockman lost 100 fat cattle and 300 hogs. Trains were tied up from washed out tracks and some of the smaller towns have been without mail since Tuesday.

TEN MINERS KILLED.

They Were Suffocated By Gas and Fumes of Sulphur.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 26.—A telegram received at the Susquehanna Coal Co.'s office in this city Wednesday afternoon states that ten miners were suffocated by gas and sulphur fumes from a small locomotive Wednesday afternoon in the workings of the Summit Branch Coal Co. at Williamstown.

The tunnel in which the disaster occurred is one mile in length and is used by the coal company to convey the coal mined in the workings in the Bear valley to the breaker in the Williams valley. About 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon General Inside Foreman Golden and about 50 miners boarded a loaded trip which was about to be hauled from Bear valley to Williamstown. Everything went all right until about half of the journey was made when some of the men attracted the attention of the engineer who at once stopped and it was found that nearly every man in the party on the cars had been overcome by the gas and sulphur which emanated from the stack of the locomotive and floated back over them.

The tunnel had been in constant operation for more than 40 years and this is the first accident of any kind that has happened in it.

BOONE CO., RECORDER

Wednesday, - - June 1, 1904.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

NOTICE.—The Democrats of Boone county are called to meet in Mass Convention at the Court House in Burlington, Ky., Saturday, June 4th, 1904, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of selecting twelve delegates to attend the State Convention at Louisville, June 8th, 1904. A. B. ROUSE, Chmn
Boone Co. Dem. Ex. Com.

THE crop value of 1903 is estimated at $4,500,000,000 by the Department of Agriculture.

THERE are not many Republicans in Texas, but enough to hold two conventions—not very large.

TOM JOHNSON will have no say in the St. Louis convention. He is not holding his own in his party in Ohio.

SINCE local option went into effect in Grant county, Williamstown has got so dry that the Courier is calling for a street sprinkler.

AN Illinois man who cannot speak a word of German married a woman who cannot speak a word of English. What a mix-up their family scraps will be.

IN a recent decision rendered at Versailles, Judge Cantrill held that the testimony of a mother-in-law in a divorce case must be corroborated by other witnesses.

JUNE 15 is Kentucky day at the St. Louis fair, and a very large percent of the State's population is expected to visit the Mound City on that day, on which occasion the price of certain "necessaries of life," to Kentuckians, will advance in price.

THE number of presidential booms that will meet at the St. Louis convention will make that event highly interesting, and the outcome of the convention is as uncertain as it is possible to be on account of the bitter feeling existing on the part of the factions in the Democratic party.

SINCE that New York man found five one thousand dollar bills in an old, moth-eaten coat he purchased at an express auction, old clothes have advanced in price, and every old garment in the country that has a pocket is being closely examined. Investigate your old clothes.

A PROMINENT eastern dealer, in a recent interview, stated: "During the past four years the trade has felt the effect of the decrease of the supply of horses. And now we have great difficulty in obtaining enough to meet demands. A few years ago, when bicycles first became a rage horses could be had almost for the asking. A good team could be purchased for $100 to $150. But then the farmers and stockmen from whom we get our supply saw there was no profit in horse raising and the result is that now there is a scarcity. A good team costs now as much as $500.

The reorganization of the Democratic party machinery in Kentucky is up to the rank and file of the party again, and the voters are afforded an opportunity to enter a protest against the continuance in command of those leaders with whom they are not satisfied. At the county mass meetings next Saturday the "boys in the trenches" should turnout and make their wishes known as to matters political, and demand such changes as they desire made in the machine, and that men be put in command who will look after the party's best interests under all circumstances and contingences.

THE board of directors of the Florence fair held a meeting last Saturday and revised the premium list for the coming exhibition and among other things increased the three largest premiums on horses to $150 each. These premiums will be given on the same rings on which the large premiums have been given for the last several years. And besides increasing other premiums a ring for Herford cattle was added with the same size premiums that are given other cattle. No other county fair in the State hangs up as liberal premiums as does the North Kentucky Agricultural Association, which fact has made it justly popular with exhibitors. If the liberal premiums that the association offer do not stimulate the livestock men of Boone county to make great efforts to bring the stock up to a high grade nothing will.

William Carroll, a young Barren county farmer, went to Louisville and secured employment as a street car conductor. The next day he heard Pendragon was a cinch and that Lida Fieb would win. He bet $5 on Pendragon at 5 to 1 and the $30 on Lida Lieb at 25 to 1. He cashed in $750 and told his boss to get another conductor, that he was going back home to buy a farm.

Prof. Marsh, of Cincinnati, says the summer of 1904 will be hot and sultry, many heat prostrations occurring in all sections of the country. The heat will at times be intense, relieved by severe storms of rain and hail. The storms during the month of June July and August will at times be severe and damaging, but of short duration, followed by hot, sultry fair weather in all sections of the country.

Harmony in the Democratic party is very necessary to success at the polls in November, but it is an element that is sadly missing. Instead of seeking to close up the ranks for the great battle this fall, some of the prominent party leaders have done nothing other than to widen the breach and imperal success. If the leaders of each of the contending factions had manifested a desire to make some concessions for the benefit of the party, six months since, there would now have been some hopes of a victory in November, but with them fighting eachother harder than they fight the opposing party, they have only succeeded in clinching the victory for the Republicans, unless the unexpected happens as it some times does in politics as well as in base ball or horse races.

One of our local traders who is an extensive dealer in lambs, in talking to The Democrat Saturday, said that he could not see any money to the buyer in the present prices that were asked for lambs. Several lots have been sold at six cents and one exceptionally fine lot of eighty-five lambs brought six and one-half cents in Fayette county Friday. On account of the extreme scarcity of green food early lambs are not in as good condition as they might be, and buyers are slow in making contracts, as they fear a slump in the market. The higher prices that wool is commanding this season many think is partly responsible for the firm tone of the lamb market, and the great scarcity of the Western lamb crop is another important factor in keeping up the price of lambs in this section.—Winchester Democrat.

Many are giving thought to this subject who are without ample fields of red clover. Several of our correspondents have lately made incidental allusion to green pasture for pigs. There is no doubt of the value of rape for this purpose. Extensive hog growers in Rush, Montgomery and other counties in this State, and Macon and Edgar counties of Illinois, have testified to the great value of rape pasture for hogs. The State Experiment Stations are also in accord with this experience and recommend rape pasture. Some notable tests were made at the Wisconsin Station in rape with grain. One is shown that where hogs without rape required 437 pounds of corn to make 100 pounds of gain, whereas while on rape much less grain was required for 100 pounds and showed a saving of 45 cents when the hogs were on rape pasture. For such big pastures rape should be sown when all danger of frost is past. It is then ready to pasture in six to eight weeks in seasonable weather. Good corn land is suitable for rape.

BASE BALL.

BOONES vs. HOME CITY,

at Burlington Park,

Monday, June 6th, 1904.

(County Court Day.)

General Admission, 10c.

Game called at 3 p. m.

BASE BALL.

The Home City, Ohio, ball team came over last Saturday afternoon and gave the Boones the battle of their life on their grounds. The Home City manager presented a strong lineup of nice young gentlemen who play ball until the last man is down—they are no quitters. For four innings the Boones tried hard to pull a run across the home plate without success, they being able to touch up the Home City slabman for but one hit in all that time, while Home City had made four single and two two-baggers, out of which they were able to make but five runs. In the fifth inning Bullock got first on balls, and a series of Home City errors let him score. In the sixth inning Home City chalked up two more runs as the result of one single and two doubles, after which they did no more business along that line. When the Boones came in to close the eighth inning they were confronted by a score of 7 to 1 of which they had the small end, while some of their rooters had lost their temper and were inclined to be a little spiteful towards the Home City rooters. Luck, the first man up in this inning fanned. Brady hit to center. Souther and Slayback waited and in turn each went to first on balls. Clutterbuck hit to second where an error allowed him to take first and Brady to score. Hughes hit to second and was thrown out at first. Bullock hit to right field, scored Clutterbuck and finally came home on Hogan's nice single to left field. J. Kirk, the next batter, was out, short to first. This inning netted five runs and considerable encouragement, while old pandemonium had captured the rooters, who, up to this time, had had no opportunity to do any shouting. In the eighth inning the visitors were retired in one, two, three order. In the ninth inning a base on balls and a couple of hits enabled the Boones to tie the score. In the tenth inning the visitors retired as before, and Boones followed their example, except two of them struck out. In the eleventh inning five visitor were up and three of them struck out, and a splendid opportunity for run getting was thus destroyed. Brady was retired at first, and Souther was slaughtered at the same place only a minute later. Slayback hit to center, but the third baseman closed the inning by capturing Clutterbuck's foul fly. In the twelfth inning the first visitor up hit safely to left field but was thrown out by Hogan in an effort to steal second. The next batter struck out. The next two up each made a hit, and again it began to look like runs for the gentlemen across the creek, a hit being all that was needed, but the next batter up could not turn the trick, and was out, second to first. Hughes the first Boone up got his base on an error, stole second and was later thrown out at third. Bullock got first on an error, and Hogan followed suit. Kirk went out, second to first. In the meantime Bullock had reached third. Luck came to the bat with his old time luck, but the indicator recorded two strikes against him, before a ball to his liking came along, when he didn't do a thing but tap it safely into left field and Bullock brought home the winning run. This hit of Luck's and his magnificent throw to the home plate from center field, putting out a runner, made him the hero of the day.

In the fourth inning McBriar, pitcher for Home City, collided with Roy Clutterbuck in running to third, and was hurt considerably. Another pitcher was put in the box and finished the game.

The Y. M. C. A. team of Covington, played two games here last Monday. The feature of the morning game was Hughes' pitching, letting the visitors down with but one hit. The Boones gave him excellent support, their game being errorless. In the afternoon the visitors played better and the Boones a looser game, and as a result the score was much larger than that of the morning game. Following is the scores by innings:

One of the officials of the World's Fair is quoted as saying that if the live stock department would provide a large barn it could be filled with freak live stock. Numerous letters have been received from people who claim to have interesting freaks to exhibit. At least twenty bulls, each with from five to seven legs, have been offered; some have only one horn and some have four. One cow has two udders and the owner writes: "She is a very fine animal and has one udder where it ought to be and another udder on the other side." One might infer from this statement that the second udder is on the cow's back. One woman has written that she has a family of tailless cats and another family of two-tailed cats. "It only remains," said the official, "for some one to come forward with the original cat-o'-nine-tails to make this section of the exhibit complete."

It will effect a cure in one-third the time required by any other treatment.—For sale by all Druggists.

It will not be long before candidates for county offices will be bobbing up in nearly every neighborhood in the county. There will be quite a long string of them when the race is made up if present indications are reliable.

The ladies of the Lutheran church will give a strawberry festival on June the 11th from 5 to 11 p. m. at the residence on the Lexington pike, recently vacated by William Webber.

The jury at Rising Sun, in the Gillespie cases, was discharged last Sunday about noon, having failed to agree, it standing five for conviction and seven for acquittal.

The inspector who was here yesterday found the postoffice in first-class order. It had been two years since the office at this place was inspected the last time.

Lum Rouse, of Limaburg, says he will open up the strawberry market here today with a nice article of the home-grown fruit.

This is a prolonged tobacco season, and plants set Monday have not lost a minute's growth.

Local News.

Grass has been growing nicely, and pastures are fine.

Monday was a splendid day for decorating tobacco fields.

The grand stand at the ball park is highly appreciated by the patrons of the game.

Owen Gaines, an old citizen of Bullittsville neighborhood, is reported as very ill.

It is a great pity that there were not enough tobacco plants to pitch the crop this week.

There has been several days, recently, warm enough to make a good shade very desirable.

The absence of cows and hogs on the streets in Burlington this spring has been no disadvantage to the place.

It seems that D. Davis & son, of Louisville, will get the big end of the Boone county wool crop this season.

Kirtley Rice has invented a screw-driver which will hold a screw while it is being driven. Kirtley is very much of a genius.

The Petersburg ball team defeated the Rough Riders, of Aurora, 2 to 1 last Sunday in a well played and exciting 10 inning game.

If you want to invest in life insurance, see R. W. Clark, agent for the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, the best in the land.

H. J. Casey, of Bullittsville, was in town a few days since, with a large quantity of rhubarb which he distributed among his many friends here.

A couple of our colored citizens were involved in a scrap Monday evening, in which a shot gun figured but without results. The shootist it is said has left town.

C. W. Riddell, executor of his father, the late J. M. Riddell, has advertised all the personal property for sale, publicly, today. The family will leave Williamstown.

This section was visited by a very fine rain, late Sunday afternoon, and those who had tobacco plants large enough were given a splendid opportunity to set them out.

The Boone County Deposit Bank is doing business at the old stand again, but the interior of its counting room is in a demoralized condition and will be for several days.

While it is true that the backward spring has delayed the work of farmers, it may be remarked that the festive cut worm has been working over time.—Williamstown Courier.

The sale of the personal property of the late Lucinda Clore will be next Saturday afternoon, while that of the late Geo. W. Walton will be on the afternoon of the 8th inst.

About all the wool clip in this part of the county was delivered to the buyers, last week. Twenty-three cents was the prevailing price, which was very satisfactory to the sellers.

We have in this office two oranges that were grown by J. S. Balsley several years before his death. Soon after they were plucked he brought them to the RECORDER's office, where they have been carefully preserved.

The people of Bellevue and vicinity were very much interested in the Gillespie trial in Rising Sun, and which came to a close last week. Little else than the trial was thought of or talked about down there during its progress.

If the price of corn goes down this fall to correspond with the abundance of locust bloom this spring, it will be worth about 15 cents a bushel. Would be willing to contract for several hundred bushels at that price this early in the season.

Constable Eddins made his first arrest of cattle, last week, for the violation of the stock law. They were milch cows belonging to Harrison Minor, colored, and it being the first offense the officer returned the fees upon a promise that the cattle would not be allowed out again.

That Throbbing Headache.

Would quickly leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for sick and Nervous Headaches. They make pure blood and build up your health. Only 25 cents, money back if not cured. Sold by all Druggists.

A dangerous and exciting incident occurred on the street here last Sunday morning. Ab Gaines tied a rail to a young horse and left it to graze on the roadside near Sheriff Allphin's, and it got frightened and came up through town at the top of its speed with the rail. It attempted to turn into Union street at Mrs. Cowen's when it got a terrible fall, where it laid until helped up. One of the animal's hocks was hurt considerably. Fortunately the street was clear when the animal made its mad dash into town.

The Glasgow Times says that a man recently traveled through Barren county selling soap. He gave a case of 100 cakes for $8 in cash, and a promise that in a few days he would call and bring you a nice carpet of 40 yards, a nice set of Chinaware or a nice side board, and the women bit as well as some of the men, and he took in lots of $8, and now it is assumed he is hunting more suckers, for suckers will bite. Last summer a man was around selling cases of medicine of various kinds, so you could be your own physician and save doctor's bills. $12 was the price and many were taken in by the stranger, and the service of the doctor is still needed.

The county board of education, composed of the County Superintendent of Schools, County Judge and County Attorney, has before it the samples of books proposed to be furnished under the new school law by two or three firms who are bidding. The county boards have until the 28th inst. to report to the state board, which makes up and adopts a list to be composed of the books a majority of the county boards select. As the adoption is made for five years, the selection of the course of study is a very important matter. The prices at which the bidders propose to furnish books show that the new law will result in a very great saving to patrons of the public schools.

Dr. Crisler, our clever veterinary, has had another experience with Tony Bentler's old white mule. The mule had a relapse, last Thursday, and Tony came post haste and took the veterinary out to his farm to administer to the mule. As soon as the Doctor entered the lot in which it lay, apparently more dead than alive, and when it caught sight of him it struggled to its feet, and giving a defiant bray as much as to say, "not yet, Doc," it wended its way to the remotest corner of the lot and pretended to be eating of grass. The mule is determined that he will not permit the Doctor to use his remains on the dissecting table, and when it lies down to sleep it keeps one eye open, looking out for the veterinary.

The Odd Fellows had quite an interesting district meeting at Bellevue, last Thursday night. There were speeches galore, and splendid music by the Big Bone string band. Harmony Lodge, which meets at Big Bone Springs sent up a delegation of 18 enthusiastic Odd-Fellows, and to them was due, largely, the success of the meeting. At the close of the meeting the brethren were refreshed by a lunch served by Alline lodge, the members of which always delighted to entertain brothers from other lodges. The next district meeting will be held with Harmony lodge some time during the month of July, on which occasion every lodge in the district should be represented by a large delegation.

Col. Graddy, Superintendent of Parks in Petersburg, fired a redhot telephone message into this office, last Thursday afternoon, and the entire office force was demoralized thereby until an investigation could be made. The message was as follows: "What in the d—l does this week's RECORDER mean by saying that our park opening will be on the evening of June 12th, when I wrote you it would be on June 1st, next Wednesday evening?" The Colonel was told to hold up until we could consult his copy, and see what he really did write. The copy being recovered it was read to him over the 'phone, and convicted him of being authority for the publicity of the date, June 12th instead of June 1st." "Did I write it that way?" came the query over the wire. Being assured that he did, he in a doubting tone remarked "I am certain I was not at the distillery that day!" and rang off before we had time to inquire if he kept any contriband goods in his room. In this connection the RECORDER predicts that this evening will be one of the happiest events in Colonel Graddy's life, and the park to be dedicated will be an ornament to the town of Petersburg and a worthy testimonial to the Colonel's public spirit.

Every member of Viola Lodge I. O. O. F. at Hebron, is requested to be present at the meeting next Saturday night, and to bring a basket of provision to assist in setting a lunch. Business of great importance will be before the lodge that evening. JOE BERKLE, N. G.

With the sunset of May 18th ended the life of G. W. Walton, his soul passing from its mortal casket with its beauty to that home above, where Christ's brilliant crown will make heaven an everlasting sunset yet never sets, as Death never enters there. He had been in failing health for six months, and for over two months he was confined to a bed of suffering from a complication of diseases which baffled medical skill, yet he was patient and resigned to God's will, saying He knows what is best and His will be done. He was born in Petersburg, January 13, 1845. He liked all his friends and had no enemies. The estimation in which he was held was manifested by the large gathering of friends at Bullittsburg church on May 20th to pay their last tribute of respect. On October 20th, 1870, he married Miss Mary Elizabeth Randall, the mother of his twin sons, Dr. J. H. Walton, of Home City, Ohio, and Attorney R. Y. Walton, of Chicago, Illinois. On November 17, 1880 he married Miss Lucy Clore, who survives him. In the fall of 1881 he was converted under the preaching of Rev. W. H. Felix, and was baptized by our beloved brother, Dr. J. A. Kirtley. His funeral was preached by Rev. W. S. Taylor, after which the body was placed in the vault and will finally be interred by the side of his loved ones in Bullittsburg cemetery. The flowers placed on the casket as emblems of his wife's love will fade but not so with his life's work. There were few such men as he—true in every relation of life, a kind and loving husband and father, an obliging neighbor, modest and unassuming in disposition; but the best of all he was an humble and sincere christian, proving that beautiful verse of Christ's Sermon on the Mount: "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God." Against the integrity of George Walton no man can utter a truthful word, as his fame therefor was unsullied by even suspicion. No dishonest dollar ever touched the palm of his hand, although he lived in an age in which vice yields more revenue than does virtue. He obeyed the decree of God to our first parents, "man must earn his bread by the sweat of his brow," and thus deserved the largest admiration of his fellowman. He had earnt the Biblical query from Job 14-14, "If man die shall he live again?" Let his family be comforted by the sweet thought that he lives again until Christ will come again without sin unto salvation, for some sweet day by and by you will meet in that beautiful home where there are no good-bys, for God wipes all tears away.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucus surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. OUT OF THE WIND

By ISABEL BOWMAN TUILEY

(Copyrighted, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

PETER'S brows were drawn in a heavy frown and even through his tan the red of anger showed.

"There is not one of you," he was saying, with suppressed vehemence, "who really appreciates a deep, honest, enduring love if it isn't always frothing over with compliments. Words have more weight with a woman than reticent faithfulness. A fellow who fools, but flatters her, will be able to wit with her, when a poor dog of a fellow who only knows how to love her will be turned down with the cold comfort of tolerant friendship."

He was glowering across the ice cold spring, bubbling up from the mossy footrest of the mountain, at a girl who was idly swinging a tin cup by its handle encircling her forefinger. She was dressed all in white and her blond hair curled out from under her white hat in provocative little rings, whilst her soft, appealing blue eyes were gazing at Peter with exasperating innocence and mock admiration.

"How wise you are, Peter!" she said in her fresh, sweet voice. "You really have brought the study of woman to a fine point! Your knowledge of us is profound."

The red deepened on Peter's face. "It should be profound," he growled, "from the amount of time I have wasted in studying you—"

"No time—don't the copybooks tell us?—is wasted that is well employed, and I am all 'sweetness and light.'"

"That's the trouble—you are sweet, diabolically, irresistably sweet"—Kitty's lashes drooped to hide the smile in her eyes—"but you haven't an atom of heart—"

"But"—guilelessly—"if I had been endowed with a heart, would it have been preordained to heat for you, Peter?"

Peter muttered something between his teeth. "Of course, I make no such absurd claim! But if you had a shred of feeling you would not play with a man's heart as though it was a rubber ball, for the sake of seeing how high you can knock it and how often it will rebound."

A shade of guilty expression swept over Kitty's face, but she hastened to protest. But Peter raised a silencing hand.

"I know my own experience. I have proposed to you four times"—"three" was the humble correction across the spring—"But this has been final; I shall accept Dr. Brown's offer to go abroad with him next week to study tuberculosis, and if I am not mean enough to cast you out of my heart I ought to be shot as a weakling!" and he strode down to the lake where a yawl was drawn half up on the shore.

They had rowed across the lake from the opposite shore, where the cottage was her parents had rented for the summer, and had landed to refresh themselves at the spring. And here Peter had again laid his heart and promising future as a physician at her disposal. Heretofore he had accepted refusal with a manly dignity that had kept his pain well hidden and only left visible his clogged determination to succeed. So quiet had he been that Kitty had no realization of his wound and had half doubted its existence, and so to-day, instead of her usual gentle and half alluring refusal, she had pricked him on to his entire loss of self-command and an unwonted declaration of finality. Like most persons who play with fire as an amusement she had let it get beyond her control. As she gazed after him as he went to the boat she saw by the set of his shoulders that his words had not been filled with air. And then, to her amused dismay, she also saw that he was so absorbed in his own thoughts that he had pushed the yawl into the lake and was getting in himself without realizing that he was leaving her behind.

She went halfway down the path and called to him. "Peter!" she said, plaintively, "remember it is five miles walk around the lake and I don't think I am quite equal to it to-day."

Peter awoke with mortified consternation at his unintentional rudeness. "I beg your pardon," he stammered. "I—I wasn't thinking what I was doing."

He held the bow while she stepped in but he did not raise his hand to help her, but when she was safely settled among the cushions in the stern he got in and took up the oars without any further words. He pulled out into the lake, his white duck hat pushed down over his brows, his lips set in a straight line that betokened unalterable resolution, his eyes gazing over her head at the shore they were leaving behind; neither was there any further loitering or dallying with the oars, they were plied with a steady monotony that meant a straight and swift home getting.

Kitty, too, was silent, but her brain was not idle; she was revolving some means by which he would be compelled to be the first to break the silence. Once broken, Kitty hoped that her power might be regained. Yet she knew Peter's resolutions were concrete—lasting—and she wondered what life would be like without Peter.

She was roused from her meditative contemplation of the water by a quickened jerk forward of the boat and, looking up, found that Peter was putting greater power into his stroke.

"There is a cloud coming up behind," he explained briefly, "but I think we can get across before it amounts to anything."

She glanced back over her shoulder. A black and sinister cloud, with a purplish gray edge of hail, was looming above the mountain. It had been noted by the other pleasure-seekers on the lake and boats were scurrying to shore as fast as oar or sail could take them. Half of the lake and the farther shore lay brilliant with sunshine, while the nearer shore was black with shadow. Peter gave full play to his muscle.

As they touched the edge of the sunshine it was blotted out and the wind swept down upon them with a roar of triumph. Hissing, the water rose into a white-capped sea. Up went the stern and then down into a sickening hollow, to be tossed up again in a swirl of foam.

"Get down on the floor!" Peter shouted to make himself heard.

Kitty obeyed, her face white, but her eyes unflinching. The spray cut into their faces, and with every wave swamping seemed inevitable. The cushions were caught and swirled upon the wind like brilliant flowers sporting with the gale. The muscles on Peter's temples and arms stood out like steel lines, his teeth were clenched. He had the girl to save. The thought added suppleness to his wrist, alertness to his eye. He was fighting a duel with an adversary so powerful that wariness and skill could only prevail.

Suddenly, for scarce a second, the waves dropped "to heel" and the wind lulled. The next instant both had increased with greater volume and a great billow writhed up and hung cresting, like a huge destroying hand, over the yawl's stern. The girl caught her breath and, turning, hid her face against Peter's knees. Peter knew the fine test had come. They were nearing the home shore and he saw that if they could escape destruction the same force might hurl them out of danger. To choose the right moment steeled his nerves, his oarsman's skill ready to avert catastrophe. The wave crashed down, but at the crucial moment the yawl leaped forward, only the froth and swirl boiling over the stern, crushing the seat and half filling the boat, but the tremendous rush hurled them forward onto the shore. In a flash Peter was holding out the anchor rope and bracing himself against the receding rush of water.

"Jump!" he shouted to Kitty.

She sprang out, the water up to her knees. Peter dropped the anchor behind a rock and caught her hand. "We must run for it," he said, "here comes the hail."

They rushed breathlessly up the steep incline to the cottage, but the hail caught and beat mercilessly down upon them. Panting, he dashed open the front door and with difficulty slammed it to behind them.

"Thank God!" gasped Peter, still holding her hand, "you are safe."

"Yes, thank God," she panted, "and you, Peter!"

As they stood catching their breath they dripped small lakes of water on the polished floor of the square hall.

"All right," she answered, still speaking with difficulty, "and you go to Dan's room and get a change—he is over at the Rogers', so you will have to help yourself."

Half an hour later, Peter, dry and well groomed, in Dan's clothes, which fitted him well, stood in the hall, gazing at the cheerful fire blazing on the hearth. The tonic effect of the storm on his spirits was fast evaporating and the depression of vanished hope taking firm grip. Anger no longer strengthened his pride, although his resolution was unwavering. Ambition would take the place of love in his life, there would be no more division. He had played the foolish role of unswerving constancy, he would now be altogether a man done with play time; there was no such invigorating tonic for sentiment as hard, live work.

With a suppressed sigh he roused himself as he heard a step on the stair. The wind and hail had not yet exhausted themselves, and beat against the front door. He must perforce face Kitty as the elements cut off all escape.

And he did face Kitty. She was coming down the stairs in another white dress, soft, with lace about the neck and falling in long ruffles from the elbow sleeves. Her hair shone in fresh crinkles from its washing, a brilliant color stained her cheeks, and in her eyes—what had happened to her eyes? Peter caught his breath, puzzled, thrilled. She was not coming with her usual alertness, but slowly, pausing at each step, looking down at him half eagerly, half shyly. And when had he ever seen Kitty shy before?

He turned his gaze back to the fire, his mouth set in pain, overwhelmed with depression.

The steps stopped. "Peter," she said softly.

Peter turned. She was resting against the railing, a little smile touching the corners of her mouth, yet something that was not a smile in her eyes. "Peter," she repeated even more softly, leaning forward and looking directly down into his eyes, "Peter, won't you ask me again?"

And Peter asked her.

He Got Square.

A farmer once came into a Connecticut tavern with eggs to sell. The transaction took place in the bar-room of the establishment. The proprietor agreed to take two dozen, and when the farmer came to count over the contents of his basket, he found that he had 25 eggs. The proprietor wanted the extra egg thrown in for good measure. The farmer didn't see it that way and they argued the matter. At last the proprietor said he'd take the 25 eggs, give the man a drink and call it square. The farmer agreed, and pocketed his money. "Now, what'll you have?" asked the proprietor. The Yankee farmer was ready with his reply. "Sherry and egg," said he.—Argonaut.

THE TARIFF IS TO BLAME.

Prosperity Boasted Of in Republican Platforms Is Disproved by Published Facts.

People with small incomes, farmers, clerks and working men, should husband their resources and savings, for a period of business depression would seem to be impending. The Associated Press sent out a warning on May 10, which was published in the evening newspapers of that date and the morning newspapers of the next day at the head of the financial news. The report after stating the unprecedented collapse of the stock market says:

"The conviction is growing, however, that the cause of the stagnation in the stock market is deeper lying than any temporary factor, and has to do with the gradual emerging of the conditions of general contraction in business and industry in all directions."

Hard times always follow a boom, and business depression means that the man must seek the job and not the job the man. The reduction in wages that commenced last fall will surely be more accentuated as the demand for labor becomes less and the railroads and other great corporations reduce their working force. Indeed, this reduction has already commenced, for the New York Central railroad has ordered all its departments to cut down expenses and the men employed to be reduced to the least number necessary to carry on the business of the road. Other railroads will likewise retrench, and this will cause stagnation in the labor market, for when "the man is seeking the job" he is compelled to accept what the employer offers, when he knows that thousands are after it.

This breakdown of prosperity which the protectionists boast is produced by the protective tariff, is the outcome that has been foretold by the democrats. The goose is slowly dying that laid the golden eggs, and the few have the gold and the many will now have to suffer. But the deception that the republican leaders have practiced on their followers is still being continued, for on the same day that the Associated Press sent out its pessimistic report on the business outlook, the republican state convention of New Jersey in the platform adopted, declared: "That the protective tariff has brought the greatest prosperity to capital and labor." Republican platforms are notoriously unreliable, and the idle men in the protected industries, in the silk mills, the woolen mills, and other factories running on short time in New Jersey, the 60,000 idle men in the textile field in Philadelphia alone, are facts that disprove the reliability of the New Jersey platform, besides the "general contraction in business" that the Associated Press announces.

Prosperity has vanished from so many industries, and so many homes are restricting their expenses, that there must be something wrong with the system that the republicans are boasting of.

The New Jersey platform, however, told the truth about the prosperity the tariff has brought to capital, if it had been frank enough to acknowledge that "capital" meant the trusts. As long as the trusts and combines can keep up the price of what they produce, they will still have a measure of prosperity, but with falling wages in most other work, even the trusts will suffer, for the capacity of the people to consume is measured by the amount of money they earn. In curtailing expenses, luxuries and then clothes are the first items cut off and the present depressed condition of the textile market tells the tale. In the Journal of Commerce, May 11, the headlines of the article on the dry goods trade says:

"Buyers Still Cautious. "Not Disposed to Commit Themselves to Liberal Purchases." "A Waiting Period on All Lines—General Belief That Were Prices to Be Announced on Lower Basis Buying Would Be Sufficient to Cause Speedy Reaction—Many Lines Selling at or Below Cost To-Day." The same newspaper on the same day published a dispatch from Fall River, Mass., which says: "The plan of running the mills four days a week which has been tried for the past five weeks has proved disappointing. Some of the agents at least strongly favored a reduction in wages, even though it was pretty well understood that a general strike would follow such a move. Other manufacturers favor a shutdown without a reduction. There is general apprehension over the situation." A number of other dispatches in the same issue of the Journal of Commerce indicate similar conditions at other places. Resolutions by republican conventions, that prosperity reigns supreme, and the protective tariff is the cause of it is mere bluff, when the facts show that business is depressed and growing more so.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

——When the irrigation bill was pending in congress it was promised that the desert could be made to blossom as the rose for about five dollars an acre. Later the country was informed that this was the cost to private water companies, which had taken all the easy jobs, and that government irrigation would cost ten dollars an acre. The statement just made by the interior department is that $27,000,000 will suffice to irrigate 1,000,000 acres.—Philadelphia Record.

FARMERS ASK QUESTIONS.

Mr. Babcock and Other Republican Congressmen Bothered with Awkward Interrogatories.

Giving the farmers taffy before election and promising them legislation that never was intended to materialize, is a favorite game of the republican leaders. It is therefore not an unexpected pleasure to read the first installment of guff and bluff given out by Hon. Joseph Weeks Babcock, chairman of the republican congressional committee, in which he brings in the "intelligent farmer" as the standby of the G. O. P. Mr. Babcock says he has implicit faith that the "intelligent farmers" will vote the republican ticket, for they have telephones in their houses and read the daily newspapers. That Mr. Babcock really believes the "intelligent farmer" will support the party in league with the trusts and corporations is doubtful, for he is evidently much exercised, though he says he is not worrying over the outlook for a republican majority in the next congress. Yet Mr. Babcock evidently is alarmed about what the "intelligent farmer" will do, for he also says: "It keeps a member of congress busy all the time to answer the questions they ask him about public affairs." May be, when he gave out that interview Mr. Babcock was thinking of the uncomfortable questions that many of his own constituents have been asking him, about the charges of his too close connection with the railroad corporations, the padding the mails in the interest of those institutions and his failure to push his bill to reform the tariff schedule that shelters the steel trust, though he declared the tariff must be reformed. Or possibly he was thinking of the charges made by Secretary Bristow that over 100 republican congressmen, including himself, had been mixed up with the post office grafters, if not in league with them.

The "intelligent farmer" who reads the daily newspapers could hardly have missed knowing about those charges and a number of other scandals that Mr. Babcock and his party are responsible for, and it is hardly any wonder that it has kept those members of congress busy, as it has Mr. Babcock—for he tells us so—explaining and twisting and turning, to answer the questions, of not only the "intelligent farmer," but of others of his, and their, constituents.

No more favorable news for the democrats has been published than this acknowledged interest the farmers are taking in public affairs. No doubt they are inquiring about republican extravagance, about the enormous increase in price of what they buy and the cause for it. They doubtless want to know why the packers combine is paying less for cattle and hogs and yet the price of meat to the consumer is relatively higher than it was. There is no end to the questions that intelligent farmers will ask candidates for congress that will puzzle the republicans to evade, let alone to answer. That is just what the democrats want, full and free discussion and intelligent inquiry by all voters.

EXIT COMMISSIONER WARE.

Will Leave the Pension Office to Afford Mr. Roosevelt a Chance to Square Himself.

No explanation is made at Washington of the report that Commissioner Ware, of the pension office, is soon to retire from office, but anyone who has given attention to public affairs will understand that the move is connected in some way with his offhand way of granting service pensions to civil war veterans.

This service pension order has met with more general and more scathing condemnation than any other act of Mr. Roosevelt's administration. Nearly every newspaper in the United States has denounced it not only as a dangerous usurpation of power, but as a piece of electioneering demagogy, and the climax came with Bourke Cochran's great speech, so eloquent, so logical, so sincere and so alarming that it practically silenced all opposition.

The probability is that from the time that speech was delivered the administration determined to withdraw its service pension order. The first intimation given of this was the admission of the government supporters, in a debate in the house of representatives that both of the service pensions which had been ordered in this way, and which had been ostentatiously paraded as the justification of Commissioner Ware's order, never really became effective, but were canceled and withdrawn soon after they were made.

The rumored retirement of Commissioner Ware is the next intimation of the proposed backdown, and it is not difficult to continue the story into the future. The new commissioner will happen to be a man who cannot approve of the service pension order, and at whose request it will in due time be canceled and withdrawn.

The Chicago Chronicle says that in this episode we see how people in power can take the back track and unload their responsibility on others so smoothly as not even to attract attention, though a larger turn-basin may be required for such a monumental blunder as this service pension order than in the case of smaller mistakes.

Waste That Must Be Stopped.

The growth in national expenses seems to be increasing not only in arithmetical, but threatens soon to reach geometrical progression. As compared with former records, the present administration has exceeded the previous one by more than $500,000,000, being greater than that of Lincoln, including cost of the civil war, when computed on a gold basis. The time will come when the people will awake to a full comprehension of their duty in putting a stop to such extravagance, but if deferred too long it will be too late.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Doubtful Compliment.

Poultney Bigelow, who has accepted the chair of foreign relations at Boston university, has completed an address before the Twentieth Century club of Chicago. A young man congratulated Mr. Bigelow rather awkwardly on this address, and the learned traveler replied:

"That is a doubtful compliment. It reminds me of a remark that a friend of the bride's made at a New Hampshire wedding.

"This friend, an observant chap, watched the groom closely during the ceremony, and at the end bore down on the happy man, shook him warmly by the hand, and said:

"'Bill, ye done good. I had an idee ye would be skittish while ye was bein' tied up, but, begosh, ye looked as bold as a sheep.'"—Washington Post.

A Happy Mother.

Maple Hill, Ia., May 30.—A very remarkable case occurred here recently. The people here have never seen anything like it and it may interest many others.

From his infancy, Verne, the little five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Barfoot, of this place, has been sickly. His mother consulted a doctor, but he did not begin to improve till some one suggested that she try a remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills. From unmistakable symptoms she had always believed that his Kidneys were the first cause of all the trouble, so she bought a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and began giving little Verne two pills a day. In two or three days she noticed an improvement and she kept on till he had used about two boxes when to her great joy, he was all right. Everybody remarks how much better Verne looks and Mrs. Barfoot always explains: "Dodd's Kidney Pills saved his life."

Professional Ride.

"Why, your flying machine won't even leave the ground!" said the man who had been induced to observe the experiment.

"Well," answered the inventor, after some reflection, "my machine may not be as much of a traveler as some of the others, but it's a heap safer."—Washington Star.

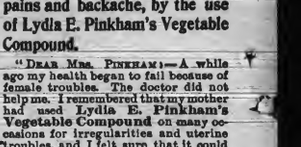
Another club woman, Mrs. Haule, of Edgerton, Wis., tells how she was cured of irregularities and uterine trouble, terrible pains and backache, by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—A while ago my health began to fail because of female troubles. The doctor did not help me. I remembered that my mother had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on many occasions for irregularities and uterine troubles, and I felt sure that it could not harm me at any rate to give it a trial.

"I was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better, the terrible pains in the back and side were beginning to cease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly as serious a time as heretofore, so I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. I really have never felt better in my life, have not had a sick headache since, and weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did, so I unhesitatingly recommend your medicine."—MRS. THE COTTON BOLL WEEVIL.

Scientists Have Made Some Progress in Their Efforts to Exterminate the Pest.

The United States census report recently issued gives some startling figures as to the great damage done to the cotton industry in the last year through the ravages of the boll weevil. The report gives the total crop as 10,045,614 bales of a 500-pound standard. This is about 800,000 bales less than produced last year. The total loss to the state of Texas up to date is about $125,000,000.

During the summer of 1894 planters along the Rio Grande and southwestern Texas discovered in their cotton fields the presence of a small, grayish, long-nosed armor-clad beetle, about the size of a common house fly. The states and the planters were at a loss to devise effective means to drive away the invader.

The department of agriculture came to the assistance of the planters, and sent special field agents from the division of entomology to make careful investigations of this enemy and invader and to devise plans for its extermination. Since then these scientists have waged relentless warfare upon the weevil, and made most exhaustive practical experiments to wipe out the insect, and have been partly successful. Recognizing the seriousness of this pest, congress has just appropriated $250,000 to further aid in exterminating the weevil.

The adult weevil averages about one-fourth of an inch in length, and has a beak about half the length of the body. It is of a grayish or reddish brown color. The insect exists in four stages—eggs, larvae, pupa and adult. All the stages except the last occur inside of the cotton square or boll. The egg is deposited by the female weevil in a cavity formed by eating into the fruit of the plant. It hatches, under normal conditions, in two or three days, and the grub immediately begins to feed.

In from seven to twelve days the larva or grub passes into the pupa, or quiet stage, corresponding to the cocoon of the silkworm. This stage lasts from three to five days. Then the adult weevil issues, and in about seven days begins the production of another generation. Climatic conditions cause considerable variation, but on an average it requires from two to three weeks for a weevil to develop from the egg to the adult.

IN THUNDERSTORM SEASON

What Spots to Avoid in Order to Be Reasonably Safe from the Effects of Lightning.

The Philadelphia Ledger gives this excellent advice: "Now that the season of thunderstorms is approaching people should understand what spots to avoid in order to reduce to the minimum the chances of being struck by lightning. Out-of-doors, trees should be avoided, and if from the rapidity with which the explosion follows the flash it is evident that electric clouds are near at hand, a recumbent posture is the safest. It is seldom dangerous to take shelter under sheds, carts or low buildings, or under the arch of a bridge, and a distance of 20 or 30 feet from tall trees or houses is an eligible situation, for should a discharge take place these elevated bodies are most likely to receive it.

"It is well also to avoid water, for it is a good conductor, and the height of a human being near the stream may determine the direction of a discharge. Within doors we are tolerably safe in the middle of a carpeted room, or when standing on a thick hearth rug. The chimney should be avoided on account of the conducting power of the carbon deposited in it, and gilt moldings or bell wires are sources of risk. In bed we are tolerably safe, since blankets and feathers are bad conductors. It is injudicious to take refuge in a cellar, because the discharge is often from the earth to a cloud, and the buildings frequently sustain the greatest injury in their basements."

Agriculture in the Schools.

The idea of teaching agriculture in primary schools is growing steadily, despite well-intentioned but really groundless opposition. The greatest stumbling block has been ignorance of teachers concerning scientific agriculture. There is now little excuse for any teacher remaining ignorant of a few of the general principles of crop production. Anyone if he makes up his mind can fit himself for teaching how to prepare soil for planting and cultivate a few of our leading farm crops. Agricultural papers, agricultural books, nature study, literature, are within the reach of every teacher. Of course consolidation of country schools will render the teaching of agriculture comparatively easy, but until this is accomplished much can be done.—American Agriculturist.

INCREASING THE PROFITS.

It Can Be Done by Giving the Hogs More Range and Free Access to Pastures.

A very common practice, and yet a very injurious practice, among farmers is to confine their swine in close pens, not allowing them free range and a change of atmosphere. The original hog had the freedom of the woods, where he could dig for roots and obtain other things possessing medicinal qualities; consequently he was much healthier, and less liable to cholera and other contagious diseases. All animals like a change of diet. This they can get when allowed a large pasture to roam over, as there will be found there so many kinds of weeds that they will relish, which will greatly improve the appetite. Notice the difference between two bunches of hogs; one which has been closely confined, the other which has had plenty of range and change of sleeping apartments. You will readily notice the difference in appearance, health, growth, etc. Another very poor practice is to allow hogs to sleep on piles of manure, or around old straw stacks, and when allowed to do this, ere long the hogs will show the effects of such a poor practice—as some will show signs of poor health and also stunted condition from over heating and over laying. Grain being more costly than the grasses it is therefore a point in economy to gain as many pounds as possible by the use of grass. It has been well said that "variety is the spice of life." This is as true of the life of animals as of man. Don't feed those pigs so much grain, give them such food as will be conducive of more growth and less flesh. Prepare a pasture especially adapted to the needs and wants of the pigs, such as clover, peas, rape, etc., and you will have stronger and better hogs. Hogs weighing about 200 pounds, well fattened, are bringing the top of the market now. The large coarse hog is no longer in such demand; this works a great saving to the producers, as it is possible to make market toppers in six to nine months, so that it is not necessary to winter anything but the brood sows; spring pigs being marketed in the fall. In this way, too, they can be matured at much less cost than those that have to be wintered before fattening. Think it a better plan to give even those hogs that are on full feed a chance to roam some, as they will not to do this if water is handy to the feed pen.—Agricultural Epitomist.

ENSILAGE FOR DAIRY COWS.

One Cubic Foot of Silo Space Should Be Provided for Each Animal Per Day.

There is no longer any question about the value of the silo and silage for dairy cows. The testimony in behalf of this is unanimous, and very conclusive where silage is fed to the cows. Here are some practical references to the construction of the silo and quantity of the silage, by Prof. Thomas F. Hunt, of the Ohio State University and Agricultural College:

"One cubic foot of silo space should be provided for each cow per day. To obtain the size of silo required multiply the number of cows to be fed by the number of days it is desired to feed ensilage and the result will be the cubic contents of the silo required. Silos should never be less than 20 feet deep, and 30 feet is very much better. The ensilage should always be fed off the top, keeping not more than eight square feet of surface for each cow fed, and five square feet is better. It is sometimes more economical to get this relationship by increasing the size of the herd than by reducing the size of the silo. The amount of weight by ensilage that a silo will hold depends upon several factors, as the size and shape of silo and the ripeness of the corn used, but in general the number of pounds of ensilage a silo will hold can be determined by multiplying the cubic contents of the silo by 30. A ton of ensilage will thus fill 66 cubic feet. The number of tons of ensilage which can be grown per acre is a matter upon which there is much difference of opinion. My experience leads me to believe that 12 tons of ensilage per acre is a fair average yield of properly ripened ensilage."

INVENTED PRAIRIE CRAFT.

History of the Man Who Conceived the Idea of Running Wagons with Sails.

A man from Texas was talking with a New Yorker, when a wagon with the name Gail Borden painted on it passed by. The name is retained by Gail Borden's successors, though Gail Borden himself is dead, says the Sun.

"I do not know when Borden came to New York," said the Texan, "but the sight of his name recalls a bit of interesting history which, I venture to say, few, if any, New Yorkers ever heard.

"Gail and his brother Thomas used to be editors in Texas. They were the founders of the Texas Telegraph, which had a hot history. It was the first newspaper published in Texas. It was printed in San Felipe in 1835.

"On the approach of the Mexican army, President Burnet and his cabinet fled to Harrisburg, and were followed by the Bordens with their press and type, and they were there working off a form of the paper when the advance of Santa Anna's army appeared at that place.

"They were forced to abandon the work and flee for their lives. The type and press were thrown into the bayou, and the printing office destroyed.

"After the victory at San Jacinto the publication of the paper was renewed at Columbia, but was, with the government, transferred to the new town of Houston, and soon afterward was sold. Thomas was older than his brother Gail, and, besides being a partner in the paper, was also engaged in surveying and selling lots in Galveston.

"Gail invented the steam gauge and also a vehicle called a prairie schooner. This was much the same as an ordinary covered wagon, but was made to run by sails, and it would run, but too much so.

"It was not easily controlled, and it would do unexpected things, and was dangerous. It would run into the gulf or up against things, and the model was finally wrecked in a drift on Galveston island, and the project abandoned. Borden intended these vehicles to be used on the great level dry plains; hence the name he gave them.

"This idea of his afterward caused the great trains of covered wagons in the west to be called prairie schooners.

"Gail Borden filled a number of civil offices, and was a member of the convention at San Felipe n 1833. He was also the agent of the Galveston City Gas company, and the first collector of the port of Galveston.

"After annexaton, he distinguished himself as an inventor, first securing a valuable patent for preserving meat in a form which he called meat biscuit. He also invented and secured a patent for a process of condensed milk which is a staple article of commerce.

"He made the first condensed milk where the town of Glidden is now, in Colorado county, but then called Borden. As late as 1867 his sign was still to be seen there.

"At that time a post office and Borden's place were about all there was there in the way of business. The county of Borden, at the foot of the plains, was named for him, as was also the county seat, which is Gail."

ABUSE OF HOSPITALITY.

Tale of the Orient Which Contains a Suggestion for Long-Suffering Hosts.

Col. William C. Greene, one of the greatest ranchers in the world, spoke on hospitality at a recent dinner in New York, reports the Tribune.

"Hospitality is an excellent thing," said Col. Greene, "but it is open to abuse. Let me tell you how the oriental hospitality of Nasr Eddin, a great man of the east, was abused many years ago.

"From a distant village a poor man came to Nasr Eddin and made him a present of a hare. Nasr Eddin was delighted with the gift. The poor man, on the strength of it, stayed with him a month.

"A short time after, a stranger came with his entire family to Nasr Eddin's house.

"'We,' the stranger explained, 'are friends of the man who gave you the hare.'

"Nasr Eddin welcomed the visitors warmly, and they stayed two weeks.

"They had not been gone long when another family of strangers arrived.

"'Whom have I the honor to receive?' said Nasr Eddin.

"'Friends of the friends of the man who gave you the hare,' was the reply.

"Nasr Eddin looked grave. He did not invite these guests indoors. He served them on the lawn with cups of some clear fluid. Tasting this fluid, they made wry faces, for it was nothing but warm water.

"'What is this you offer us, O Nasr Eddin?' the strangers said, reproachfully.

"The host replied:

"'Oh, that is the sauce of the sauce of the hare.'"

Formic Acid of Ants.

Henri de Parville, in an article in the Journal des Debats, calls attention to the experiments of a Dr. Clement, of Lyons, who has been investigating the alleged properties of formic acid, a secretion of ants. Eight or ten drops of the acid taken three or four times a day had a marked effect in stimulating muscular activity which, according to Dr. Clement, might be continued for a long time without resultant fatigue. "That tired feeling" also disappears under the influence of the acid. It is not stated whether the after effects of the acid are good, bad or negative.—Medical Journal.

He Had a Bad Cough, But That, He Said, Was All He Raised.

Some amusing incidents occur at the free dispensary of the different hospitals in town, often because the poor patients fail to understand the terms used by the doctors. The following incident occurred at the University hospital the other day, and illustrates the point in question, relates the Philadelphia Telegraph.

A man came in who the doctor thought was suffering from beginning pneumonia, so after getting his name and address and other necessary data, he asked the patient if he had a chill.

"Yes, a very bad chill yesterday," came the answer.

"Do you cough much?" asked the doctor.

"Yes, some," replied the patient, with a practical illustration.

"Do you raise anything?" was the next question.

DOCTOR ADVOCATED OPERATION—PE-RU-NA MADE KNIFE UNNECESSARY.

MRS. EVA BARTHO, 733 East 19th St., New York City, N. Y., writes: "I suffered for three years with leucorrhea and ulceration of the womb. The doctor advocated an operation which I dreaded very much, and strongly objected to go under it. Now I am a changed woman. Peruna cured me; it took nine bottles, but I felt so much improved I kept taking it, as I dreaded an operation so much. I am to-day in perfect health and have not felt so well for fifteen years."—Mrs. Eva Bartho.

Mrs. Senator Roach, of Larimore, N. Dak.; Mrs. Senator Warren, of Cheyenne, Wyo.; Belva Lockwood and Mrs. General Longstreet, of Washington, D. C., are among the prominent ladies who indorse Peruna.

Miss Helen Rolof, Kaukauna, Wis., writes:

"Several times during the past two years or more my system has been greatly in need of a tonic, and at those times Peruna has been of great help in building up the system, restoring my appetite and securing restful sleep."—Helen Rolof.

Miss Muriel Armitage, 36 Greenwood Ave., Detroit, Mich., District Organizer of the Royal Templars of Temperance, writes as follows:

"I suffered for five years with uterine irregularities, which brought on hysteria and made me a physical wreck. I tried doctors from the different schools of medicine, but without any perceptible change in my condition. In my despair I called on an old nurse, who advised me to try Peruna, and promised good results if I would persist and take it regularly. I kept this up for six months, and steadily gained strength and health, and when I had used fifteen bottles I considered myself entirely cured. I am a grateful, happy woman to-day."—Miss Muriel Armitage.

Miss Lucy M. Riley, 33 Davenport St., Cleveland, Ohio, writes:

"I wish to add my indorsement to thousands of other women who have been cured through the use of Peruna. I suffered for five years with severe backache, and when weary or worried in the least I had prolonged headache. I am now in perfect health, enjoy life and have neither an ache or pain, thanks to Peruna."—Lucy M. Riley.

It is no longer a question as to whether Peruna can be relied on to cure all such cases. During the many years in which Peruna has been put to test in all forms and stages of acute and chronic catarrh no one year has put this remedy to greater test than the past year.

If all the women who are suffering with any form of female weakness would write to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, and give him a complete description of their symptoms and the peculiarities of their troubles, he will immediately reply with complete directions for treatment, free of charge.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

MRS. EVA BARTHO.

THE ROSEBUD INDIAN RESERVATION.

882,000 Acres of Fertile and Well Watered Lands Open to Settlement.

Some two years ago the Chicago & North-Western R'y built their Verdigre & Bonesteel line to the eastern border of the Rosebud Indian Reservation, thus securing the only direct line from Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Sioux City, Omaha and other points in the west to the fertile region which is now to be thrown open to settlement under the United States Homestead laws.

Under President Roosevelt's proclamation United States Registry Land Offices are to be opened July 5th at Yankton, Fairfax and Bonesteel, S. D., for the registration of applicants for these lands. The registration books will remain open until July 23d, and commencing July 28th, drawings will take place, to determine the order in which the applicants will be permitted to make final entry and settlement. The final entry begins at Bonesteel, August 8th. No one is permitted to register or make entry to land by mail, but must be personally present at one of the three points named for registration and at Bonesteel for final entry.

The lands are well watered by the Missouri, Niobrara and White rivers and are remarkably fertile, situated in the midst of the great corn belt of the Missouri Valley, where similar land is worth from $20 to $50 an acre. With an altitude of about 2,200 feet, they are in a region which cannot be excelled for healthfulness.

A heavy influx of people is looked for at these points of registration, and everything possible is being done by the North-Western Line to spread broadcast all information that is of interest to applicants for these lands.

Complete maps and folders have been issued and are being distributed free on application to the representatives of the Passenger Department.

To dock horse's tails is now a criminal offense in the State of Michigan. All persons owning docked horses were required to register them in the office of the County Clerk before the 6th day of December last. It is also unlawful to bring docked horses into the State unless the same be so registered. A violation of the law is punished by a fine of not less than fifty and not more than $150, and in default of payment, by imprisonment in the county jail not less than ninety days.

There are several breeds of draft horses which are both valuable and profitable to grow. The Shire, Norman, the noted Scotch breed, Percherons more numerous in the State of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Iowa, Wisconsin, Kansas, and Minnesota than the others. They are not all confined however to these States in breeding, but more widely distributed than any other draft breed in the United States. They have been used to quite an extent on the ranges, and the range bred grade Percheron is found to be a good general farm horse; in fact, some of them are good enough for city use as high class drafters. The Percheron is admirably adapted to the conditions existing in the central states and is doing much to improve the horse stock of that section. Various types are found within the breed, but of whichever type he is, the Percheron in order to be popular, must be large; he then crosses well on the native farm mares for the production of good farm horses and high class heavy horses for the city trade.

Few people have any idea of the vast areas given over wholly to the cultivation of opium. The consumption and the manufacture of this drug, far from being on the decline, are on the increase to an almost incredible extent. The greed for gold is far more predominant in the human makeup than is the philanthropic spirit which seeks to elevate mankind, though its purse may suffer in so doing. England reaps more benefit from the cultivation of opium than all other nations put together, says the Scientific American.

In the district of Bengal alone there are nearly 1,000,000 acres devoted exclusively to the cultivation of the poppy. Its cultivation is legalized and in every way encouraged by the British government, which has an absolute monopoly of this industry in India. The two principal districts are presided over by and under the direct control of English officials residing at Patna and Ghazipur. The Bahar agency embraces an opium field of about 500,000 acres and that of Benares is a close second with 473,500 acres.

There is a fierce dispute going on just now as to the relative merits or demerits of opium. Many eminent men in the scientific world openly declare that opium is a blessing. The government experts in the country where it grows go so far as to say that opium is a blessing instead of being a curse to the natives. However, the vast majority of mankind will long be of the undivided opinion that opium is the most all-crushing curse that afflicts man. The enthusiasts, or rather extremists, of the International Opium Society picture the condition of India under the ban of opium in the most dreadful manner possible. According to one of these men, all of the 600,000,000 human beings in Asia are exposed to the evils of the opium trade as legalized by the British government.

During the thunder storm, last Sunday, the lightning struck Mrs. Amanda Rouse's house at Hebron, in two places. The only damage done was the splitting of a few weather-boarding on each end of the building. The house is occupied by J. C. Hankins with whom Geo. Utz lives, and who was shocked considerably. It is thought that a single bolt of lightning did the work.

Startling Evidence.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel disorders Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggist.

Triumphs of Modern Surgery.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment, Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principal. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by all Druggists.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12 50 which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White of Conchella, Cal. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy he used as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say under oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails. Sold by all Druggists.

Uncle Noah Clore, of Florence, was among the early arrivals in town Monday morning. Uncle Noah is one of the few pioneer citizens of this county whose birth antedates 1820. Although he is not in robust health he has a vivid recollection of his boyhood, at which time the county was but sparsely settled, and game of all kinds was found in the almost limitless forests. The scenes incident to his boyhood would, at this day, be considered romantic in the extreme, but at that time nothing was thought of them, and they passed as matters of no consequence. Uncle Noah is and has been one of the county's best citizens.

Startling Evidence.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all Druggist.

Mrs. Clinton Weaver, who submitted to a delicate surgical operation at her home, last Friday, is improving as rapidly as could be expected.

Mr. Davis, of Scott county, who was a guest of his kinsmen, Mr. Jackson, returned home yesterday.

Six Persons Dead and About a Dozen Injured.

All Those Killed Were in the Smoking Compartment of the Passenger Car, and Death Came Instantly.

Y.; Clarence Ketcham, Lorain, O.; Ralph Williams (colored), Indianapolis, Ind.; unidentified man, in his pockets was a keyring with the name George Judd Taylor, Ailiance, O.

The accident occurred at a point quite distant from any immediate means of communication and assistance was sent from Norwalk, where every physician and nurse in the city was called into service and hurried to the place of the accident on a special car. When the injured had been attended to they were placed on a car and brought to this city.

Those who were killed were in the smoking compartment of the passenger car and death came instantly, the bodies showing no sign of life when the rescuers went to work after they had recovered from the first shock of the accident.

The injuries of several of those hurt are so serious that they may result fatally.

Just why the accident occurred is not known. Superintendent Strelar, of the Fremont division of the road, arrived shortly after the accident and will make a thorough investigation.

The cars were the largest type of suburban electric cars and they were smashed to pieces, the freight car being broken in two. Both were running at high speed when the collision occurred.

ON MISSOURI PACIFIC.

Several People Killed and Injured Near Kansas City.

The "Flyer" Had Orders to Meet the Accommodation at Mastin, But It Is Believed the Crew Overlooked the Order.

Kansas City, June 4.—Nine persons were killed and many injured in a collision of passenger trains on the Missouri Pacific railroad near Mastin City, 15 miles south of Kansas City. The trains, which met head-on, were the westbound Colorado limited No. 1 and the eastbound Hoisington, Kan., accommodation No. 36.

A message received by Missouri Pacific officials here ordered them to send a relief train as soon as possible and to get all the surgeons obtainable, from which it is inferred that numerous passengers were hurt. Newspaper men were not permitted on the relief train, which left about 11 o'clock Friday night. Details of the accident will not be learned until the return of the train with the dead and injured.

Train No. 1, the Colorado "Flyer," had orders to meet train 36, the accommodation, at Mastin. The crew, it is believed, overlooked its orders and met train 36 south of Mastin tank, about one and one-third miles south of Mastin. The engines were both large and were demolished.

Among the dead is a tramp who was riding on the blind baggage. Baggageman Williamson, on train 36, was injured and Engineer Slocum, on No. 1, has a broken leg. Fireman Whaley, on No. 1, was hurt.

The day coach on the accommodation was telescoped, but the chair car was not injured. The mail car on the "Flyer" was telescoped and the end of the baggage car stove in.

This revives the old question of jeopardy that was raised by Capt. Coles and the other attorneys for the defense at the time of the trial. Should Judge Downey rule against them the case will be at once taken to the supreme court.

Fastidious Tastes.

A story regarding a converted barbarian is told in the English papers and sounds new. A negro clergyman was entertained at tea by the president of a college. "The guest, who came from West Africa, retailed some particulars of his early life, when a lady asked him how he became a Christian. "The story of Jezchel converted me," he answered. "You know, we are told the dogs did not touch the palms of her hands. Well, that convinced me of the truth of the narrative, for we never eat the palms of the hands in my country. They are too bitter."—N. Y. Tribune.

Could See Behind.

Mace, the Paris detective, who died recently, is said to have worn a pair of spectacles of his own invention. The lenses were divided into two parts, through one of which he looked ahead upon the ground and with the other saw the people behind him. This is an old idea. Many mothers and grandmothers had something of this kind before the detective was born. They called their perception "seeing through the back of the head." Many of us have been detected ourselves, and we know. —Youth's Companion.

The Age of Chairs.

Chairs were in use in Egypt so long ago as 3399 B. C. The Chinese employed them from about 1300 B. C. In India they were used, and are mentioned as dating from 1100 B. C. House chairs with backs were in use in India A. D. 300. They are known to have been employed in Rome so early as A. D. 70, being mentioned by Pliny at that date. Chairs with foot rests were used in Rome A. D. 150.

Unreasonable.

To be soured by poverty, or to be hardened by it is a mistake—an error of thought. Instead of enjoying our life we are cramping ourselves. It is as if we were set at a feast and sulkily refused to enjoy a few dishes because we could not reach everything on the table and make ourselves sick, like foolish children that we are.—Bliss Carman.

Monument to an Idea.

TURN OVER TIME

When Nature Hints About Food.

When there's no relish to any food and all that one eats doesn't seem to do any good then is the time to make a turn over in the diet, for that's Nature's way of dropping a hint that the food isn't the kind required.

"For a number of years I followed railroad work, much of it being office work of a trying nature. Meal times were our busiest and eating too much and too quickly of food such as is commonly served in hotels and restaurants, these together with the sedentary habits were not long in giving me dyspepsia and stomach trouble which reduced my weight from 205 to 160 pounds.

"There was little relish in any food and none of it seemed to do me any good. It seemed the more I ate the poorer I got and was always hungry before another meal, no matter how much I had eaten.

"Then I commenced a fair trial of Grape-Nuts and was surprised how a small saucer of it would carry me along, strong and with satisfied appetite, until the next meal, with no sensations of hunger, weakness or distress as before.

"I have been following this diet now for several months and my improvement has been so great all the others in my family have taken up the use of Grape-Nuts with complete satisfaction and much improvement in health and brain power.

"American people undoubtedly eat hurriedly, have lots of worry, thus hindering digestion and therefore need a food that is predigested and concentrated in nourishment." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

St. Petersburg, June 4.—Lieut. Gen. Ziilinsky, chief of staff to Gen. Kuropatkin, transmits to the minister of war under date of June 2 a report of Gen. Stoessel dated Port Arthur, May 28, as follows:

"After a fierce battle lasting two days I ordered our positions at Kin Chou to be evacuated in the evening for we had opposed to us at least three divisions with 120 guns.

"Our losses amounted to 30 officers and 800 men killed or wounded. We blew up or damaged all our guns which the Japanese had not put out of action. It would have been inexpedient certainly to bring up siege artillery during the fierce fighting."

Tokio, June 6.—The Russian gunboat Giliak was torpedoed and destroyed at Port Arthur Saturday.

London, June 6.—The Daily Telegraph's Tien-Tsin correspondent wires: "Four thousand Russians belonging to Gen. Stakelberg's brigade on May 21 attacked 1,500 Japanese, occupying a position five miles south of Wafangtien. The Russians were repulsed losing 200 killed and 400 wounded. The Japanese lost more than 100 killed."

Che Foo, June 6.—Only two miles separated Japanese and Russian armies on the Liao Tung peninsula on June 2, according to Chinese who have arrived here from Dalny. The Japanese army, reinforced by the men who landed at Dalny, occupied Twing Ching and also San Chimpo, several miles west of Dalny. They then proceeded along the coast toward Port Arthur. On one side of the army are high mountains and on the other side is the sea, from which the Japanese gunboats are supporting the flank of the army. On June 2, the Japanese forces were within seven miles of the outer forts of Port Arthur, only two miles from the Russian army, which is ready to protest their further advance. The Chinese believed that there would be a big battle at this point. It is also stated by the Chinese that the Japanese have moved their base to Dalny from Tallenwan. The larger Japanese ships are anchored outside the smaller ones inside the harbor. Troops are being landed they say from small vessels apparently coming from Pitsewo or the Elliot islands. The Chinese further reported that a large number of Chinese have been shot while attempting to get through the Russian lines.

A Japanese correspondent from Dalny confirms the reported advance of the Japanese army on Port Arthur, news of which was brought here Sunday by the Chinese. The correspondent states, however, that there are 15 miles between the Japanese and Port Arthur, instead of seven, as reported by the Chinese. The Japanese army is advancing along both coasts. It is reported that the peninsular division on the east coast fought a battle within 15 miles of Port Arthur June 3. The result of the battle has not yet been learned.

Washington, June 6.—The Japanese legation Sunday received the following cablegram from the home government at Tokio bearing on events:

Great explosions were heard and rising of dense smoke was observed repeatedly in the direction of Port Arthur Saturday.

A RACE WAR IS ON.

Two Whites and Three Blacks Killed at Trail Lake, Miss.

Greenville, Miss., June 4.—As a result of a fight which occurred on the Sims & Williams plantation at Trail Lake, Miss., 20 miles east of here Thursday night, John Sims and his manager, named Cato, were killed by Negroes and three of the Negroes have been killed also. The country is in a state of intense excitement and it is feared further trouble may ensue between the whites and blacks.

The slaughter started about 10 o'clock Thursday night when Sims and Cato were shot down in their store by a Negro named Sam Clark. Sims was engaged in checking up his cash when Clark came in. Before he could make any kind of a move, Clark raised a Winchester and fired, the shot taking effect first in the back and then breaking the collar bone. He died instantly.

Clark immediately turned on Cato, the manager, who was in another part of the store, shot him in the right side, the ball coming out on the left side.

Cato staggered out of the back of the store and as he reached the door a Negro convict named Van Horn, who was apparently in waiting, struck him over the head with a rifle. Cato died at 7 o'clock Friday morning and the physician gives it as his opinion that the blow over the head caused his death.

News of the tragedy was immediately sent to Greenville and Sheriff John Creech with a posse went to the scene. The Negroes Van Horn and Clark had made their escape before the posse arrived, but the trail of Van Horn was found and he was tracked about a quarter of a mile into the woods. Here another Negro convict guard named Mayfield interfered with the posse and he was shot down in his tracks.

Van Horn was captured and taken to Leland, 14 miles distant, where he was placed in jail. He remained in jail all night under a strong guard, but at 8:30 Friday morning he was taken out and lynched by a mob. While the sheriff and posse were busy with Van Horn, the other Negro, Sam Clark, returned to the Sims store with the intention, it is said, of killing Buck Williams, the other partner; the bookkeeper, named Crow, who was also at work, and others. Crow, however, after the previous shooting, had armed himself and a Negro who worked about the place, named Aaron Fuller. When Clark made his appearance he was shot and killed by both Crow and Fuller.

It is believed at Trail Lake that the shooting is the outcome of a meeting held in the vicinity of Trail Lake by a Negro secret society, and that the Negroes involved were picked out to do the killing.

THE BLUE AND GRAY.

Memorial Services Over Confederate Graves in Arlington.

In a Spirit of Good Will and Fraternity Services Were Also Held Over the Graves of the Unknown Dead Union Soldiers.

Washington, June 6.—In the presence of thousands of former confederate and former union soldiers and of numbers of officers of the United States army and the G. A. R. the first formal memorial exercises ever held over the graves in the confederate section of Arlington cemetery took place Sunday. As the result of a movement initiated by the late President McKinley the confederate dead have now been gathered in one large and beautiful circle in the southern part of the cemetery where the graves have been marked with separate stones.

The exercises Sunday were opened with music by the 15th cavalry band. In a spirit of good will and fraternity after the exercises over the graves of the confederate dead those in charge of the services repeated them over the graves of the 2,000 unknown union dead and decorated the graves with flowers. Rev. Alexander W. Pitzer, pastor of the Southern Presbyterian church in this city, and an ex-confederate soldier, was the orator of the day.

He referred to the fact that the government of the United States, through representatives of its army, was participating in the exercises and that the government had collected the remains of the confederate soldiers and had erected suitable stones to mark their graves. He asked the ex-confederates present if they would not recognize that as true magnanimity. He referred feelingly to the interest Mr. McKinley, while a member of congress, had taken in the proper care by the government of the graves of the confederate dead and how the establishment of a confederate section in Arlington was a fulfillment of Mr. McKinley's cherished hope.

The exercises were brought to a close by Rev. Dr. Prettyman, who prayed for the living representatives of those who fell on both sides and for the coming of universal peace and good will which the ceremonies of the day foreshadowed.

RIOT AT THE FAIR GROUNDS.

Crowd Incensed Over Failure to See a Spanish Bull Fight.

St. Louis, June 6.—Incensed over their failure to see a "genuine Spanish bull fight," which the authorities had ordered stopped, a riot was started in an arena near the World's fair ground Sunday evening by a crowd of 2,500 men and boys who were unable to get their money back, and the building was burned to the ground. Four men were placed under arrest, charged with the destruction of property. The crowd, thinking these men were connected with the show, made an attempt to mob them and on their encounter with the deputy sheriffs a number were roughly handled and some received scalp wounds. The building is said to have cost $25,000. It is a total loss, with no insurance, it is reported.

The initial performance by the company of Spanish bull fighters had been advertised for Sunday, but Gov. Dockery, to whom numerous protests had been made, ordered that it should not be allowed to take place. Despite these orders, a large crowd assembled in the arena at the advertised time of opening. Before the regular performance a number of cowboys drove in some bulls which they ran around the arena in true wild west style. The crowd soon became tired of this and called for the bull fight.

The announcement was then made that the bull fight would be proceeded with. As the matadors came into the ring a county official handed the announcer a paper informing him that the proposed show could not take place. When this became known to the crowd, they leaped into the arena and demanded the return of their money. Failing in this the crowd went to the office, which was located in a small building outside the arena, and began to stone the structure. This was followed by attempts to burn the arena, which was an immense building constructed of pine. Their efforts were finally successful and the whole structure was soon in ruins.

A call was made for the fire department but the single engine that responded became stuck in the mud and there was nothing to stop the progress of the flames.

The search is being continued, the fire having been extinguished and the workmen are now able to handle the debris. Over three thousand head of cattle perished and 100,000 barrels of whisky was destroyed. The total loss is about $2,000,000.

BOONE CO., RECORDER

Wednesday, - - June 8, 1904.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

Kentucky Democratic politicians have their eyes on Louisville today.

For sick headach take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and a quick cure is certain. For sale by all druggist

William Newcomb was given fifty-three years in the penitentiary for horse stealing at Mt. Vernon. He had violated his parole, having been sent to the penitentiary for twenty-one years for murder, and hence the long sentence.

The indications are that Gov. Beckham has lead the State administration to victory in the organization of the party for the next four years, which will be regarded as the first step towards the defeat of Senator Blackburn for reelection.

At a conference in Chicago, of Democratic leaders from the State with John P. Hopkins and other politicians it was practically agreed that the Illinois Democratic Convention should indorse W. R. Hearst as its candidate for the presidential nomination.

In the dark tobacco region in Western Kentucky there will be a large decrease this season in the acreage planted. For instance in the Mayfield vicinity it is said that something like 40,000 acres of cotton is to take the place of tobacco. Many other crops not generally grown heretofore will be given a trial.

It is the general opinion that Gov. J. C. W. Beckham, Senators Blackburn and McCreary and probably Congressman Ollie James will be Kentucky's "Big Four" to the Democratic National Convention. The unit rule will be invoked to govern the delegation, which may be instructed for Judge Parker for President.—C.-J.

A few days ago R. D. Ratcliff, of Sharpsburg, bought a mule colt in Nicholas county, for $100, to be delivered in October. Monday he sold the colt to Mr. Thos. Davis, of Mason county, for $142.50. The colt was only 27 days old Monday. This is said to be the best mule colt ever seen in Kentucky, and will be exhibited at the World's Fair by Mr. Davis

The only product Mason county now has for export is straw and eggs. On the other hand farmers are buying corn, hay and other feed stuff in large quantities. Corn at 65 cents a bushel is too much of a luxury to feed hogs, consequently the county is pretty well cleaned out of hogs. Instead of planting so much tobacco why not diversify the crop and raise more corn, hay, oats potatoes and wheat? It certainly would pay a larger dividend and not so hard on the land.—Maysville Ledger.

The Canadian Tobacco growing industry, says the Canadian Grocer, has been most successful along the lake shore of Essex County, in western Ontario, where it extends over a district thirty-five miles long, by one-quarter to two miles wide, and is today one of the principal industries in Essex County. During 1903 about 3,500,000 pounds of Essex or white Burley Leaf were grown in this district, 2,000,000 pounds of which were sent to Quebec for manufacturing purposes, and the remainder need by Ontario Tobacco manufactories. It is claimrd for Essex Tobacco that the rich, brown color of the leaf is excelled by no other Burley Leaf grown. The Leaf grown in Quebec is dark in color, heavy in flavor and not nearly so desirable.

The State Democratic convention which meets in Louisville today has it in its power to do much towards relieving the party in this Congressional District of the trouble that has been on hand in Campbell and Kenton counties for several years, but the indications are that nothing will be done along that line, and that the spirit of unrest that has been gradually growing in the Sixth District will be permitted to continue until the Democratic party will become a minority organization in a Congressional District, which only a few years ago boasted of being a Democratic Gibraltar. With leaders in whom the people have confidence; in command, old time majorities will come back, but not until such leaders are installed will the party regain its old position in the Sixth.

What The War's About.

We have received several communications from various sources asking us what the war in the east is all about. The impression seems to be that if the various powers, including Russia, incline favorably to the neutrality and integrity of Chinese territory, there can be no real reason for the war that has just begun.

The cause of the war, however, dates back to the conflict between China and Japan, in which the last named power was the victor. In the treaty of peace that followed the war China ceded to Japan considerable territory, including Port Arthur. No sooner was this cession made public than three great powers, Russia, Germany and France, entered protests. They demanded that the integrity of Chinese territory should be preserved, and they were so earnest in these demands that Japan thought it best to forego the fruits of the victory she had won. Hence she gave up Port Arthur and contiguous territory.

But as soon as she had withdrawn from Port Arthur Russia came in and took her seat, and forthwith Port Arthur became a Russian port of entry, a Russian naval station and a terminus of the Siberian railway. Immediately Russia began to occupy the Chinese territory of Manchuria, and she maintained that occupation from that day to this—has maintained it in the face of the protests of the other powers and in spite of a treaty stipulating to the contrary. She was always departing on paper, but something or other invariably interfered with her departure, and today she has a firmer hold on Manchurian territory than China herself.

The negotiations between Japan and Russia were confined entirely to questions concerning the occupation of Manchuria and Korea, and the manner in which they have been carried on by Russia shows beyond all question that Russia considers her occupation of Manchuria as a finality. The delays that have taken place in the negotiations were simply the result of her desire for more time in which to convey troops to the scene. It was left for Japan to uncover and expose Russia's intentions with respect to China and the probability is that Japan has not constituted herself the mouthpiece of England and the United States without a clear understanding of the part she is to play in the business of pushing Russia out.

As far back as 1902, when Russia endeavored to extort from China certain special privileges the American secretary of state, Mr. Hay, declared that "such a concession on China's part would undoubtedly be followed by demands from other powers for similar equally extensive advantages elswhere in the Chinese empire, and the inevitable result must be the complete wreck of the policy of absolute equality of treatment to all nations." In fine, as a recent Japanese writer puts it, without China, there can be no open door, and without Manchuria there will ultimatelybe no China,

The integrity of Chinese territory, which is important to all the nations which have any considerable trade in the east, is vital to Japan, for if the Russians are to be permitted to maintain themselves in Manchuria it will not be many years before they will have the whole of China and Japan will be compelled to starve in her little corner island.

This is why Japan has gone to war; the little nation is fighting for its existance.—Atlanta Constitution.

The sky-scraper stage has been reached in the development of the tomato in southern California, according to the Los Angeles Times. One of the latest prodigies in that succulent vegetable is a group of three thirty-foot vines that have borne fruit at all seasons and under all sorts of climatic conditions. These remarkable growths are in the gardens of F. C. Case in Pasadena. It is necessary to use an eighteen foot ladder to harvest the tomatoes, for the vines have covered a trellis twenty feet in height, where they have tangled themselves into a thick, compact mass of greenery. The seeds of these wonderful plants were sown in May, 1903, and have been growing and bearing ever since; in fact, the vines are always filled with bloom and both green and ripe fruit.

The war between Japan and Russia is going merrially on and each is whipping the other with uniform regularity.

We are apt to suppose that the relation of nine to sourroundings, to condition, is largely a new thought in agriculture; yet this is by no means the fact. Nearly half a century ago this subject was being clearly discussed.

"Because," observes a writer on this class of subjects in 1859, "the Durham, so admirable for the shambles, and so well adapted to the luxuriant pastures of Kentucky, would probably find the rugged and scanty pastures of many parts of New England insufficient to sustain his rapid development, is no reason why those pastures would not easily sustain the lighter, more agile and hardy Devon.

"Because a breed of animals is adapted to and profitable in one location, it does not follow that it will suceeed equally well in other places with a different soil and climate."

At the same time, it is stated that a breed can easily have its size increased. But would it be wise and profitable to aim at increasing the size? There would be no difficulty in increasing the size of the Devon cow or Morgan horse, say, but after a change of this kind has been wrought you no longer have a Devon or a Morgan. What has been "gained in size has been lost in symmetry, compactness, ease of motion and vigor:

"The question of size is of the greatest importance in breeding, and one in regard to which the inexperienced breeder is very able to make mistakes, the more so as committees and agricultural societies often foster and encourage erroneous opinions on the subject."

We still have some of that old problem to solve, and the solution is coming evolutionarily.

For Those Who Think.

Don't dally with your purpose.

Character is the poor man's capital.

If you hate another it is slow suicide for yourself.

The lucky man is the one who grasps his opportunity.

Character has a commercial as well as an ethical value.

Genius darts, flutters and tirse, but perseverance wears and wins.

The largest room in the world is the room for self improvement.

Give a youth resolution and the alphabet, and who shall place limits to his career?

We get out of life just what we put into it; the world has for us just what we have for it.

Don't brood over the past, or dream of the future, but use the instant and get your lesson from the hour.

In many an establishment there are successes who are infinitely inferior to the failures from whom they snatch the laurels,

No one else can solve your problem, or work out your riddle. You stand or fall by it. Your happiness, your well-being, your success and your destiny hang upon your carrying out the program the Creator has given you.

Stock-taking every day is a great advancement. Stop and add yourself up at the close of each day and see if you have anything to carry over. If you have nothing but ciphers to carry over something is wrong somewhere. —Exchange.

Several of the stockholders of the Waterloo telephone line were repairing and remodeling this end of their line last Wednesday.

Had the ground been ready and the plants large enough the entire tobacco crop in this county could have been pitched last week.

Gardens are looking fine. County Clerk Adams claims to have been the first local gardener to eat peas of his own production this spring.

It is too soon in the season to predict as to the quality of the grass and oats crops, although the season has been very favorable so far.

J. L. Riley came in Monday morning with a pocket full of special premiums for the fair. He is one of the best hustlers on the board.

In the last few years the hay haulers are busy all the time, which shows that the hay crop is a very large item in Boone county, and brings in a considerable amount of money.

Dudley Rouse and J. C. Revill each received from Koch, of Lawrenceburg, last Thursday, a handsome, new, pleasure vehicle. Mr. Rouse's is a buggy—Mr. Revill's, a carriage.

The farmers were very willing to lose the time last week while the ground was too wet to cultivate. There never was nicer growing weather, and vegetation came on at a rapid pace.

In the recent primary election in Gallatin county, the sheriff and county clerk exchanged offices. James Conly, the present sheriff, a Boone county product, was nominated for county clerk.

Colonel Batterson is very firm in the belief that stony land is the most valuable, and offers in the proof the fact that the best corn his grandfather ever raised was on land where a stone pile had rotted.

John Baldon moved his saw mill to Richwood, last Saturday. The people of that part of the county will find Mr. Baldon a very pleasant gentleman with whom to do business, and one who understands how to operate a saw mill.

That Throbbing Headache.

Would quickly leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for sick and Nervous Headaches. They make pure blood and build up your health. Only 25 cents, money back if not cured. Sold by all Druggists.

[illegible] Reynolds, of Covington, and Henry Robinson, jr., of Lexington, both tobacco dealers, were in town Monday, incidentally seeking information in regard to the outlook for the coming crop.

John S. Mason, of Hathaway, who has been hauling saw logs for half a century, met with his first accident one day last week. A pole he was using in loading a heavy log, broke, striking him on the breast, hurting him quite badly but not seriously.

Owen county tobacco growers are doing some more organizing. They met several days ago and adjourned to meet again next Saturday, when they expect to take some definite action. Articles of incorporation were submitted and will be considered next Saturday.

O. P. Conner and Sidney Gaines tried their luck with pole and line down on Gunpowder, last Friday. They think if they can succeed in hooking all the small perch, of which there are swarms, they will then be able to land some of the large fish later in the season.

In its account of the Rough Rider—Indian game of last Wednesday, the Aurora Independent says of James Houston, of Bullittsville: "Houston, the Rough Rider pitcher, is a good man and pitched an excellent game, although handicapped by the errors behind him."

Driven to Desperation.

Living at an out of the way place remote from civilization, a family is often driven to desperation in case of accident, resulting in Burns, Cuts, Wounds Ulcers, etc. Lay in a supply of Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's the best on earth, 25c, at All Druggists.

The band boys are taking a great interest in their music, and all are present at every rehearsal, unless there is something unusual to detain them. They are spending their evenings both pleasantly and profitably in their efforts to learn music and are entitled to the best wishes of every citizen of the town.

B. F. Norman was in town, Monday. He leaves for Nashville next Monday, to represent Camp Tandy Prior at the Confederate Reunion. He expects to be accompanied by Elijah Parker, of Petersburg, who will meet him in Cincinnati, next Monday to take the morning's train on the L. & N. The round trip fare is $6.

There will be a competitive examination at Burlington, June 17th and 18th, for the benefit of those desiring appointment to the State College. Please take notice, as the law does not allow any other examination during the year, or any appointee without said examination. If only one applies it is considered competitive.

D. M. SNYDER, Supt.

Another Boone county boy has loomed up in politics. This time it is Dr. Geo. F. Smith, of Weisburg, Dearborn county, Indiana, whom the Democrats over there nominated for coroner at the primary election on May 28th. Dr. Smith is a son of William Smith, who was raised on Woolper below Plattsburg. His wife is a daughter of the late John M. Moody, of Bellevue.

Thrown From a Wagon.

Mr. George K. Babcock was thrown from his wagon and severely bruised. He applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely and says it is the best liniment he ever used. Mr. Babcock is a well known citizen of North Plain, Conn. There is nothing equal to Pain Balm for sprains and bruises. It will effect a cure in one-third the time required by any other treatment.—For sale by all Druggists.

The Burlington Grays went to Bellevue, last Saturday, and defeated the first nine 10 to 5. McKim and Hensley for the Grays and Conner and Smith and McCarty for Bellevue, were the batteries. The Grays made 12 and the Bellevue team 5 hits. In the first eight innings McKim held Bellevue down to 1 hit when he found he had them beaten and allowed them a few more. Hensley caught him in grand style. It was an interesting game, witnessed by a large crowd.

You may call him a "rube," or a "hayseed" or a "yap," but the farmer is nevertheless the biggest man in the country. He could buy all the national banks, pay the national debt, purchase both the steel combine and the Standard Oil trust and put Wall street out of business out of the products of his own honest toil, and still have a billion dollars left for pocket change. To sum up in a sentence, the farmer, by whatever name he may be called, is the most important class in the United States and he has a right to grow chesty at the showing he makes.

Rev. M. L. Early will preach at Bullittsburg on Sunday morning, June 12th, and at Burlington on Saturday afternoon and Sunday night.

When the daily toil is over and the sun's going down, you're ready then to read the news that's going on in town. If you miss the weekly paper, here's a hint will make you smile, you may find it on your daughter, for the bustle's back in style. When you wash your face in soapsuds and you're looking for the towel, while the soap is getting in your eyes, you start to swear and howl, wipe your face upon your sleeve, and remember all the while that the towel's hard to locate since the bustle's back in style. There's no good in getting angry and it does no good to swear, if your Sunday shirt is missing, and you've nothing else to wear, try your hardest to look pleasant, and your best to smile and remember when you miss things, that the bustle's back in style.—Ex.

About fifty of the 2,500 Democratic voters of this county assembled at the court house last Saturday afternoon and selected twelve delegates to represent the county in the State convention which assembles in Louisville today to select delegates to the national convention which meets in St. Louis, and to adjust the party machinery in Kentucky for the next four years. So far as the machinery in this congressional district is concerned the probability is there will be no change. The convention Saturday was presided over by N. E. Riddell, while T. F. Curley, of Walton, was secretary. No instruction further than that the delegation was instructed to vote as a unit was given. The following were appointed delegates: John M. Lassing, F. A. Utz, B. B. Allphin, T. F Curley, B. B. Hume, A. B. Rouse, J. W. Berkshire, Elmo Gaines, R. H. Stephens, John L. Jones, J. A. Huey, J. W. Kennedy.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucus surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

No Competition.

The uniform success of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the relief and cure of bowel complaints both in children and adults has brought it into almost universal use, so that it is practically without a rival, and as everyone who has used it knows, is without an equal. For sale by all Druggists.

The county board of education, composed of the County Judge, County Attorney and County Superintendent of Schools voted unanimously to adopt the list of school books presented by the American Book Concern, except the history, to which Superintendent Snyder was opposed, and voted against.

BASE BALL.

A team of Newport ball tossers came out last Saturday afternoon and played the Boones, who won the game by a score of 11 to 1. The Newport boys were quiet, nice young men, but are not up to the standard as ball players.

The Home City team came over Monday and gave the Boones their first drubbing of the season. The visitors outclassed the Boones at every place in the field and on the diamond, unless it was at first, where Slayback put up a fine game. The score was as follows:

Struck out—Brady, 5; Neppert, 8. Base hits—Home City, 12; Boones, 7; 2 base hits, Slayback and Thoman; 3 base hit, C. McBriar. Errors—Boones, 5; Home City 1.

The Boones will play at Home City next Saturday afternoon.

The Burlington Grays and Erlanger will play here next Saturday. This will be a good game.

Ft. Thomas and the Boones will play at the Burlington Park on the afternoon of Saturday the 18th inst. Ft. Thomas is a strong club.

Foxes have killed one old and forty-two young turkeys for Ben Cason, who lives down on Middle creek.

SOULS IN JEOPARDY

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1904, by J. M. Edson.)

Chicago, June 5, 1904.

Text: "Knowing therefore the fear of the Lord, we persuade men."—II Cor. 5:11.

PAUL'S passion was for souls. He knew but one mission in life, and that was to preach the Gospel in all its simplicity and power. He had but one purpose directing his tremendous energies, and quickening his splendid intelect, and that was to tell men of the Christ Who could cleanse the heart and transform the life and save for eternity. Whether on the journey, or sojourning in the village, town or city; whether working at his trade of tent-making with two humble craftsmen as his audience, or facing the throngs in the synagogue; whether before kings and governors, or in the dark prison, chained to his rough guardsman; whether facing death on the raging sea, or on land at the hands of the angry multitudes, it was all the same to Paul. There were needy souls to be saved, and Christ must be preached to them, and no power could still the heart throb which he felt for the sinner, nor stop his tongue or pen in its tireless energy to bring the world to the feet of his blessed Lord and Master. Two words were writ large in his vocabulary. One was

and the other was

SAVIOUR.

All externalities and temporalities were swept aside, and he saw the naked soul as it must stand before its Creator. It made no difference whether it was a cultured Greek philosopher at Athens, or a half barbarian in the wilds of Asia Minor; whether it was the self-confident, self-satisfied Jews of the synagogue, or the Godless Roman jailers and officials into whose hands he chanced to fall, all alike were sinners before God, all were dead and lost "in trespasses and sins," all needed to repent and all needed the Christ to cleanse and to save. And for this reason, Paul's serious and supreme business was "persuading men."

OLD Uncle John Vassar, of sacred memory, had the Paul spirit. No soul ever came in contact with the big-hearted, loving servant of Jesus Christ, but that it was brought face to face with its need and made acquainted with its Saviour. It was his business telling people where they stood in their relations to God, and he never lost an opportunity to introduce those with whom he came in contact to his dearest Friend. The story is told of him that upon one occasion a friend of his who knew his "failing," as he called it, invited him to his home to a dinner party. Fearful that John Vassar might so far forget the conventionalities of the social function as to speak on the theme which was nearest his heart, he plucked up courage to suggest to him that it would be quite agrecable to him, and doubtless to the other guests, if he would direct his conversation upon more general and interesting topics. With a quizzical little smile, in which lingered a bit of sadness, he promised to do the best he could, well knowing that his best was to speak his Lord's message in every place and upon every occasion possible. He chanced to be seated by the side of a charming young woman whose whole thought seemed to be centered in the delights and activities and pleasures of this life. Anyone but John Vassar, imbued with the spirit of Paul, would have been disconcerted and confused, and turned from his purpose, but not he. Bravely and tactfully he honored his Lord in the conversation, and ere the dinner was ended he not only had found in the young woman a thoughtful and convinced listener, but all about there was a hushed eagerness to hear John Vassar's message. His business was to "persuade men." "Knowing the fear of the Lord," he could do no less than that.

AND there have been many others of God's servants who have been imbued by the same spirit, but the question always rises in the heart of the Christian, in your heart and my heart, should that be the normal condition and attitude of the Christian? Ought I to feel as Paul did? Ought I to do as Paul did? Without answering the question directly, but that we may answer it each for himself, let us consider carefully just what Paul meant when he declared that, "knowing the fear of the Lord, we persuade men." The term, "fear of the Lord," has a peculiar meaning here. It implies more than is ordinarily included in the words. The common version has the word "terror," in place of "fear." Paul has just been speaking of the judgment, declaring that "we must all be made manifest before the judgment seat of Christ," and then he goes on in the words of our text to say: "Knowing therefore the (terror) fear of the Lord, we persuade men." The word "terror" enforces the thought of the punishment which is to be meted out to the unsaved sinner in the last great day, when everyone will be compelled to obey the Divine summons and appear before the judgment seat of Christ. It is the consciousness of God in His attitude towards sin, and the punishment of sin. The translation in the American revised version, "fear" means this and more. It implies an intimate and sympathetic relationship with God. The Psalmist declares that "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom," suggesting true enlightenment; and again he says: "The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring forever," implying perpetuity. In Proverbs we read: "The fear of the Lord is to hate evil"—identification with righteousness; and that "The fear of the Lord is a fountain of life," and again that "The fear of the Lord is strong confidence."

"THE fear of the Lord," then, I take it, implies not only a realization of sin and its consequences, but a definite consciousness of God, of what He is in His perfect holiness, and of what He is in His relationship to the world. Knowing this, Paul declares: "We persuade men." He could do nothing less. Because he "knew," he must, therefore, tell men of their danger, and of the Christ Who could save. Paul was a convinced preacher, and hence he was a convincing preacher. He knew, and he told what he knew. The reason all Christians are not persuaders of men is because they have not vividly before them the awful reality of sin, the certainty of its punishment, and the salvation there is in Christ Jesus. The story is told of a minister who once asked an eminent actor why people would flock to a theater to hear fiction, while they neglected church, where they could hear the truth. "Because we treat fiction as though it were truth; you treat truth as though it were fiction," was the reply. And is not this indictment true and general in its application? Are not Christians, yea, many, many ministers, too, treating God's solemn and eternal truth as though it were fiction? God's one declaration as to the condition of the world is that "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." God says that "the wages of sin is death," and that "the soul that sinneth it shall die;" yea, it goes still farther in defining the condition of the sinner, and declares that he is already "dead in trespasses and sins."

GOD'S Word tells of the way of salvation. Of the Christ Who came into the world to save sinners. Of the Christ Who knew no sin, but Who became sin for us that lost souls might become the righteousness of God through Him. It tells us that there is salvation in none other than in Jesus, and that He is able to save unto the uttermost. It tells us that God wants all men to come to a knowledge of the truth and be saved, not wishing that any soul should perish. We believe that man is a lost sinner, and that Jesus is the only way of salvation, but we do not act as though we believed any such thing. What would you think of a man who had escaped from a burning building by the way of an iron bridge to the building opposite, who would turn about and calmly witness the peril, the suffering and the death of the man who did not know of the way of escape, but was failing back helplessly into the seething furnace of flames behind him? What jury is there that would not find such a man guilty of criminal neglect, if not manslaughter or murder? When charged with his wicked and cruel indifference and neglect, suppose the man should look at you in blank surprise and exclaim: "Why, I never thought of it; I was safe, you know, and felt quite comfortable and at ease." Such conduct in reference to physical peril cannot be conceived of, and yet is not this exactly what multitudes of Christians are doing every day? Before the judgment seat of God how many of us who have escaped the awful peril of soul death because we have accepted Christ will hear some friend, some loved one, some acquaintance, some one we have met in business or social life or on the journey, say: "You never told me!"? Saved, but indifferent to the salvation of others! Glad because we belong to Christ, but careless whether others are brought to Him or not! Surely, the fear of God cannot be known and realized, or this could not be true of so many, many Christians!

THIS may be true of us now, but it need not be true of us, if we will only know God's truth and then act as if we believed that it was true. We must see souls and not men. We must not become so engrossed in time, that we forget the eternity towards which we are rushing. We must see as God sees, and not with the natural vision which only is conscious of externalities and mistakes goodness for Godliness, and religious forms and activities for salvation through the cleansing power of Jesus' blood. Paul saw sin written on every man, woman and child with whom he came in contact unless the cleansing power of Jesus' blood was sprinkled there. Paul felt the infinite love and mercy of God reaching out after the lost soul as he came in contact with people. It was as though Christ were standing at Paul's side as he went here and there, waiting to receive those whom Paul would introduce to Him. Nay, it was not "as though," for He WAS standing there. And He is standing at your side and my side. He is listening to our conversation. He is waiting to be introduced to your friend. And if we know the fear of God we must speak the supreme message. It is your business to know where friend and acquaintance stands! It is your business to warn of the awful peril which threatens the sinner, and to point to the Christ, Who came into the world to save sinners! If we are not persuading men, let us seek prayerfully and earnestly to know, as Paul knew it, "the fear of the Lord," which will impel and compel us into the great work and the supreme work of bringing lost men to Christ.

Trade in Adulterated Foods.

The people of the United States spend $10,000,000 a year in adulterated foods, which are classed as having "poisonous and otherwise noxious ingredients," by the government analyst.

THERE ARE TWO SIDES TO THE STORY.

One Is the Buying Trust and the Other the Selling Trust.

WORKINGS OF STEEL TRUST

Evidences That the Big Combinations Sell Cheaper Abroad Than in United States.

The much disputed question of how much cheaper the trusts sell their products to foreigners than to the people of the United States has been settled as far as steel rails are concerned. The evidence was produced by Senator Bacon in a speech made in the senate April 25, which is published in the Congressional Record, April 28, on pages 6,040-56. He conclusively shows by the evidence of Mr. Wright, general manager of the Macon, Dublin & Savannah Railroad company, that he had paid $29 a ton for steel rails for his railroad, which the steel trust offered to sell for $20 if exported to Honduras. Mr. Wright, who is a republican, was quite indignant at being thus plundered by the steel trust, and says:

"We American citizens paid to this American industry $33,000 in excess of what foreigners would have been compelled to pay." A bonus in excess of $600 a mile is quite a stiff tax to pay the steel trust, and Senator Bacon stated that the railroads of the United States have for the six years beginning in 1898 and ending in 1903 used 12,544,242 tons of steel rails, and paid for them $150,530,904 more than the same rails would have been sold for to foreigners. This enormous extra pront from Americans is arrived at from the testimony of Mr. Schwab, who was president of the steel trust, that rails could be manufactured for $12 a ton, and sold at a fair profit in this country at $16 a ton. The average price during the six years for which the computation is made was $28 per ton, which is the price to-day. The difference between $16 and $28 makes the amount stated by Senator Bacon.

Most people would not be especially interested in how much the steel trust plunders the railroads, except that the high prices of rails undoubtedly adds to the rates for passengers and freigbt, so that indirectly everyone that uses the railroads pays his share of that enormous bonus.

The tariff duty on steel rails is $8.84 a ton, and this tax prevents foreign rails from being imported, and thus keeping the price within reasonable bounds. Mr. Schwab also said in his testimony that foreign countries could not manufacture steel rails for less than $19 a ton, which, if freight and duty is added, would make them cost about $28, the price the trust charges.

With this evidence of plunder that the tariff allows the trust, who, except the stand-patters, will say that the steel trust schedule should not be revised? And the evidence that the same tariff plunder is fostering other trusts in like manner, is the reason the democrats demand that all the schedules that shelter trusts should also be revised.

Tax Paid by the Public.

Charles M. Schwab, former president of the United States Steel trust, has been telling tales out of school which have produced no little flurry in protective circles. In a private letter to H. C. Frick he has declared that the trust could sell steel rails at the mill for $16 per ton and make a reasonable profit. He claims that he could not only do this, but shut out English rails in the markets of Great Britain at $19 per ton, and that the same is true as to other steel products. When it is considered that the price of steel rails at the mills is $28 per ton some idea can be formed of the tax which is thus levied on the people, on whom in the end falls the burden of this extra cost by this system of favoritism.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The old canker lingers and it is perfectly useless for the conservatives to try to fool the country into believing that the democratic leopard has changed its spots. There is no real change. If we are not persuading men, let us seek prayerfully and earnestly to know, as Paul knew it, "the fear of the Lord," which will impel and compel us into the great work and the supreme work of bringing lost men to Christ.

BEEF TRUST IS VORACIOUS.

Plunders Producer as Well as Consumer, Aided by the Powerful Railroad Pools.

The packers' combine has such complete control of the cattle, hog and beef markets that it laughs at injunctions and does not seem to fear other legal proceedings the administration might invoke. If President Roosevelt would instruct his attorney general to proceed against the individual members of the combine under the criminal section of the anti-trust law it is probable that their hilarity would soon cease and they would be suing for peace. One trust magnate bebind the bars would bave a restraining effect upon the whole brood.

The alliance between the packers' combine and the railroads has been notorious and no one has been able to compete with them for that reason alone, as it gives them a virtual monopoly of transportation and markets. The interstate commerce commission has asked for power to prevent and punish discriminations and the paying of rebates to favored shippers, but neither the president nor the republican majority of congress have seemed anxious or willing to punish railroad or trust.

The farmers and the beef consumers are both vitally interested in the beef monopoly and, as Chairman Babcock says, the farmers, through reading the daily newspapers, have become so "intelligent" that they keep congressmen busy asking questions on matters of public interest. It might pay the farmers, and the beef consumers as well, to make especial inquiries why the beef combine is not prosecuted under the criminal section, and why the railroads are allowed to discriminate in favor of the few and against the many. If the intelligent farmer or the city consumer has in former campaigns questioned his congressman and was promised relief from monopoly, which has certainly not materialized, is it not about time to elect some one in his place who will not only promise but perform? These discriminations by the railroads and the monopoly of the cattle and hog and beef market bave continued for years and the farmers and their customers in the city have quietly submitted to promises of reform, but instead of relief the system has grown from bad to worse.

The democrats in congress proposed several bills, and amendments to others, that would have had the effect of defeating monopolies, but the republican majority refused to consider any measure that would strike at the root of the evil. They were too anxious to follow the orders of President Roosevelt to pass the appropriation bills and go home.

SHE WAS ALL PREPARED.

So That When Hobson Sneezed His Good Wife Was Right There with the Remedy.

Mr. Hobson sneezed and Mrs. Hobson remarked that he must have caught cold. Mr. Hobson is one of those men who hate to have a fuss made over them. He has been trying to impress that fact on his wife's mind for 20 years, relates the Chicago Daily News.

"What makes you think I've taken cold?" he demanded, irritably.

"You sneezed," replied Mrs. Hobson.

"That doesn't signify—" He paused. "But it does 'signify.' It is one of the first signs of a cold. You went out with the ashes this morning without a thing round your neck."

"I always do."

"And now you've caught cold."

Mr. Hobson returned to the reading of his newspaper without replying. In a few moments Mrs. Hobson said:

"Henry."

"Well?"

"You've got to do something for that cold."

"Can't I sneeze without being accused of a cold? Is there any law against sneezing, or do I have to get a permit from the health department?"

"I don't see anything foolish in taking a cold in time," Mrs. Hobson said, calmly. "If you would let me put your feet in hot water and mustard, and get you to bed—"

Mr. Hobson resumed his paper, and as he did so he felt an annoying tickling in his nose. He struggled berolically for nearly half a minute. Then he sneezed again.

"There—" said Mrs. Hobson, in melancholy triumph. "You've sneezed again!"

"I've sneezed twice, and I'm not ashamed of it," Hobson replied, coldly. "If I feel like it, I'm going to sneeze again. I'm—"

Three successive and violent sternutations interrupted him.

"Now will you let me beat that water, Henry?"

"No, thank you."

"Will you take some quinine, then?"

"No."

Mrs. Hobson sighed.

"Sneezes," Mr. Hobson explained, are convulsions caused by an irritation of a sensitive membrane. The irritation may be caused by the introduction of any small particle of foreign matter, such as a grain of dust. Snuff bas been known to produce a sneeze; so bas pepper. You can get up a fairly good imitation by tickling the nostrils with a straw. It is not, as you imagine, an infallible indication of a cold."

"I suppose," said Mrs. Hobson, reflectively, "that you would object to an onion poultice, too?"

Hobson rose from bis chair and started for the door. With his band on the knob he paused to say, with dignity: "I'm going up to my room now. I've got some work to do, so I guess I bad better be alone for the rest of the evening."

Hobson sneezed twice on the way upstairs. Then the door of his den closed explosively. Fifteen minutes later the door opened and Hobson's voice called down the stairs: "Maria!"

"What is it, dear?"

"Say, if you think I really ought to take a bot foot bath I suppose it won't do any particular harm, whether I've got a cold or not. Would it be troubling you too much to heat the water?"

Mrs. Hobson's voice replied cheerfully:

"It's all ready now, dear. I've heated it and got some blankets nice and hot. When you're ready I'll bring them up."

A WORD WITH THE GIRLS.

Learn to Do the Little Things That Give Enjoyment to Yourself and Others.

It is the girl who does things in this world who is attractive, both to men and to her own sex, which last counts a little, too, in the long run. You may not be able to do great things, to paint great pictures or to sing in grand opera, but you can learn to make bright little things for yourself and your friends and perhaps the light "catchy" airs of the day so that your friends will enjoy them, and if you can't do anything else cultivate the art of talking brightly and of being sympathetic, says Good Housekeeping.

Every girl can do one thing well if she will only take the trouble to find out what that thing is. The difficulty is that she often looks in the opposite direction; she wants to do something great and showy or nothing at all. But there are other talents within reach if she will only look, and these talents may be such a comfort to her in her dark hours that they will make life better and happier both for herself and those about her.

How the world likes a cheerful, plucky girl who makes a brave fight and hides her skeleton in a closet instead of folding her hands and whining because things don't come her way—the girl who puts her own griefs as much as possible aside and who takes a wholesome interest in life—is the one who wins out every time.

Patties a la Mazarin.

Give six turns to half a pound of puff-paste, roll out to the thickness of a penny-piece; stamp out two dozen tops with a plain circular cutter, about one inch and a half in diameter; gather up the trimmings, knead together, roll out and stamp two dozen more; place on a baking-sheet, about an inch and a half apart, and wet them with a soft brush; garnish the center of each with a little force meat of any kind, place the tops on them and use the upper part of a smaller cutter to press them down, so as to fasten the two parts together; they must then be egged over and baked in a rather brisk oven; when done, dish up on a napkin and serve.—Boston Budget.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot tell you with pen and ink what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me, suffering from the ills peculiar to the sex, extreme lassitude and that all gone feeling. I would rise from my bed in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed, but before I used two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to feel the buoyancy of my younger days returning, became regular, could do more work and not feel tired than I had ever been able to do before, so I continued to use it until I was restored to perfect health. It is indeed a boon to sick women and I heartily recommend it. Yours very truly, MRS. WATER POWER FOR A FARM.

You May Catch the Idea and Make It Useful for Your Own House and Barn.

A friend of mine has a useful contrivance by which water is utilized as a power for light mechanical work, like pumping, stirring a vat of cream, scaring away birds, etc. It consists of a pole balanced upon a pivot, or bolt, to one end of which is suspended a weight and to the other a water bucket. This bucket has a large auger hole in its bottom, forming a rough valve, the stem of which projects an inch or two through the bottom. (See cut.)

The motion is that of a walking beam. First the weight draws up the bucket. Water running into the bucket fills it, and its weight carries it down, lifting the weighted end. When it strikes the ground, the valve is forced up, letting the water out. Relieved of its weight, the bucket rises, only to fill and descend again.

The valve in the cut shows the loose plug with a head that completes the bucket valve. It has a pin, or spike, through its lower end, so it cannot rise too high and float away. It is held down by water until forced up from below. This little power is quickly constructed and is quite effective for light uses.—Farm Journal.

ROADS FOR MIDDLE WEST.

Principle of National Aid Has Many Friends in Illinois and Neighboring States.

In many parts of the middle west there is as great need of road improvement as anywhere else in the world, and it is no wonder that the people of this section have gone into the good roads movement with enthusiasm.

A state good roads convention has just been held at Springfield, Ill., and, although it is the busy season with the farmers, there was an attendance of about 200 delegates besides many visitors. Senator Latimer, of South Carolina, was the principal speaker, and he delivered an able and eloquent address. Naturally he devoted considerable attention to the principle of national aid as embodied in the bills introduced into congress by himself and Col. Brownlow, of Tennessee. The senator is strongly of the opinion that the government should contribute some of its surplus revenues to aid the states in building good roads, and he has many cogent reasons to offer in support of that proposition. At the close of his address, Senator Latimer asked all present who agreed with him to stand up, and all but three or four sprang to their feet. There was some opposition, however, led by Prof. Baker, of the State university, and a protracted discussion followed in which the professor came off decidedly second best.

One of the great obstacles to road improvement in some parts of the Mississippi valley is the scarcity of material for building roads. In large portions of Illinois, Iowa, Arkansas and several other states, there is neither stone nor gravel. All the material used in surfacing hard roads has to be shipped in which adds considerably to the expense. But the bottomless mud roads of these sections are such a burden that people are willing to tax themselves heavily to secure relief. If the national aid plan should be adopted, the next few years will see an enormous improvement in the roads of the middle west.

Where there is good local material considerable progress has already been made. In Missouri there are hundreds of miles of fine hard roads. The same may be said of Minnesota. In some localities excellent roads have been built of mining slag. Gravel is employed where available, and in southern Illinois deposits of novaculite are drawn upon and some very fine roads have been constructed from this material. On the whole, however, it must be said that only a beginning has been made, and the agricultural industries of this section are greatly hampered by the expense and difficulty of getting farm products to market.

Grain for Cows on Pasture.

It will pay to feed some grain to the cows on pasture unless conditions are exceptional. The amount fed in the winter should be cut in half in the summer, except in the dryest months, when the grain ration may be temporarily increased. Some of the best dairymen in the country are doing this, though they are not getting their money back for it in the summer time. But their cows go into winter with more vigor and are healthier as a rule for the good summer treatment they have received. It is simply one way of investing money for the future. Its results are not seen so much in the milk pail as experienced in various ways in the thrift of the calf that is born later and in the ability of the mother to make the most of the food that is given her in the winter.—Farmers' Record.

GOOD CARE IS IMPORTANT.

Poor Cows Frequently Are Improved by Comfortable Quarters and Suitable Rations.

Much is being said in all the dairy papers on the dual purpose cow and much does depend upon the breed, but does not a very great deal depend upon the care the cow receives and upon the milkman? asks a "milk maid" in the Eptomist. This is a very pointed query and may be answered very emphatically in the affirmative. Some farmers think that the care expended upon the milk cow is just so much time lost, and that she can be fed on just anything, and if she then gives small quantities of milk, that there is no use wasting good feed upon her. This is a very grave mistake, as a poor milk cow is often improved by comfortable quarters and good feed and the best of dairy cows neglected will give very little milk. Good feed and care not only cause an increased flow of milk, but a richer product. I have seen milk from neglected cows that instead of having a thick, rich cream on top, had only a thin whitish covering of cream, and for the dairy was not worth attending to.

A milk cow should never be condemned until given a trial by at least two milkers, as often the trouble is more with the milker than with the cow. One cow that has been milked regularly for weeks by one milker gave one quart of milk when calf was large enough to wean, when by accident a change of milkers proved her an excellent dairy cow, and that the calf had been given an unnecessary amount of milk night and morning, simply because the milkman did not care to attend to his work. Warm comfortable quarters are very important and if a cow is compelled to wander around in mud knee deep in winter it is more than likely that she will not give enough milk to pay for the milking. It will not pay to keep your own cows and buy your butter half the time. There is more waste here than on most anything else on the farm. A ten-dollar calf runs off with $20 worth of cream and milk, while the family do without cream, milk and butter.

WASTE IN DAIRY FARMING.

No Other Branch of Agricultural Industry Shows So Much Loss in Labor and Money.

The keynote to profitable dairy farming is to be found in a close study and mastery of economic effort of labor. We do not believe there is a business on earth where there is as much waste of labor, time and money as is found on the average dairy farm of the country.

There is the waste of poor cows, the waste of unscientific feeding, pouring costly food unsuited to the purpose of economic milk production into the cows, and waste of unhealthy food and disease breeding stables, the waste of poor methods of soil culture and its consequent waste of fertility, the waste of poor care of young animals in the first year of their lives, whereby they are not worth half as much in the market, and finally the great waste of brain and thought, or rather the waste that comes from a lack of brain and thought. Such a host of men there are who prefer to be ignorant of what it means to be a good economical farmer; who are contented as can be in having no hunger or thirst for the knowledge that shall build them up and make first-class men and farmers of them.

From one end to the other of it, successful dairy farming calls for a man who has so much pride in the mastery of his business, in his possession of important ideas and methods, as have the best professional men in the country. Such a dairy farmer will be ashamed to be found ignorant, or have his sons ignorant, of what science is doing for him. Such men are the ones who show the largest profits and who win, besides, honor and fame among men.—Hoard's Dairyman.

CRATE FOR MOVING STOCK.

Saves Lots of Time on Farms Where a Number of Hogs and Calves Are Kept.

I find that in moving such stock as hogs, sheep and calves, much time is saved by having a crate on wheels such as is shown in cut. The crate is mounted on wheels to permit its being used like a wheelbarrow. The animals are driven in at door shown, the door closed and the crate wheeled away. Any old wheels may be used; such as cultivator wheels, or even old buggy wheels. If these are not to be had, wheels may be readily sawed out of one-half or one-inch boards placed together the cross way of grain to prevent splitting.—Ralston M Westinghouse, in Farm and Home.

Fresh Meat in Africa.

A recent traveler in South Africa says that many kinds of meat are eaten there which no one in this country would think of eating, some of which are very palatable, even to a fastidious Anglo-Saxon taste. Among those which he considers especially delicious he mentions the giraffe, the eland, the zebra and the guinea fowl. He also found baked elephant's trunk, baked young elephant's foot and hippopotamus calf bacon excellent eating. Among the African dishes which do not appeal to an American's taste may be mentioned lions, ostriches, alligators and snakes.

LIFE ON A TORPEDO BOAT.

The Men Have to Take Their Sleep and Food in "Catch as Catch Can" Fashion.

A man on a torpedo boat has to catch his sleep "on the fly," and he becomes exceedingly expert, being young and adaptable, at making up the required amount of slumber in little mosaics of an hour now, half an hour then and ten minutes later on. He becomes accustomed to drop into a doze whenever a favorable minute arrives and he is not on duty, and to stay in that condition until a sudden lurch of the boat shakes it out of him. Never at sea does he expect to be able to turn in for a full night's sleep, says a writer in the Boston Globe.

This difficulty of sleeping on a torpedo boat at sea is one of the principal reasons why the fleet of destroyers sent to Manila had an itinerary arranged for it which provided for 90 days spent in port and only 70 at sea. This 90 days of rest against 70 of active seagoing is calculated to be about the limit of endurance of a picked crew on a torpedo boat. A destroyer, it must me remembered, is only a torpedo boat of a larger growth, and not so much larger as to make any material difference in the amount of discomfort and strain put upon the crew, especially where the theater of action is the open ocean.

A man who has had much service on a torpedo boat said to the writer:

"It is not only sleep with which you have to play catch as catch can on board a torpedo boat, but you have to play tag with your food as well. If there was anything like a sea on, we never used to think of sitting down to table, but took such food as we could get in one hand and ate it while we held on with the other.

"A great part of the time cooking was next to impossible, and cold canned stuff, or what was left over of the stuff which had been cooked in port, had to suffice us, and we grabbed that as we could and when we could.

"The cook always, or almost always, used to make coffee for us, though how he managed it was a mystery, for, though he used to lash the coffee pot to the top of the stove and toe down the lid, the pitching and the rolling of the boat in a heavy seaway would spill a large portion of the contents of the pot out through the spout.

"Then cookey would put a cork in the mouth of the spout, and when the boiling coffee generated steam enough the lid would blow off, or the cork would fly out. Altogether, it was only by the exercise of indefatigable energy and skill of the sort which ought to have been recognized in general orders that finally enough coffee would be manufactured to give each man a cup."

THE SYRIAN BARBER BOWL.

A Novelty in Tonsorial Utensils That Is Popular with Some New Yorkers.

"I have quite a number of novelties from my country," said the Syrian barber in Washington street, relates the New York Times, "but I keep them for my American customers. The Syrians want the latest Yankee notions. Of course, once in awhile an old mountaineer happens in who longs for the ancient customs, but he is only a bird of passage—a maker of laces or a peddler of saddlebags—going through the metropolis to some other city.

"The Syrian bowl seems to please New Yorkers most. A number of artists come to my shop just to have it used on them. Here it is. Quite ornate, isn't it They're not all alike, but I keep this one because my customers admire the inlaid work on it, and while I'm shaving them I entertain them with the story of it or the industries of the villagers who produce this kind of merchandise. The shape is the egg-basin. The semicircular brim fits the neck of the customer, and if he likes he can use silver wire clasps about the ears. In Syria the lather is made right in the bowl with the hand and applied by the hand to the face of the customer, but New Yorkers won't have that, they like the brush dipped in. The native brush is unique, made of soft split grass, but only my people stand for it; the smooth, tender skin of Yankees can't stand its harshness of fiber.

My people like plenty of perfume put in the bowl, but perfumes and scented soaps make Anglo-Saxons mad. We use moistened, scented clay after shaving as a sort of powder for the face. It is splendid for the skin and acts as a disinfectant, but though I import quite a lot of it from the mountain country, I have a hard time to get rid of it among my foreign clients. Lately some ladies have been buying it to use in their cosmetics. They are finding out its medicinal qualities, and they don't have the prejudice against it that the men seem to have. A society woman happened into my shop a day or two ago and bought a Syrian barber bowl and an ear razor for shaving the inside of the ear. These razors are fine things, and all the nobility use them at home. I showed her how to handle the blade and told her to be careful and always employ the tiny ear-mirror with it.

"She thanked me, but replied: "Oh, dear me, I wouldn't use that beautiful thing for any horrid purpose like that. I want it for an ornament; a sort of book leaf cutter.'"

Tempting Sandwiches.

At an afternoon tea some particularly attractive open sandwiches were served. Rounds of bread were spread with a mixture of cream cheese and finely chopped olives. Around the edge of each larger pieces of olives formed a sort of wreath and directly in the center was a piece of olive. Brown bread sandwiches made of cream cheese and chopped olives are particularly delicious. Chopped green peppers may also be mixed with them.—Detroit Free Press.

MADE A SLIGHT MISTAKE.

Government Official Was Bound to Get Right, But Again Got Wrong.

"Whenever an unknown person of distinguished appearance enters my office; I am reminded of the experience of Frank Vanderlip," said a senator's secretary, according to the Washington Star. "When Vanderlip was Secretary Gage's private secretary, before he got wel accquainted, he paid little attention to the people he did not know. One day a member of the cabinet called on Secretary Gage and was ignored for some time by Vanderlip, finally going into the private room unannounced. The cabinet officer complained to President McKinley, and the president mentioned it to Secretary Gage, who thereupon reprimanded Vanderlip.

"The next day, Vanderlip turning over a new leaf, one of the first persons to enter was a distinguished looking old fellow with a partriarchal beard. Vanderlip received him with great consideration, handed out a chair, which the old fellow took with gravity and some wonderment. Seating himself opposite, Vanderlip asked, with a most engaging smile, 'What can I do for you, sir?'

"'Oh, nothing,' replied the visitor. 'I just came to wind the clocks.'"

Thought She Couldn't Live.

Moravia, N. Y., June 6.—Mr. Benjamin Wilson, a highly respected resident of this place, came very nearly losing his wife and now that she is cured and restored to good health his gratitude knows no bounds. He says:—

"My wife has suffered everything with Sugar Diabetes. She has been sick four years. She doctored with two good doctors but kept growing worse. The doctors said she could not live. She failed from 200 pounds down to 130 pounds. This was her weight when she began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and now she weighs 190, is well and feeling stronger every day.

"She used to have Rheumatism so bad that it would raise great bumps all over her body and this is all gone too.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are a God-send to those who suffer as my wife did. They are all that saved her. We can't praise them enough."

Jas. Clore, Jesse Kirkpatrick and R. W. Clark, represented Burlington b. b. enthusiasts at Aurora, last Wednesday when the Nebraska Indians defeated the Rough Riders.

Mr. Doc Mannin, of Hebron, has our thanks for favors conferred last week. He generally visits the hub on Wednesday and always calls upon the RECORDER to see if he can render it any service.

Col. Batterson, of Moundfield Farm, came over last Friday and put the finishing touches on his part of the work necessary to the remodeling the Boone County Deposit Bank building. The Colonel has left us indefinitely again.

Prof. Dickey, of Walton, was in town, last Saturday, and made the RECORDER a pleasant call. The trustees of Walton Graded School, have found in Mr. Dickey just the man they need as principal of the school and are holding to him.

J. M. Eddins went out to the old R E. Bruce homestead, on Wooiper, last Wednesday, to paint the buildings. From the preparations Jeff made before he left town, his friends thought he had taken his departure for the summer.

R. B. Huey, who resides in the neighborhood of the Gunpowder gold fields, was in town Monday. He says there is so much of the supposed goldbearing rock on Long Branch that he fears it will not prove to be the genuine article when assayed.

Thomas B. Anderson, of Verona, was in town Monday. He says not much tobacco was set out in that neighborhood, last week, because of the plants not being large enough. He says there will be about half the usual acreage pitched there this year.

M. L. Rouse, many years ago a citizen of this county, is now a citizen of Lexington, to which city he moved a few days since. Mr. Rouse has been very successful in a financial way since he located in the blue grass, and we are sorry to learn that he is not in robust health.

W. D. Cropper and Miss Olga Kirkpatrick attended the Park Opening at Petersburg, last Wednesday evening. They were delighted with the exercises and delicious strawberries, icecream and cake. Everything was done that was calculated to add to the pleasure, comfort and enjoyment of those present.

F. E. Curley and wife, of Walton, who have been living in Tucson, Arizona, for about a year and a half, returned to their old home, last Saturday. Mrs. Curley regained her health while in the West, but she and her husband could find no other redeeming feature in the country. Their friends are glad to have them at home again.

Mrs. Annabelle Ryle was invited out to dinner by one of her neighbors, last Monday, and while she was absent Mesdames D. M. Snyder, Sarah, Aggie and Minnie Carpenter, who had arranged to surprise her, slipped into her house with baskets laden with provisions and had the table set and spread all ready when Mrs. Ryle was sent word to come home as she had company. She was very much vexed at receiving such news, on so short notice, but when she reached home and saw the crowd and the table, words could not express her surprise.

THE WONDERS OF THE WORLD AT ST. LOUIS

They Are to Be Found in the Great Palaces and Along "The Pike."

St. Louis.—Early visitors to the Louisiana Purchase exposition have found at St. Louis an exposition so nearly complete that they have in no way missed the few minor details that were unfinished on the opening day, and which have since been completed. In fact in an exposition of such proportions as this it would be impossible to discover a thousand little details that might lack completion.

Weather conditions were against the exposition management for a few days preceding the opening. Now everything is favorable, and the great fair is entirely complete, a completeness, we must repeat, that is so enormous that it is all but impossible to comprehend what it has meant to the builders. The last vestige of scaffolding that for a few days surrounded some of the less important buildings has been torn away; the last wagon load of refuse hauled from the grounds; every flower and shrub the landscape gardeners included in their scheme of decoration growing under the benign influence of a spring sun, and the exposition stands forth a completed giant, beautiful in conception, wonderful in execution, stupendous in size, by far the masterpiece of the world's expositions.

Stupendous size does not half express it. This world's fair has many surprises for the visitor, but its immense size is the greatest astonisher of all. Amazement at the extent of the fair is heard from every visitor.

It has been interesting to watch the visitors these first days of the fair. Interesting to see what would appeal to them strongest, but after one has studied the mass of humanity in their quest for the wonders it is hard to select any one feature that could be designated as a general favorite with all. Of course all visitors are enthusiastic over the general picture, the grand en semble, which has been created, and for the first hour or more of their stay inside the grounds but few get further than the point from which they catch their first view of this grand picture.

"It almost takes my breath away," exclaimed one woman near whom I was standing as she caught her first glimpse of the beauty of the cascades and the magnificence of the grand exposition palaces. Such is the general verdict. For beauty, for magnificence, for extent, St. Louis has beat the world.

There is another feature, or rather collection of features, which seemingly appeals to every visitor, and with good reason, and that is "The Pike." The fair management do not wish to appeal to the public with a side-show. They built an exposition which should stand forth to the world on its merits as an educator, as a monument to the world's progress, but realizing that an amusement feature was necessary they set to work to provide the biggest and best in this line that has ever been known. That they have succeeded in this is evident to every visitor who travels "The Pike." Nor is this great amusement feature lacking in educational interest. Here one may study the architectural fancies of the world; here he may study the nations of the world, their methods of life, their surroundings, their customs. He sees realistic pictures of the Esquimaux in their snow and ice bound homes in one minute, and the next is transported to the jungles of tropical Africa.

FESTIVAL HALL AND THE CASCADES.

Some idea of what there is to be seen of Pike features may be had from a list of the educational amusement features which this section of the fair contains:

Alaska and Esquimaux Village; Ancient Rome and Hawaiian Volcano; Battle Abbey; Bohemia; Crystal Palace; Cliff Dwellers; Chinese Village; Colorado Gold Mine; Creation; Coal Breaker; Cairo; Constantinople; Fire-Fighting Exhibition; Glass Weaving, Spinning; German Tyrolean Alps; Golden Chariot; Grant's Log Cabin; Galveston Flood; Haunted Castle; Hereafter; Hunting in the Ozarks; Infant incubators; Indian Congress and Wild West; Irish Village; Japanese Village; Jerusalem; Jim Key (Educated Horse); Lincoln's Log Cabin; Moorish Palace; Model Playground; Miniature Railway; Magic Whirlpool; Morocco; Mysterious Asia; Naval Exhibition; Old Plantation; Old St. Louis, Mo.; Old Cahokia Court House; Old Virginia Homestead; Observation Wheel; Palais Du Costume; Pottery; Weller; Paris and France; Scenic Railway; South African Boer Exhibits; Streets of Seville; Statisticum; Submarine Diving; New York to the North Pole; Trained and Wild Animals; Under and Over the Sea; Upper Mississippi Views, Water Chutes, Wireless Telegraphy.

What runs in all; what supplies the power that makes the countless wheels go round? The majority of visitors are intensely interested in the mechanical motive force of this greatest of expositions, and well they may be. One of the most striking features is the power plant. Never before at an exposition has there been even half as much power developed as supplied from the various prime movers in the Palace of Machinery. In a large boiler house standing west of the Machinery building, filled with the latest and best productions of skilled boiler manufactures, steam is generated to supply 30,000 horse-power to the various engines in the Machinery building. In addition to this about 10,000 horse-power is received by electric cable from power stations in the city of St. Louis. But the greatest interest is in the engines themselves rather than in the large capacity of the exhibit, for among them is a giant turbine or rotary engine developing 8,000 horse-power, besides others of a similar type of smaller capacity. This is the first display of turbine engines at a large exposition, as its development is a very recent achievement of mechanical engineering and invention.

At the Chicago Exposition the largest gas engine developed only ten horse-power; the visitor to St. Louis may see a gas engine with the capacity of 300 times larger than the Chicago engine. The 3,000 horse-power gas engine is the largest engine of its character ever built. Many other gas engines of various types developing from 1,000 to 1,750 horse-power complete this feature of the exhibit, and there are many of the more familiar reciprocating engines of the latest pattern and highest efficiency.

Of the total number of prime movers in the Palace of Machinery about one-half are comprised in what is known as the Exposition power plant, the other half being exhibitors' engines. Nearly all these engines are connected with electrical generators and the power is transmitted by cable throughout the grounds to the electric railways, the machinery in operation in the exposition buildings, the pumps supplying water to the cascades and fountains, the refrigerating plant and for other purposes. The total horse-power used at Chicago did not exceed 12,000 and at the Pan-American not over 8,000, in comparison with the 40,000 to 50,000 here.

Electricity had only five and one-half acres at Chicago, while at St. Louis nine acres are given to the same department, besides a large display of electrical generators in the Palace of Machinery.

No one should be deterred from visiting the world's fair because of the fear that living expenses in St. Louis are too high. If anyone has this notion it is high time that it be dispelled. There is absolutely no doubt of the fact that one can find excellent living accommodations in St. Louis now at rates not exceeding the charges this same month in New York, Chicago or any other great American city.

No one need pay more than one dollar a day for a good room. That is an average rate, though many accommodations of excellent character may be had for less. There are many unrented rooms at five dollars a week, advertised every day in the newspapers. Hundreds of restaurants serve meals or give short order service at the same rates that prevailed before the exposition opened.

It is suggested that the stranger in St. Louis, who wishes to find reasonable boarding-house rates, make inquiry at a grocery store or meat market in the vicinity where he desires to stop. The grocers and butchers know nearly all the boarding houses in their neighborhoods, and they are quite willing to oblige the stranger by directing him to a place to suit his purse and his tastes. The "want" columns of the daily newspapers also contain columns of small advertisements for boarders or lodgers.

WOMEN "BUCK THE TIGER."

How the Dealers in a Montana Gambling Resort Get the Working Girl's Wages.

In Butte, Mont., there is a gambling house where the patronage of ladies is the special feature of the management, and where all kinds of women play the good old game of faro, perfectly at home and without fear of interruption. The entrance is from an alley near Broadway, and the house is luxuriously furnished. Carpets are laid on the floors, softened lights shine over the players, courteous attendants deal and shuffle the cards and pay bets or take winnings without the slightest suggestion of the incongruity of the situation, says the Denver Republican.

Here many fashionably gowned women of Butte's elite come in parties or in pairs with escorts, to quietly venture silver or gold pieces coined from copper by their husbands, who busy themselves in Butte's continuous political war.

Women of the business world keep track of the game, and both dealer and player usually maintain a rigid silence. Money is passed out for chips with the simple word, "five" or "ten," and conversation is economized to a minimum.

And there are schemes to inveigle the unsuspecting that only the initiated understand. Many women of the middle classes are among the most regular patrons of the place. A waiter girl was recally observed playing her week's wages with phenomenal luck. With $15 she had won $60 and had casbed in her chips with charming coolness prepared to go home "winner." The dealer paid her without comment. He counted out the money—two twenty-dollar bills, one ten, one five, four dollars in silver, two half-dollars. She picked up the money, put the bills in her purse and laid a half-dollar on the ace. It lost. She laid down a dollar. It won. Another few moments and she had lost the silver. Reluctantly she drew out a five-dollar note and began to play again. In a few deals she was playing heavily again. In half an hour she was broke. It was a simple trick which has won the bank many millions of dollars after the player cashed in—the manner of payment. One is reluctant to break a bill, but silver is convenient to lay down on a card, and most gamblers will do it. Before they know it they are again drawn in to the game. They sometimes win, it is true, for the games are on the square, but one cannot win always, and the chance on a second round is in favor of the "tiger."

Perils of "Self-Doctoring."

Large numbers of people in prosperous circumstances die as sexagenarians from maladies which are evidences of degeneration and of premature senility, while many who pass this period go on to enter upon an eighth or ninth decade of life. The former class comprise those who have lived without restraint of their appetites and who have sought to allay some of the consequences by self-medication, while the latter class comprise those who have lived reasonably, and who, if annoyed by imperfect digestion, have sought relief by abandoning the errors from which it sprang.—London Lancet.

Big Man and Little Woman.

She was a demure little woman with a baby. As the car was crowded she did not put the little one, who was old enough to sit up, on the seat beside her. She carried it on her lap, and made room for a fierce-looking, big man with a newspaper.

The child kicked its tiny feet in delight at the strange things it saw while riding along, and its shoes rubbed against the big man's trousers.

"Perhaps, madam," he exclaimed, "you imagine that this conveyance is your private carriage?"

"Oh, no I don't," was the prompt reply. "If it were you wouldn't be riding in it."—Tit-Bits.

"ROOM FOR ALL, IF THEY'RE CAREFUL"

MOST UNJUST OF BURDENS

Of the many foolish, injurious and even outrageous tariff taxes levied by the Dingley bill, none, perhaps, does a greater amount of harm to all, and a smaller amount of good to a few, than do those levied on wool and woolens.

This tax, averaging nearly 100 per cent. on both raw wool and on woolen goods, increases the cost of woolen clothes by nearly 100 per cent., reduces the amount of wool consumed by about half; compels the general use of cotton, shoddy and other cheap substitutes and adulterants, instead of wool; compels working men with ordinary incomes to wear inferior and improper clothing in winter, and is responsible for much of the pneumonia and other diseases that carry off such a large percentage of our northern population every year.

This tax on wool and woolens is, besides, a heavy burden upon the woolen manufacturing industry, which is now languishing, and is comparatively stagnant and unprofitable. Neither has it, apparently, benefited the wool growing industry, for fewer pounds of wool are produced now than either 10 or 20 years ago, while the number of sheep is about the same now as then.

The only real prosperity enjoyed by the woolen industry for more than 30 years was during the three years of free wool under the Wilson bill. During this period our woolen mills manufactured more yards of woolens than ever before or since, and the per capita consumption of wool increased greatly, and was then about 60 per cent. greater than it has since been.

The duties of wool vary from 4 to 12 cents per pound on raw wool, to 33 to 36 cents on scoured wool. Duties on woolen goods vary greatly. Generally speaking, they are three or four times as much per pound as upon an equal number of pounds of raw wool, and, in addition, from 30 to 55 per cent. ad valorem. The duties on raw clothing wool may be considered as 11 cents per pound, on woolen clothes, at 44 cents per pound, and 50 per cent., and on clothing, 44 cents per pound and 55 per cent. The duty collected on imported wool last year was 35 per cent. of the value of the wool, and that collected on woolen goods was equal to 91 per cent. of their value.

As these, like all other specific or partly specific duties, are higher on cheap than on expensive goods, it is evident that they will average about 100 per cent. on ordinary woolen goods. As about 40 per cent. of the wool consumed in this country comes from abroad, and, therefore, is nearly doubled in value by the tariff duties, it is evident that the tariff must increase the value of most woolens sold here by nearly 100 per cent.

The total value at retail of all woolen goods and clothing sold in this country is probably about $600,000,000 a year. It is safe to say that $150,000,000 of this amount is due to the tariff duties on wool and woolens. This is an average of about nine dollars per family for our whole population.

But not more than half of the price of wool (probably not one-fifth) can be credited to the duty on raw wool. Therefore, in order to grant a protection bonus of from $10,000,000 to $30,000,000 a year to our wool growers, we tax all families an average of nine dollars per family, in order that we may confer a tariff benefit which cannot possibly exceed two dollars, and which probably does not exceed 75 cents per family. But, as one-half of this protection bonus most certainly goes to less than 200,000 of the big ranchmen of Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Oregon, California, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico, who produce more than one-half the wool grown in this country, the average for all the other families cannot exceed one dollar, and probably does not exceed 40 cents per family.

——In order to facilitate that "pure" campaign, Mr. Carnegie will be prompt, no doubt, in remitting that check for a million or so to Mr. Cortelyou.—Houston (Tex.) Post.

——After feeling the pulse and looking at the tongue of the average trust, there is little hope of its dying off in a natural way, as predicted.—Washington Star (Rep.).

——It is reported that Attorney General Knox is going after the trusts again, but they have such a start it is not believed he will overtake them before the second week in November.—Washington Post.

REVISION OF THE TARIFF.

A Task That Is Giving the Managers of the G. O. P. Much Anxiety Just Now.

Senator Aldrich says the republicans will revise the tariff when it is necessary to do so, but as the senator manages the republican tariff programme, and in turn is controlled by the trusts, the time for revision is certain to be in the distant future. Those of us with small incomes, at the mercy of high trust prices, have seen the necessity for tariff reform ever since the combines boosted prices beyond the ability of the poor man to pay. The Rockefeller group of industrial trusts, with whom Senator Aldrich is connected, will hardly consider it necessary to revise the tariff, unless to raise it to a higher plane. The last republican platform for Iowa declared that "Duties that are too low should be increased, and duties that are too high should be decreased." That was the plank adopted to compromise the difference between Gov. Cummins and "the standpatters," so that each could point to it with pride. The followers of Gov. Cummins who believe that the tariff shelters trusts, could quote that part of the plank which promises that if duties were too high, and were fostering the trusts and allowing them to rob the Iowa farmers, the duties would be reduced. The standpatters, on the other hand, who proclaim that high duties bring prosperity, doubtless feel that still higher duties would bring about even greater prosperity.—But this juggling with words that gave both factions a chance to approve the platform, did not lead to any revison of the tariff by congress, and, in fact, the Iowa delegation, led by Senator Allison, agreed to "let well enough alone." That is, the trusts and corporations had more influence with congressmen than their constituents, for Gov. Cummins, who believes in tariff reform, was elected by a large majority, which shows that most of the people of Iowa favored revision.

The republican leaders are now trying to agree on tariff and trust planks to be incorporated in the platform to be adopted at Chicago, and the same juggling with words that will allow both factions to stand on the platform is certain to be presented to the voters. Senators Aldrich and Lodge are said to be preparing the planks, under the close supervision of President Roosevelt, and the voter that will not be able to find what he wants will be hard to please.

Yet the fact remains that the protectionists and trust interests will write the platform, and also control the action of the republican national convention, and as every revision of the tariff by the republicans has resulted in increasing duties, it is certain that if the republican party wins the election it will not be considered necessary to revise the tariff, and more certain that if any revision is attempted the protection the trusts now enjoy will be maintained. Dun's index figures for May show that high prices for all the necessaries of life are still maintained, and yet wages are declining, with a vast number of workers unemployed, and many important industries running on short time, and yet the high tariff, which the republicans declare produces prosperity, is in full working order. The price of many farm products is falling, and yet the cost of living shows but little, if any, decrease. The beef trust, the coal trust, the salt trust, the oil trust, the sugar trust, and the minor combinations, are paying large dividends, fostered in most cases by the protection the tariff gives them.

It would seem, therefore, Senator Aldrich to the contrary notwithstanding, the republican national platform should declare when the tariff be revised, and if the revision shall provide for higher or lower duties, especially on trust products.

——The people would be delighted to have the g. o. p. reduce the cost of living for political effect, pending the fall election.—Atlanta Constitution.

——It is a pleasing republican tradition that the democrats can never be trusted in matters of finance. Heaven knows, democratic leaders have often enough tried to make a mess of it, but, on the other hand, the sober historic truth is that the greatest financial perils of the past 25 years have been the direct result of republican financiering, and that the country was saved from them by a democratic administration.—N. Y. Evening Post.

A New Song to the Lord

German by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1904, by J. M. Elson.)

Chicago, Sunday, June 12, 1904.

Text: "O sing unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord all the earth. Sing unto the Lord, bless His name; shew forth His salvation from day to day."—Psalm 96:1, 2.

WITH the admonition of the Psalmist to "sing unto the Lord a new song," the question naturally arises: Does God get tired of the old song? Does He weary of hearing the song of our Christian experience which we learned so long ago? Would the sweet prattle of your baby grow wearisome were it to continue five, ten years from now when the baby form should have developed into the robust child and it should have learned a new and higher expression than mere baby gurgles and cooings? Do you grow weary of the stereotyped testimony and prayer in prayer meeting of that brother or sister who, ten, 20, 30 years ago had a Christian experience, and has never outgrown the swaddling clothes of its first babe-in-Christ expressions? And think you that God cares not when children fail to grow and develop and learn new songs out of life's experiences to pour into His ear? That which was once sweet music to His ear has long since lost its melody, because it is no longer expressive of life and growth. We all need to learn new songs to sing unto the Lord. The Psalmist is not giving expression to a poetical and sentimental nothingness, but is speaking words which contain a vital and important truth. The admonition is important, it is needful, and it is as pertinent to this day as it was to the day when the devout singer drew from the busy hum of active, rushing, throbbing life, the sweet, helpful, wholesome strains of experience and wove them into the sacred songs we love to read. Every experience issued in a new song to his Lord, whether it was tending his flock out on the lonely hillside, or serving the king within palace walls; whether winning mighty victories over the giant enemies of the Lord, or fleeing for his life from the rejected Saul; whether ruling in righteousness over the nation after the Lord had triumphed over all his enemies, or falling into grievous and awful sin during an unguarded moment. And he who was constantly singing new songs to the Lord says to you and to me: "Oh, sing unto the Lord a new song."

THE new song is essential to every Christian life. It is indicative of growth Godward. It is the response of the soul to the touch of God. There are no new songs in the hearts and mouths of some people because no experience in life is ever allowed to teach its rich spiritual truth and make the soul cling in closer faith and fellowship to its Lord. The look is ever downward and inward. If the world gives to the pleasure and gratification of the flesh and the natural man, there is satisfaction, and agreeable complacency, but no new song that reaches up to God. If life brings its hardships and trials, its privations and sufferings, its disappointments and misfortunes, there is grim, cheerless endurance, but no new song that reads in the experience some new thought of God, some virtue, some grace. The most untoward circumstances, the deepest bereavement may give birth to the sweetest song. How much of the beautiful expressions in David's Psalms, suppose you, we owe to the affliction, and peril and privation and failures through which he passed? How much we would have lost of Paul's writings if he had not realized that "all things work together for good to them that love God," and was not constantly looking for inspiration for the new song to sing. The world sings when the sky is blue and the sun is bright and everything is smooth as the placid lake in summer time, but the Christian is admonished to sing a new song to the Lord out of every experience which comes in life. The saintly Thomas Halyburton, an Englishman, found a new song for his Lord when death robbed him of his much-beloved son. Of that great bereavement he writes: "This day has been a day to be remembered. O my soul, never forget what this day I reached! My soul had smiles that almost wasted nature. Oh, what a sweet day! About half an hour after the Sabbath, my child, after a sharp conflict, slept pleasantly in Jesus, to whom pleasantly he was so often given. . . . Jesus came to me in the third watch of the night, walking upon the waters. . . . He stilled the tempest in my soul, and lo! there was a great calm." It was the new song which Thomas Halyburton was singing to his Lord.

BUT, the admonition to sing a new song to the Lord must find in us the response of the Psalmist: "I will sing a new song unto Thee, O God." It does not come natural to us to sing the new song unto God, any more than it comes natural for us to be good. It comes only by determined effort upon our part. Recognition of the right of the Lord to ask and expect a new song from us should be followed by the purpose to do. Ah, how many, many of us realize the truth without making it a part of us through determined effort! The Psalmist declares of God that "He hath put a new song in my mouth, even praises unto our God," and this God is willing to do for every one of His children. We must not forget the part which the Lord takes in these soul experiences. "Be filled with the Spirit" is the admonition of Paul, which precedes the command to speak "to one another in Psalms and hymns and spiritual songs." To be filled with the Spirit is to have the indwelling presence of Christ, Who will give the inspiration for the song, and will help us to sing it. "When we are sitting under the shadow of severe trial," says Dr. Meyer, "God can wrap us about with the garment of praise, and fill our mouths with singing. Although the fig-tree does not blossom, and there is no fruit in the vines, yet the soul may rejoice in the Lord, and joy in the God of salvation. You cannot starve a man who is feeding on God's promises; and you cannot make the man or woman wretched who has a clean conscience, the smile of God, and the love of Jesus in the soul."

AND what of the theme of this new song to the Lord? Shall it be of self? Ah, would it be a new song, if we should continue to sing of self? How much of life is filled up with the ego? Come now, be frank with thyself and thy God! How much of your life have you given up to the singing of the song of self, its desires, its aims, its ambitions, its gratification? Is it not about time you began to sing a new song of your Lord and Saviour? Analyze David's Psalms. They are not of self, except as in self is found the marvelous operation of God's love, mercy, goodness and power. It is hard for the human heart to realize that God finds no delight in us except as He sees the character of His blessed Son reflected in us. The making the Lord the theme of one's song involves at least four things: Submission, instruction, expectation, and adoration. Submission to the will of God in the experiences of life, whatever they may be. How could one find a new song to sing unto the Lord if his heart was in rebellion against the circumstances which surrounded it? Instruction in righteousness, the experiences of life being the schoolmaster. God's Word declares that the people of the world are "ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth." To such the experiences of life never give instruction that is Godward. But with the Lord as the theme of the life, instruction in the ways of truth and righteousness issues from the experiences of life. Expectation that waits with faith and patience for the unfolding of God's plans and purposes, knowing that at the other end of the darkest valley is the light, and blessing of God. And adoration that makes of the Lord a satisfying portion. A worshipful attitude towards God which receives every circumstance and condition of life as the sanctuary in which the soul may meet its God and commune with Him. Where we find these four elements, submission, instruction, expectation, adoration, the soul will as surely break forth into the strains of a new song to its Lord, as nature puts forth her buds and blossoms under the life-giving rays of the glorious sun.

AND all the earth is called to sing unto the Lord a new song. Not just a few, not just the mere handful of Christians as compared with the billions of people who know not God and cannot sing unto Him a new song, but all the earth is called upon to join in this glad refrain. God misses the mute hearts. The great leader of the orchestra stopped the scores of instruments—the violins, the cellos, the great bass viols, the resonant brass instruments, the rolling drum and all the rest—that were pouring forth their mighty volume of melody, and cried: "Where is the piccolo?" The little piccolo was missed. The quick ear of the leader caught the break in the harmony when the little instrument was silent. The music was not complete without its clear, sweet note. And God's quick ear catches the break in the harmony. He misses the voices of those who are silent. He calls all the earth to sing a new song unto Him. The new song the world needs to sing is of salvation in Christ Jesus. The new song the Christian needs to sing is more and more of that salvation as it reaches into every channel and current of the life. The world sings its songs. But they are songs of this life, songs that end in darkness and despair and death; songs that begin and end with self, songs that begin with the gladness and joy of physical life and its pleasures, but songs which end in the gloomy strains of the dirge. But, oh! what joyful experience if the world would only learn to sing the new song unto the Lord! The new song on earth would be caught up in Heaven and wafted back by the angels over the sinners that had repented. There are songs yet to be sung which those who are singing the new songs to the Lord now will have a share in in the glorious future. John's vision shows us the throne of God and the assembled saints singing "a new song saying: 'Worthy is the Lamb,' etc.'" And after the dragon and the beast and the false prophet are overcome by the victorious Christ there shall burst forth a mighty song of triumph, a new song, for it will mark the final and complete triumph over sin and its utter destruction. "In that day shall this song be sung in the land of Judah: We have a strong city: salvation will be appointed for walls and bulwarks." "And the ransomed of Jehovah shall return and come with singing unto Zion." And "from the uttermost parts of the earth have we heard songs: Glory to the righteous."

Not Quite Realistic Enough.

A prominent artist in London had sittings not long ago from a lady of wit and fashion. Her husband, a peer, went to see the portrait when it was finished, and was asked by the artist to give his opinion of it. He replied quite innocently, looking first at the lady and then at the portrait: "It is very good; it is excellent; but I think there is a little too much repose about the mouth."

STRATEGY THAT SUCCEEDED

One Way to Get a Woman to Take Her Hat Off in a Theater.

She sailed down the aisle just before the curtain rose for the matinee, an elegantly dressed woman of middle age and more, wearing a broad, black hat with a long, curving feather on it. She took a seat in front of two young women and gave not the slightest intimation of removing that marvelous tower of headgear, relates the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Pardon me, but would you mind removing your hat?"

This request apparently made not the slightest impression on the owner of the handsome plume, and a few minutes later the second young woman asked, in a tone somewhat louder than that of her companion:

"Would you please be so kind as to take off your hat?"

The offender moved her head slightly, but otherwise gave no response.

The victims of fashion were silent for a few minutes and then one of them was heard to say very distinctly to her friend: "Oh, well, perhaps she is a little bald. That, of course, explains it. Don't think of asking her again."

The woman with the hat started, and before the speaker had finished the offense was removed.

Only Use Theatrical Manager Could Make of Embryotic Melodrama.

George Ade, at a recent banquet, was asked to speak on success, relates Success. "I suppose that failure is more familiar than success to all of us," he said. "We work away. Four things fail. The fifth thing succeeds. The hardest workers have the most failures, but then they have the most successes, too.

"One of my early failures was a melodrama that I traveled all the way from Chicago to New York to sell to a manager. This was in my youth, when I had confidence in myself. The manager returned my melodrama. He said he didn't care for it.

"I pointed out the merits in it which he had overlooked. I proved that he would make a great mistake if he should not accept this work. But he shook his head. 'Can't you use it at all?' I asked, desperately.

"'Well,' he said, 'I might grind it up and use it for a snowstorm.'"

Old Soldier's Story.

Sonoma, Mich., June 13.—That even in actual warfare disease is more terrible than bullets is the experience of Delos Hutchins, of this place. Mr. Hutchins as a Union Soldier saw three years of service under Butler Barke in the Louisiana swamps, and as a result got crippled with Rheumatism so that his hands and feet got all twisted out of shape, and how he suffered only a Rheumatic will ever know.

For twenty-five years he was in misery, then one lucky day his druggist advised him to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Of the result Mr. Hutchins says:

"The first two boxes did not help me much, but I got two more, and before I got them used up I was a great deal better. I kept on taking them, and now my pains are all gone and I feel better than I have in years. I know Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure Rheumatism."

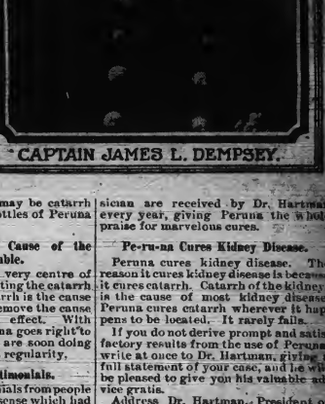
CATARRH IS THE CAUSE OF MOST KIDNEY DISEASES

PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH.

Samuel R. Sprecher, Junior Beadle Court Angelina, 3,422 I. O. O. F., 205 New High St., Los Angeles, Cal., writes:

"I came here a few years ago suffering with catarrh of the kidneys, in search of health. I thought the climate would cure me, but found I was mistaken. But what the climate could not do Peruna could and did do. Seven weeks' trial convinced me that I had the right medicine, and I was then a well man. I know of at least twenty friends and members of the lodge to which I belong who have been cured of catarrh, bladder and kidney trouble through the use of Peruna, and it has a host of friends in this city."



SAMUEL R. SPRECHER.

Captain James L. Dempsey, Captain 2nd Fire Troy Police Force, writes from 166 Ferry St., Troy, N. Y., as follows:

"From my personal experience with Peruna I am satisfied it is a very fine remedy for catarrhal affections, whether of the head, lungs, stomach or pelvic organs. It cures colds quickly, and a few doses taken after undue exposure prevents illness.

"Some of the patrolmen under me have also found great relief from Peruna. It has cured chronic cases of kidney and bladder troubles, restored men suffering from indigestion and rheumatism, and I am fully persuaded that it is an honest, reliable medicine, hence I fully endorse and recommend it."

JAMES L. DEMPSEY.

CAPTAIN JAMES L. DEMPSEY.

Officer A. C. Swanson writes from 607 Harrison St., Council Bluffs, Ia., as follows:

"As my duties compelled me to be out in all kinds of weather I contracted a severe cold from time to time, which settled in the kidneys, causing severe pains and trouble in the pelvic organs.

"I am now like a new man, am in splendid health and give all praise to Peruna."—A. C. Swanson.

Catarrh of the Kidneys a Common Disease—Kidney Trouble Often Fails to Be Regarded as Catarrh by Physicians.

Catarrh of the kidneys is very common indeed. It is a pity this fact is not better known to the physicians as well as the people.

People have kidney disease. They take some diuretic, hoping to get better. They never once think of catarrh. Kidney disease and catarrh are seldom associated in the minds of the people, and, alas, it is not very often associated in the minds of the physicians. Too few physicians recognize catarrh of the kidneys. They doctor for something else. They try this remedy and that remedy. The trouble may be catarrh all the time. A few bottles of Peruna would cure them.

Peruna strikes at the very centre of the difficulty, by eradicating the catarrh from the kidneys. Catarrh is the cause of kidney difficulty. Remove the cause and you remove the effect. With unerring accuracy Peruna goes right to the spot. The kidneys are soon doing their work with perfect regularity.

Thousands of Testimonials.

Thousands of testimonials from people who have had kidney disease which had gone beyond the control of the physician are received by Dr. Hartman every year, giving Peruna the whole praise for marvelous cures.

Pe-ru-na Cures Kidney Disease.

Peruna cures kidney disease. The reason it cures kidney disease is because it cures catarrh. Catarrh of the kidneys is the cause of most kidney disease. Peruna cures catarrh wherever it happens to be located. It rarely fails.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

BOONE CO., RECORDER

Wednesday, - - June 15, 1904.

W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

THE indications at the Louisville convention, last week, made the impression that Parker will receive Kentucky's vote at St. Louis.

If the Japs have lost as many men as reports place the figures at, their army is about annihilated, but that does not appear to reduce their military activity.

M. L. DOWNS, of Carrollton, and Claud Terrill, of Trimble county will represent this Congressional District in the St. Louis convention. T. F. Curley, of this county, and T. J. Scott, of Grant, are alternates.

Judge L. E. Mann, of Morehead, has withdrawn from the race for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Ninth district. This leaves Congressman Kehoe without opposition, and he will be declared the party nominee.

THE Kentucky Press Association is doing the St. Louis fair this week. It met in Louisville, Monday, from which place it journeyed to St. Lous to view the greatest show ever gotten together on the face of the earth. Hope the boys will have a good time.

AND still Gov. Beckham has things his own way when it comes to politics in Kentucky, and by the way, he could not help being amused at the boys falling over eachother in their haste to get in his band wagon for several weeks previous to the county conventions.

IT is not clear why the Democrats in the Legislative Districts in the large cities of this State are not as capable of selecting their commiteemen by mass meetings or elections as are the Democrats of the rural precincts. The mode of selection ought to be uniform, and embody home rule principles.

IN order to conform to the new Kentucky law, prohibiting the co-education of whites and blacks the trustees of Berea College are arranging for the transfer of their colored students to other institutions. The younger pupils will be sent to the colored public schools, and those of higher grades to Fisk University, Nashville, or some similar institution.

Boone's delegates were of the most prominent in the Louisville convention, last week. Judge Lassing was made a member, from the State-at-large, of the Democratic Executive Committee, Arthur Rouse was selected as Executive Committeeman for this Congressional District, and T. F. Curley was appointed an Alternate delegate to the St. Louis convention. What delegation fared as well?

THOSE who pretend to be keeping tab on the financial complexion of the delegates chosen to the Democratic national convention say if all the States and Territories which have instructed for Hearst should place free silver men on the Committee on Resolutions in the convention there would be eleven votes in sight for Mr. Bryan's platform. Giving him the benefit of all the doubtful States, where the Bryan sentiment has been strongest, the Kansas City platform would receive only nineteen votes out of fifty.

A cleverer scheme than the gold brick method is said to have been successfully worked on a good man in Warren county, this State. It was done after this fashion: Two strangers appear in a neighborhood and locate a hollow tree on the premises of some thrifty farmer, and into the hollow dump a bushel, more or less, of spurious silver dollars. They next go to the house of the owner of the farm and tell him they have discovered on his farm a hollow tree filled with silver dollars and take him to it, pull out the money and tell him inasmuch as they were honest enough to notify him of the mysterious find, they think the fair thing for him to do would be to divide the money with them. It generally works well. After getting the money out, and counting it, the strangers concluded that the burden is too heavy for them and either exchange it for bills or a check, and depart, leaving the unsuspecting farmer with as many counterfeit silver dollars as he can use.

A. B. ROUSE,
Member State Democratic Executive Committee.

The above is a good picture of A. B. Rouse, Boone's member of the State Democratic Executive Committee. Mr. Rouse will be 30 years old the 20th of this month, and is the youngest member of the committee. He has been the chairman of the County Democratic Committee for severel years and has taken great interest in politics since but a youth. He is well acquainted with the leading politicians of the State.

The Democratic State Convention was notable for the large number of representative Democrats in attendance from all parts of the State, and for the thoroughness of its work, as for the brevity of its session. Before its meeting there were indications which gave ground for hope among its political adversaries that there would be such lack of harmony in its results as would lead to various breaches in the organization and develop future discord and faction. For some time there had been evidence of a contest regarding the organization of the Central Committee and the fusther direction of the affairs of the party, which to those not comprehending the real spirit animating its members seemed to give hope of dissension. It is with great pleasure that we record the fact that the result has dispelled all such expectations, and that the Democratic party to-day is more united in spirit and more effective for good results than at any time within the last decade.

The differences which were thus magnified by those who hoped for the development of irreconcilable antagonism happily proved to be superficial, relating to minor questions of party administration. That they evoked earnest expressions of the views and objects of those who differed goes to their credit as men animated by a direct and open purpose, while the assurances of fidelity and intention, on all sides, to let no such differences of opinion in minor respects affect their zeal in promoting the welfare of the party, at once defeated the hopes of its enemies and gave the fullest promise of its unity and success.—Courier Journal.

In behalf of myself and my brother, Atty. R. R. Walton, I wish to express our heartfelt thands and true appreciation to the numerous devoted friends, who so kindly tendered their services in the last days of our dear father's illness. I shall, also never forget the untiring devotion, sympathy and services of our uncle, Hon. N. S. Walton, who was daily at his bedside from the earliest part of his illness. He and our father were zealous brothers, and neighbors and mutual counselors ever after the ties of home were severed, and no one in the land can more truly join us in our hour of bereavement than he who has come in daily contact with this good man.

DR. JOHN H. WALTON,
Home City, Ohio.

The Kentucky Burley Tobacco Growers' Association has filed articles of incorporation at Lexington, naming a capital stock of $500,000.

Judge Cason has been suffering severely for several days with an abscess resulting from a tooth which he had capped several years ago. At one time it was feared that blood poison was going to set up. Dr. Walton, of Cincinnati, who is his dentist, was called and visited him last night, and uncapped the offending tooth, and the relief thus produced was so great the Judge expects to be able to attend to his official duties in the next few days.

The land belonging to the late T. C. S. Ryle, of East Bend, is being divided among the heirs, this week.

The Poultry Yard.

Fowls showing symptoms of tuberculosis should be killed and burned or buried away from where the rest of the flock wanders.

When selecting eggs for hatching choose those of medium size, perfect shape and having shells that are evenly colored, instead of spotted or streaked with two shades, as this denotes uneven thickness of the shell.

The wash tubs should be emptied around grape vines or bush fruits on wash day. The dirty wash water contains a considerable amount of fertilizing material which is lost if the water is poured into a drain to produce foul odors in it.

To plow deep is all right if it is stubble land, but in plowing sod for corn, four inches is plenty deep. This leaves the grass roots in the best places for corn to benefit by the plant food they contain, and when the land is plowed the next year, by plowing six or eight inches deep, the richest part of the soil is not on top where the roots can reach.

Carrots and mangel wurzels, or mangolds, are two neglected crops that are valuable and easily grown. Either of them produce heavily on good corn land and make excellent winter feed for all kinds of live stock and poultry. Carrots are especially good for cows and horses, while a few mangolds for cows, sheep and hogs in winter promote health and growth. For poultry they make a perfect substitute for green feed of other kinds.

A good watering device for small chicks is an ordinary baking pan, such as used in bread baking, filled with pebbles even full with water poured in to fill the pan. The pebbles should be one to one and a half inches in diameter. The chicks can walk over these and drink from between them without danger of being pushed into the water as would be the case in an open pan. A whole brood can drink at one time with this device. The pan and pebbles should be washed every day.

The Pineville Independent, in commenting on the fact that fifteen students of Kentucky University will go to the mountains this summer as missionaries under the auspices of the American Board of Christian Missions, among other things said: We don't want them, don't need them and have no more use for them than for a Virginia land grant. We have plenty of God-fearing preachers who expound the gospel with vigor and persistence. We do not want this condescending, patronizing bunch of theological cubs in our mountains. Our advice is to send them back home. The strong mountain air is not healthy for such an outfit. If these young men will come to us with surveyor's instruments in their hands and proceed to lay out rail roads and highways and coalmines they will be welcome otherwise they would better vamoose.

Because sheep will destroy more than 500 varieties of weeds is no reason that they need nothing else to eat. Angora goats, it is said will destroy over 650 varieties of plants and weeds, but they require more nutritious food to make good mohair; and so sheep need better food than weeds to turn off good marketable fleeces. Sheep and goats are both good scavengers to clean up the farm, and they may both get some nutrition out of weeds and shrubs, but the flock-keeper who does not provide good nutritious pasture and regular, constant food, is called down on the broken-growth of the fiber when the fleeces go to market. Starving one time and heavy feeding at another may be a good way, as one once claimed to get "streaks of lean and fat" in pork, but it won't make good, regular growth fiber in wool as many sheep owners have found when neglecting their sheep. No class of domestic animals pay better for their keep than good sheep, when we consider both the mutton and fleece.

Gentleness with the cows pays. Cows that fear their owners are not as profitable as they might be.

Of the Threlkeld-Winston wedding the Carrollton News says: "The bride is a young lady who resided several years with her aunt, Mrs. Montgomery, and was a great favorite, as she possessed every trait of character that makes woman noble, while the groom, Dr. Threlkeld, is one of the leading homeopathic physicians of the State, and by his large practice has accumulated quite a competency. We congratulate him upon his selection of a life partner and wish them a long and prosperous married life."

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principal. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by all Druggists.

BASE BALL.

BOONES vs. Ft. THOMAS,

at Burlington Park,

Saturday, June 18th, '04.

General Admission, 10c.

Game called at 3 p. m.

Some cool weather last week.

It is presumed that everybody is done planting corn by this time.

If you wish nice painting done, employ Joe Reed, of Walton, Ky.

Two deaths in Petersburg, last week, resulting from consumption.

Today finishes up the first half of the month of strawberries, roses and weddings.

Some are beginning to fear that the hay crop will be short in this county this year.

The work of putting a metal roof on the Universalist church was completed last week.

Those who wish nice graining done should send a postal to Joe Reed, Walton, Ky.

O. D. Cunningham, the Lawrenceburg, Ind., horseman, died of heart disease, a few days since.

The Boone County Telephone Company brought its North Bend line into the exchange, last Friday.

The Boones and Ft. Thomas, remember, will cross bats at the ball park here next Saturday afternoon.

Potato bugs are so numerous in some gardens as to render the use of Paris Green necessary to stop their ravages.

It is said if young chickens are fed too much they become unhealthy and droop around for a while and then die.

Edgar Berkshire watched the Burlington strawberry market very closely last week, and sold a large quantity of berries.

The editor of the Owen Democrat is hungry for spring chicken. He says: "Spring chickens are slow in reaching this market."

Lost—Since May 25, a red heifer that will weigh 700 or 800 pounds. Information concerning her will be gladly received by B. L. Stephens, Rising Sun, Indiana.

Some predict that the apple crop will be small because of the young fruit falling so badly. Under some trees the ground is covered with small apples and still they come down.

Rev. Early, who has been called by the Burlington and Bullittsville Baptist churches, preached an interesting sermon here last Sunday night. He has the call under consideration.

In most of the fields corn came up nicely, this spring, and is growing rapidly. This is the month in which to cultivate the crop, and too much rain would prove a great draw-back.

There are some good fields of wheat in the East Bend river bottoms, while in the hill country in that section, the crop is a failure. The fields of bottom land came out nicely as soon as warm weather came.

At Dillsboro, a few miles back of Aurora, in the hill country, a hunt for gas is on, and a well was put down 400 feet when a strong flow was struck, and the well will be put down several hundred feet deeper.

There is an occasional field of wheat through this part of the county that will do to cut, but taking as a crop, wheat is a failure on Boone county hill land this year, and not enough will be harvested to bread the county.

G. T. Gaines weighed to James Thompson, Monday, a bunch of 85 pound lambs at 5½ cents a pound, bringing Mr. Gaines $4 67 a head. Such lambs are very scarce thus early in the season. Mr. Gaines always raises lambs that command the top price.

That Throbbing Headache.

An automobile came into town from towards Bullittsville, last Sunday afternoon, and ahead of it were three horses that were making winning derby time. The machine carried four people and went on towards Florence.

Driven to Desperation.

Living at an out of the way place remote from civilization, a family is often driven to desperation in case of accident, resulting in Burns, Cuts, Wounds Ulcers, etc. Lay in a supply of Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's the best on earth, 25c, at All Druggists.

J. C. Revill, in going through an old, unused drawer in the bank, one day last week, found the photograph of the Burlington Sunday school, taken at an outing at Harvest Home grounds, many years ago. The picture shows the faces of many of the young men and young ladies of Burlington, who were small tots when the photograph was taken.

A lady resident of the town, called at the RECORDER office the other day, and desired that her protest against the continuance of the dump on the side of the pike near Sheriff Allphin's be moved. She says the articles of which the dump is composed very often frighten horses and makes driving dangerous for ladies, besides it mars the appearance of the approach to the town from towards Bellevue.

Aurora had a new pitcher, Hughes of Burlington, Ky., in the box last Sunday and his work was very satisfactory. He is a good pitcher and fields his position remarkably well. For instance in the eighth inning he unassisted put the side out, not on strikes, but on rare good fielding, knowing exactly what to do with the ball when he got it, being very quick to realize the proper place to put it.—Aurora Independent.

That is just the way Billie does business on the diamond all the time, either in the box or at short.

The posters containing the premium list for the Boone fair, which begins August 31st, are out. Quite a number of new rings have been added and some of the premiums in several instances show a liberal increase. Herford cattle are a class of their own this year, having the same number of rings and same premiums as the other cattle. Examine the list and you will almost be sure to find some premium for which you will desire to compete. The long and liberal premium list assures another successful exhibition this year, and everybody will be on hand to see the show.

It seems that there are others who are having trouble with their temple of justice. Last weeks Lawrenceburg Press says: "The county commissioners decided Tuesday to advertise for bids for remodeling the interior of the courthouse as outlined in the Press some time ago. The action of the commissioners was hastened somewhat by the Dearborn County Bar Association declaring the main court room unsafe on account of the plastering overhead being liable to fall down at any moment. Judge Downey declared he would not hold court in the room until it was made safe."

The Jonesville correspondent for the News-Herald, of Owenton, says of a Boone county product: "Frank Lullilove in passing through here last Sunday with his automobile created some excitement, as a great many had never seen one before. He stopped here to water and grease up his machine and a great crowd collected to see it. Mrs. Nannie Beck True was with him. They had come from Cincinnati via this place. Frank said he could have made the run in 3 hours, but had to stop so often on account of scaring horses. Will bet a gill of buttermilk that he will make one in less than 3 months."

In the corn contest at St. Louis, which was held under the auspices of the Missouri World's Fair Commission early in February, Lewis county was awarded the first prize for the best county display. The second prize was awarded to Atkinson county and the third to Pettis. There were more than 300 exhibitors contesting for prizes, and prizes were awarded amounting to $1,000. The St. Louis Republic says that corn was on exhibition that was from 14 to 18 inches in length and 11 inches in circumference. It has been estimated that Missouri produced one eighth of the corn crop of the United States last year, and one-tenth of all the corn raised on the globe.

No Competition.

The uniform success of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the relief and cure of bowel complaints both in children and adults has brought it into almost universal use, so that it is practically without a rival, and as everyone who has used it knows, is without an equal. The Sunday School Convention.

The Sunday School Convention met at the Bullittsville Christian church on the 7th inst. and was opened with song and prayer.

The first speaker on the program was B. F. McGlasson, who discussed "Some Discouragements a Superintendent meets in Running a Sunday school," in a very interesting manner.

"The use of the Bible in the Sunday School," was assigned to Rev. W. S. Taylor, who was not present.

"The Sunday School and Worldly Attractions," was the subject on which Wm. Clayton made an interesting talk. He seemed to think Sunday visiting a very great evil, and quite a discussion followed his remarks.

On motion and second it was decided to consult the church in which the next convention is to be held, and the county workers as to the time of holding the same.

In the absence of Rev. P. H. Duncan, and the secretary's report not being quite ready, a song was sung, after which Mr. Gebauer, assistant State Secretary, gave a very interesting talk on Sunday school work.

After the appointment of the several committees the convention adjourned for noon, B. F. McGlasson pronouncing the benediction.

When the convention met afternoon the secretary's report was read, and shows that there are 40 churches in the county, 32 of which have Sunday schools. Walton Christian church and Union Baptist church report rooms for primary department. Number of additions to churches—Petersburg M. E., 5; Hopeful Lutheran, 10; Bellevue Christian, 14. Total, 29.

Twelve Sunday Schools reported:

Bellevue "	60	40	2 00
Pl. Plesa "	40	20	1 30
Petersb'g M. E. Constance	35
U. Brethren	40	35

Total number of pupils enrolled, 911; average attendance, 529; total amount of contributions, $12 81; total expenses, $2 75.

Rev. P. H. Duncan having arrived, he spoke on the "Utility of a Sunday School Convention." His remarks were both interesting and instructive.

Rev. O. M. Huey gave a splendid talk on "Manhood's Morning."

A collection amounting to $12 17 for Sunday school work was taken up.

The report of the nominating committee was as follows: For President, P. H. Duncan; Vice-President, Taylor Grubbs; Secretary, Grace Russell; place of holding next convention, Walton Christian church.

Rev. Pollitt gave a talk on "How to Teach a Sunday School," after which song 804 was sung.

Rev. Carter and D. E. Castleman being absent, N. S. Walton spoke on the "Importance of Sunday School Work."

The Committee on resolutions reported as follows:

Resolved 1st, That, by a rising vote, we extend to the good people of Bullittsville our thanks for their generous entertainment of this convention.

2d. That, having the interest of the boys and girls of the county at heart, we urge upon the Sunday school teachers to enter with enthusiasm into the classes for more efficient training as provided by our State Association.

3d. That for better and wider study of God's Word, we extend the influence of the home department.

4th. That, as experience has demonstrated the value of house to house visitation we plan, as soon as practicable, for this work in our county.

A duet was sung, after which Rev. O. M. Huey pronounced the benediction.

In this convention 14 Sunday schools were represented; 5 pastors present; 4 superintendents; 18 Sunday school teachers. Total attendance, 220.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

In the Commercial Tribune's World's Fair contest there were but two entries in this county, Mrs. Gertrude Carroll, and Miss Ida G. Miller, both of Big Bone. Up to yesterday Mrs. Carroll had received 4,663 votes to Miss Miller's 1,169, and as the contest closes today it looks very much like Mrs. Carroll will visit the World's fair at the expense of the Commercial Tribune.

Thrown From a Wagon.

Mr. George K. Babcock was thrown from his wagon and severely bruised. He applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely and says it is the best liniment he ever used. Mr. Babcock is a well known citizen of North Plain, Conn. There is nothing equal to Pain Balm for sprains and bruises. It will effect a cure in one-third the time required by any other treatment.—For sale by all Druggists.

Geo. Kreylich's buggy horse was cut to pieces in a wire fence at Jas. L. Riley's, yesterday. It was playing with a horse on the opposite side of the fence when it got fastened in the wire.

A good shower of would be very beneficial to vegetation about now.

Owen S. Watts, the Bullittsville livestock man, took a drove of 150 very fine lambs to the city, yesterday. The lamb crop is two or three weeks earlier than usual this year.

Repentance is something more than merely feeling sorry.

If we were judged by what we achieve instead of by our efforts, heaven would be a howling wilderness.

THE BANDIT'S TERMS.

The Sultan Will Accede to His Demands.

To Expedite the Release of the Captives—United States Marines Landed at Tangiers to Protect Belgian Legation.

Washington, June 9.—The state department has received unofficial assurance through Mr. Gummere, who had it from the British consul at Fez, that the sultan of Morocco will accede to all of Raisuli's terms. The bandit's demand that Great Britain and the United States shall guarantee the execution of the sultan's promises, however, is the sticking point and this probably can be gotten around only by the acceptance of this obligation by Great Britain or France, or some other country not so strongly bound as the United States, by its traditions not to entangle itself in the internal affairs of other countries. It is stated positively that under no conditions can the United States government execute these guarantees.

Tangier, Morocco, June 9.—The sultan's letter in reply to the diplomatic representations made in regard to the kidnaping of Messrs. Pardicaris and Varley arrived here Wednesday afternoon. It is said by a person in the sultan's confidence that the sultan has given orders to grant all of the conditions demanded by Raisuli, the bandit leader, in order to expedite the release of the captives.

Washington, June 9.—Surprise was caused Wednesday afternoon by the announcement that a cablegram had been received from Adm. Chadwick, in command of the American squadron at Tangiers, that at the request of the consul general he had landed marines to protect the Belgian legation. The authorities are in doubt as to what has developed to require the landing of marines. It is believed that the other powers now will land men and the situation is believed tense.

It is said at the state department that there is ample precedent for the employment of the American naval force for the temporary protection of the exposed interests of another power which has no available forces at hand. A few years ago it was the common understanding that British vessels should protect American interests in South American ports where the United States had no warships and that the United States gunboats should look after British interests exposed in the same way. He have also looked after German interests in San Domingo and elsewhere. It is stated that Adm. Chadwick in landing his marines in Africa for the first time in half a century therefore was but meeting the requirement of international comity. It is supposed here that the Belgian legation is an outlying section of the city easily accessible to the tribesmen of the interior.

PNEUMONIA A MENACE.

It is Stated That the Disease is Very Communicatable.

Dr. Buller Read An Instructive Paper Before the American Medical Association on the Use of Wood Alcohol.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 10.—Pneumonia, which, in the words of Dr. Edward F. Wells, of Chicago, "is a new menace to civilization," was the subject of much earnest discussion Thursday by the members of the American Medical association. At the session of the section of hygiene and sanitary science the disease was dealt with in a paper read by Dr. Wells, who stated that it was virulently communicatable and the section of materia medica, pharmacy and therapeutics held a symposum for the discussion of the subject.

Dr. Wells said that the prevalence of pneumonia is remarkably on the increase. He quoted 30 cases of communicable virulency. He recommended the use of moist bed clothes before the face and nose when sneezing and coughing. He stated that the pneumococcus was present in the throat and nose of many persons and that it may be communicated by coughing or sneezing.

Dr. Sternberg, former surgeon general, who is the discoverer of the pneumococcus, or pneumonia germs, doubted the practicability of any method of fumigating or sterilizing a room in which the germs might happen to be. He discovered the germ in himself in 1880 and went to Philadelphia to complete his experiment and verified them in Europe.

Dr. George M. Kober, of Washington, said that Washington was the only city not showing an increase in pneumonia. He said that as alcoholism invites the disease and that the Negroes, of whom there are many in Washington, are not heavy drinkers, and to that fact he attributed the proportionately small number of pneumonia cases.

Dr. Frank Buller, of Montreal, read an instructive paper on wood alcohol before the section of ophthalmia. He stated that wood alcohol is very generally used in such substances as Jamaica ginger, essence of peppermint, lemon essence and cologne spirits. The danger, he declared, is entirely unknown to the public and but slightly appreciated by physicians.

"Thousands of people," said Dr. Buller, "are doubtless taking this poison into their systems. The poison in its first stage causes mild intoxication and intestinal trouble. The second stage develops aggravated symptoms of blindness, the third overwhelming prostration and death."

Dr. Buller had reports of 50 cases of which 16 had resulted in total blindness, three in partial blindness and ten in death.

MRS. ELIAS GOES FREE.

Acquitted of the Charge of Blackmailing Millionaire John R. Platt.

New York, June 11.—Mrs. Hannah Elias, the Negro woman who was arrested and charged with obtaining nearly $700,000 from Millionaire John R. Platt, was discharged Tuesday afternoon on motion of Assistant District Attorney Rand, acting for District Attorney Jerome, at the conclusion of the testimony of John R. Platt, 85 years old, the millionaire, who caused her arrest for extortion. Mr. Platt proved a disappointing witness. To questions bearing directly on the charges on which the woman's arrest was made he answered repeatedly "I don't know." His helplessness and his apparently unreliable memory surprised those who attended his examination. He did not remember whether he had given Mrs. Elias large sums of money during the past ten years, as charged, and did not remember signing certain of the papers in connection with his charges against her. The ordeal was a trying one for the aged man and his replies became scarcely audible toward the last. As soon as he had left the witness chair Assistant District Attorney Rand said:

"Your honor, I think the parties to this miserable scandal ought to be allowed to stew in their own grease. There is no evidence before you that will possibly serve to hold this woman on a charge of extortion. I recommend that she be discharged."

The magistrate thereupon discharged the woman. Immediately afterward Mrs. Elias was rearrested on a writ in the civil suit originally brought against her by Mr. Platt to recover $685,000. She was released a few minutes later on $20,000 bail and was escorted by detectives through the crowded corridors of the criminal courts building to the street, where her carriage was waiting. Several thousand persons, among them hundreds of Negroes, attracted by the case, thronged the building and stood crowded in the streets outside.

When Mr. Platt, feeble and trembling and apparently dazed, was helped out of the building, the crowd hooted and hissed.

Mrs. Elias said Friday night that she did not know Andrew H. Green, who was murdered some time ago by a Negro admirer of the woman, and had never heard of him up to the time of his death.

"I absolutely exonerate his name and I am exceedingly sorry that he met so untimely a fate through the fault of another man," she added.

She also declared that she had no charges to make against any millionaires and that there will be no further sensational charges made against her by Mr. Platt. Washington Brauns, her counsel, who was present when this statement was made, added that there was no foundation for the assertion that Mrs. Elias had been blackmailed by a physician and a lawyer and that Mrs. Mrs. Elias would not take the initiative in any legal proceedings growing out of the case against her.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Washington, June 11.—Following a luncheon was a reception at the white house Friday afternoon in honor of the Philippine commissioners. The Marine band played during the reception.

Handsome Table Cover.

A handsome table cover to be used for a dinner party has a border of heavy, hand-made lace, imported, of course, with the hostess' monogram in gold bullion in each end of the centerpiece, one of those long squares of Turkish embroidery in gold on a white ground of coarse meshed linen.—Boston Globe.

HAS TRIED BOTH.

Travel for Health Vs. Dieting.

A man who was sent to Europe for his health and finally found cure in a little change in his diet says:

"I was troubled with dyspepsia for five years and two doctors here in Kenosha that treated me for over a year both told me there was no help for me. Then I had an expert from Chicago, but still received no relief; then I followed another expert from Chicago who came to our house two times a month for four months. He gave me up like all the others and told me to take a trip across the ocean, which I did in the year 1899 and came home about as bad as when I started. The doctors told me my stomach lining was full of sores. Then I began to study my own case and learned of the diet recommended by the Postum Cereal Co., so I gave up coffee, pork and all greasy foods and began using Postum Food Coffee. Gradually I got better and better until I am well now as I ever was in my younger days, have no trouble and eat anything fit to eat.

"Sometimes away from home I am persuaded to drink coffee, but I only take a sip of it, for it tastes bitter and disagreeable to me, but the longer I use Postum the better I like it and the better I feel. I could say a great deal more of my experience with Postum, but think this will give everyone a good idea of what leaving off coffee and using Postum can do." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

FEDERAL SOLDIERS.

Organized Labor Wants Them Sent to Colorado.

A General Committee Was Appointed By the Federation of Labor Whose Duty It Shall Be To Procure Legal Advice.

Cripple Creek, Col., June 10.—"Death to unionism in the Cripple Creek district" is the new slogan of the Citizens' Alliance which has sent a decree broadcast that every person connected with any union here must either sever his or her connection with such organization or leave the district.

Tyson S. Dines, a Denver attorney, and one of the executors of the Stratton estate, is here in conference with Citizens' Alliance leaders and it is announced that he is preparing a form which will be presented to every merchant and business man and other employers of labor in the entire district, pledging them not to employ any person who is affiliated with a labor union.

No person who works for a living will be exempt, and the absolute annihilation of unionism in this county is predicted by members of the Citizens' Alliance and the Mine Owners' association. This is considered the most drastic step yet taken by the alliance since it secured the upper hold in the district and its enforcement will affect 2,000 men and women now affiliated with the various unions.

Victor, Col., June 9.—A mob visited the office of the Victor Record Wednesday night and wrecked the place. They smashed the telephone and a typewriter. When their work of ruin was completed they marched the Record employes out on the sidewalk and told them to get out of town.

Victor, Col., June 10.—Adjt. Gen. Sherman M. Bell, commander of the Teller county military district, Thursday ordered the Portland mine, which employs union men, closed down.

The Portland is the only large mine in the district that has continued in operation since the explosion at Independence on Monday which killed or maimed more than 20 non-union miners. The Portland Gold Mining Co., through its president and manager, James F. Burns, who is not a member of the Cripple Creek district Mine Owners' association, conceded the demands of the union when the strike was inaugurated last August, and has steadily given employment to about 500 men.

The commission appointed by Gen. Bell to inquire into the records of the miners under arrest reported to him Thursday a list of 97 union miners with the recommendation that they be deported. Gen. Bell accepted their report and announced that the men would be sent out of Teller county as soon as a special train crew could be arranged for.

Denver, Col., June 11.—The executive board of the Western Federation of Miners decided Friday to appeal to President Roosevelt to investigate the conditions in Colorado. Secretary W. D. Haywood was instructed to send the following telegram:

"Hon Theodore Roosevelt, Washington, D. C.: A duty devolves on you as president of the United States to investigate the terrible crimes that are being perpetrated in Colorado in the name of law and order. We will render every possible assistance to the proper authorities in such investigation to the end that the people of the country may realize the outrages that are being inflicted on innocent persons by those in temporary official power. (Signed) W. D. Haywood, Secretary."

It was further decided that a history of the labor troubles in Colorado should be taken to Washington by an emissary and placed in the president's hands.

It was also voted to appeal President Moyer's habeas corpus case to the United States supreme court.

The following Teller county officials are exiles from their homes and will not return to Cripple Creek while the military is in control, owing to reports that the citizens' committee which is co-operating with the military, intended to force them to resign their offices:

District Judge W. P. Seeds, County Judge A. P. Frost, County Assessor P. J. Devault, County Treasurer D. J. McNeill, County Clerk F. P. Mannix. All these officials except Judge Seeds are in Denver.

Cripple Creek, Col., June 11.—The woman's auxiliary of the miners' union has been forbidden by the military authorities to hold meetings.

Joseph Hamilton, chairman of the democratic county central committee, was called before the citizens' deputation committee Friday and asked concerning his sympathy with unionism. Mr. Hamilton acknowledged that he believed in unions and he was told that he must leave the camp within the next four days. He was allowed this reprieve because of his standing in the community and because he was a member of the masonic fraternity. Mr. Hamilton was one of the delegates from this county to the recent state convention at Pueblo.

The committee having in charge the petition being circulated among the merchants and business men pledging themselves not to employ union labor, ordered the expunging of the American Federation of Labor from the list of objectionable unions, because the printers, pressmen, stereotypers and newspaper writers are affiliated with that body, and to place the federation under the ban would necessarily involve the suspension of the Cripple Creek Times and the Evening Star, which employ union forces.

Colorado Springs, Col., June 11.—Acting under the orders of Adjt. Gen. Bell, of the state national guard, a special train was made up shortly after noon Friday at Victor for the deportation of 76 union miners. The train was composed of a common baggage car and two day coaches. Almost immediately the work of loading the men began. They were marched to the train between heavy lines of military and deputies. A crowd of fully 1,000 people had collected to see the men placed on board. Among the spectators were wives and sisters, fathers and mothers of the deported men and the scenes were very affecting. Mothers, sisters and sweethearts cried good-bye and tried to push through the lines for a parting handshake.

Chicago, June 13.—Organized labor in Chicago Sunday, through its central body, the Federation of Labor, passed a resolution appealing to President Roosevelt to send federal troops to Colorado to restore order in the Cripple Creek district. The resolution, which declares that the lives of the miners are in danger under present conditions, was mailed to President Roosevelt.

In pursuance to another set of resolutions adopted by the federation a telegram was sent to President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, Sunday night suggesting that he confer with labor leaders throughout the country for the purpose of calling a general meeting to consider the Colorado situation. A general committee was also appointed by the federation whose duty it shall be to procure legal advice and take whatever action it may deem proper to aid the Colorado miners.

Kansas City, June 13.—The industrial council of this city, which claims to represent 25,000 union men, at a meeting Sunday adopted resolutions asking President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, to call a meeting of the executive board of that organization for the purpose of devising means to settle the Colorado labor troubles.

Telegrams were sent to President Roosevelt asking him to investigate and to Gov. Peabody, condemning his actions by the orders of the industrial council. Mother Jones addressed Sunday's meeting, describing conditions in Colorado.

Following is the text of the telegram to Gov. Peabody: "The industrial council of Kansas City, Mo., in regular session assembled, condemns your action as un-American, uncivilized and barbarous in the extreme, in your treatment toward working men and women of Colorado. For such acts Russia in her darkest ages would blush with shame."

Wallace, Ida., June 13.—A riot occurred on the Northern Pacific passenger train near Burke Saturday night between union miners from the Hercules mine and non-union men from the properties of the Federal Mining and Smelting Co. No one was killed, but several on each side were badly injured. The trouble was the outgrowth of an argument over the Cripple Creek explosion, in which two former Coeur d'Alene miners were killed and several injured.

A NEW MINING CAMP.

One Will Be Opened in New Mexico to Receive Deported Miners.

Denver, Col., June 13.—A new mining camp will be opened in New Mexico, according to the Post, to receive the deported union miners from Cripple Creek. The Western Federation of Miners will work the claims on a co-operative basis, and will have entire jurisdiction over their development. Provision will be made by the federation for all deported miners, and to this end a carload of supplies will be sent to the new camp immediately as a starter. The camp will be located near Tres Piedras, which is 20 miles south of the Colorado line, on the line of the Denver & Rio Grande. There is a district ten miles square of virgin ore, and the work of mining will be parcelled out to the union miners. They will work on the co-operative plan, but the miners will be supported by the federation while prospecting. According to the story, the idea of a co-operative union camp was suggested to Secretary Haywood, of the federation, by A. Royal, president of the Belle Royal Mining and Milling Co., of Tres Piedras, which company owns 80 acres in the district. This property will be purchased by the federation for initial operations.

The particularly attractive feature of the proposition to send the exiled men to New Mexico was that there they would be amenable to federal law only.

Tokio, June 13.—Rr. Adm. Togo reports that on Tuesday a part of the fleet bombarded the west coast of the Liao Tung peninsula near Kai Chau and drove back a military train that was approaching southward. No trains have been seen since. The enemy was driving in troops and throwing up works, evidently expecting a landing of the Japanese on that point and making all preparations to prevent it. Small gunboats sent close in by Rr. Adm. Togo bombarded the Russians at work and it is believed caused considerable damage.

The military commission assigned to bury the Russian dead in the battle of Nan Shan hill at Kin Chou, May 26, presented its final report Sunday. It was found that 10 Russian officers and 664 men who fell in the battle had been carefully buried and 30 men were buried by the outposts, making the total number of killed left behind by the Russians 704.

A large Japanese force moved out in the morning along the Feng Wang Cheng road. The Russians had a force strongly posted in a ravine 30 miles southwest of Hai Cheng. The Japanese were preceded by two battalions who walked into the Russian ambuscade. They received a murderous rifle and artillery fire at close range and were wiped out, only one or two escaping.

The main Japanese force, which was greatly superior to the Russian force, tried to outflank the Russians, who drew off without losing a man. The Japanese closing in found the ravine vacant, save for their own dead.

Chicago, June 13.—In order to free themselves from the yoke of sympathetic strikes, which their leaders have determined menace their progress, all the union butchers affiliated with the Chicago Packing Trades Council withdrew from that body Sunday. The butchers who belong to the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America number about 22,000 men in the Chicago packing houses alone.

They were the originators of the packing trades' council, which was made up not of the butcher workmen alone, but of all the other trades in the yards.

The packing trades council passed out of existence at a meeting Sunday when the officers and representatives of the 32 butcher workmen's local unions announced the decision of the organizations to withdraw and form an exclusive central body of their own. The unskilled trades and trades in the former council not affiliated in any direct way with the butcher workmen are thus left to their own resources and will be without the assistance of the butchers who form the bone and sinew of the union organization at the stock yards, in negotiating future contracts or settling future disputes with the packers.

Lee, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans' association, is among the early arrivals, the demonstration at his reception being notable.

INTERESTING STATE NEWS.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Gov. Beckham Was Elected As Temporary Chairman.

Louisville, Ky., June 9.—What promised to be a bitter contest for control of the state organization came up in the democratic state convention, which met here Wednesday. The result of the first struggle, the election of a temporary chairman, was a decisive victory for the administration forces, led by Gov. Beckham. Gov. Beckham was elected temporary chairman by a vote of 817 to 322 over Judge Frank Peake, of Shelby county. The fight against the administration was led by Senator J. C. S. Blackburn, assisted by Senator McCreary and Congressman D. H. Smith.

The work of organizing the committees was rapidly proceeded with and the temporary organization having been completed, the convention took recess until 7:30 o'clock.

The resolutions condemn the so-called "unnecessary and unjust system of federal taxation maintained by the republican administration" and demand a revision of the tariff in a conservative spirit. The increase of expenditures of the federal government under republican rule is condemned and what is termed "the encroachments by the president upon the constitution" are denounced. The resolutions further favor regulation of trusts and recommend a thorough investigation of all federal departments on the ground that the refusal of the republicans to permit further investigation of the post office department suggests hidden corruption. The course of Gov. Durbin, of Indiana, in "refusing to surrender on requisition from the governor of Kentucky the persons of William S. Taylor and Charles Finley, fugitives from justice, charged with the murder of William Goebel," is denounced as a violation of the constitution.

The resolutions call for an uninstructed delegation to the national convention but the delegates are required to vote as a unit.

At the evening session the following were selected for delegates to the national convention: J. C. W. Beckham, J. C. S. Blackburn, James B. McCreary and Ollie M. James.

Electors at large: Claude M. Thomas and Lillard H. Carter.

The wife has not heard from him in two years. She says he had his clothes made by Jenne & Doll while here, and she thinks he is the man found Thursday. BASE BALL.

The Boones were defeated at Home City, last Saturday 4 to 2. Hughes and Hogan did fine battery work. With 6 hits to their credit while their opponents had but 3, it is evident the Boones were deficient in their base running. Houston, of Bullittsville and Fox, of Taylorport, were in the Boones' line-up, and did splendid work. The score by innings is as follows:

Struck out—Hughes, 8; McBriar, 6. Hits, Boones, 8; Home City, 3.

The Grays of this place, and the Eurekas, of Erlanger, played an exciting 11 inning game here last Saturday afternoon. Bentler's delivery was a puzzle to the Grays until the 5th inning when they solved it and made six runs. Slater was then put in and gave the sluggers considerable trouble. When the Grays went to the bat in the 11th the Eurekas led them by one run. They managed to fill all the bases when Slater lost his control and fenced in the run so much desired by the Grays and which gave them the Eureka scalps. Had Slater gone to the slab one inning sooner the result might have been different. Bentler's work for five innings was all that could be desired. McKim and Hensley were the Gray's battery and put up a good game. McKim pitching a steady ball the entire game. Following is the score:

Struck out—McKim, 12; Bentler and Slater, 8. Hits, Grays, 15; Eurekas, 6.

The Grays will play a strong nine from Belleview, at the park here next Saturday. Game called at 1:30 p. m.

The greatest meeting in the history of Viola Lodge I. O. O. F., was that of last Saturday night, when there was work in every degree, and lasted until Sunday morning's dawn. About 40 members of Nathan Stewart lodge, of Sedamsville, were present, among them the champion degree team of Hamilton county, Ohio, which did the work in a magnificent manner. Every movement of the team was executed in perfect time, and the lessons inculcated in each degree were brought out in the most effective manner and made a lasting impression upon the large number of brothers who witnessed the work. At midnight the large crowd partook of a bountiful lunch which was prepared by the ladies, wives of the local members, and served in the town hall. Taking all in all the meeting Saturday night was simply grand from every standpoint. Of the charter members of the lodge, which was instituted December 13, 1883, the names of only two, those of F. P. Walton and the writer, remain on its roll of membership. They were present at last Saturday night's meeting, and agreed that that one meeting fully repaid them for remaining faithful to the order.

Thomas Adams, of Bullittsville, and Clyde Barker and another young man, named Wilson, all three showed up sick one morning last week. They were complaining exactly alike, and for a few hours were very sick, having all the symptoms of poison, and a doctor so pronounced it. They were building wire fence the day before and drank water from a pool in which they noticed roots, and which they now suppose were those of a poison ivy growing near thereto. Mr. Adams was in town, last Saturday, and was yet quite weak from the attack.

Scarcely a week passes but what there are visitors in Burlington from a distance, and of whose presence the RECORDER knows not of until after publication day, and then it is thought strange that there visit to the town was not mentioned. It is impossible to know of every visitor here, unless those who entertain send in the names of their guests. The RECORDER devotes a column to personal notices, and always mentions those who visit the town if it is aware of the fact. Send in the names of your visitors.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIX. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22, 1904. NO. 36.

County Correspondence.

PETERSBURG.

June 18.—Early last Wednesday morning we left for Georgetown via the Q. & C. R. R., as a delegate to the District Conference of the M. E. Church, which was being held in that city. We passed through Boone, a portion of Kenton, the entire length of Grant, and almost the entire length of Scott counties, and nowhere did the crops look any better than they did in Boone. The best corn we saw was in Walton. In Scott county some of the wheat had begun to ripen, oats and meadows looked short, while very few fields of tobacco had been set, but on our return the growers were very busy as a good rain had fallen. It was then that we saw the first machine for setting tobacco in operation. It is operated by two mules and a boy on the same order of a 2 horse corn drill, and sets the plants as fast as the team can walk. If necessary it will make the season, and can set as much as 10 acres a day. This is a busy week with the farmers in the Blue Grass, as they are now gathering their blue grass seed. In this work hundreds of Georgetown and Lexington negroes are engaged.

Upon our arrival at Georgetown the committee assigned us to the Lancaster Hotel in company with Dr. Waightman, proprietor and editor of the Central Methodist, and Rev. H. E. Boswell, of the Methodist Orphans' Home, Louisville. We found them very interesting and congenial companions.

Every circuit in the Frankfort District was represented at the conference which was held in the Baptist church building as the Methodists have no house of worship in Georgetown, although in the next ten months they will have completed a $15,000 church building.

Georgetown is a busy city of 4,500 people, 2,000 of whom are negroes, and about three out of every four persons you meet on the streets are negroes, who stand around in groups and loll about the steps of the public buildings.

The court house is no larger than ours, but the city hall is a substantial stone structure. All the business houses on the main street are of brick and stone and three stories high. The city has electric lights and street cars, and a traction road to Lexington, that hulls freight as well as passengers. Some of the finest residences in the State are in Georgetown, and are not surpassed by those of Clifton and Walnut Hills, the wealthy Cincinnati suburbs. The Baptists have there an imposing college building and a Home for Old People, besides Rucker Hall, a boarding place for students.

We saw I. G. Hamilton, an old Boone boy at a distance, but failed to find him in his office when we called. James B. Finnell is another Boone boy and has made a fortune in Georgetown practicing law.

We would christian Georgetown the Queen of the Blue Grass, where gallant men and handsome ladies abound, and where negroes are as thick as flies around a leaky molasses barrel in the month of August. J. B. TOLIN.

According to the last report from Rev. Selby his sister was no better.

A son of Robert Boland, of New Orleans, was visiting relatives here last week.

Miss Lou W. Allen will spend her vacation of two weeks or more at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Grant, near Split Rock.

Dr. W. E. Grant, Dean of Louisville Dental College, with his bride, was a guest of his brother, Dr. J. M. Grant and family, last week. He came to see his father, who is in feeble health.

It is rumored that the Odd-Fellows' lodge at this place contemplates building a new hall shortly. Another story added to Gordon's hall would make it one of the best buildings of the kind in Northern Kentucky.

We looked in on Jim Gillespie, of Rising Sun, while he was in court at Lawrenceburg, one day last week. He don't look like a bad man, and if he is there is not enough evidence to convict him of the crime with which he stands charged.

A. B. Rouse would make a splendid member of the next legislature. Let's push him along. Mr. Kennedy has made a splendid member, but give the boys a show. N. E. Riddell is popular down this way, and the boys will call him for an important office in the next county race.

Miss Jean Berkshire, who has been visiting her brother Frank and wife, in New York City, for the last 9 months, has returned home much to the gratification of her many friends. While gone she visited Washington and Baltimore. She is glad to be back at the old Kentucky home once more.

The local ball team defeated a strong team from Lawrenceburg hear this afternoon. It was an exciting fight to a finish, the score being 2 to 1 against the home boys when they came in to bat their ninth and last time, but it did not take them long to lead the desired 2 runs and win the game 3 to 2. Our boys have lost only two games this season.

The "annual good time" was celebrated again on the 12th inst., at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. James Jarrell, and the usual good time and good dinner were enjoyed by about 40 guests. The birth days of Mr. Jarrell and six of his relatives come very close together, and for several years they have celebrated them on the nearest Sunday. Dinner was served in the yard under the protecting shade of the apple park. The call to dinner was answered with enthusiasm, but "Uncle Jimmie" would permit no one to eat until he had lined them up and had Dr. Weindel photograph the group. At 4:30 p. m. ice cream and cake were served, after which all retired to the parlor, where some excellent music was rendered by Misses Edith Ramsey, of Covington, and Katie Drake. Then Mr. John Sebree sang the parting song, "God be with you until we meet again." Mrs. Jarrell was then congratulated upon the excellent dinner she prepared for the occasion, and the guests took their departure. Those present were Mrs. W. S. Ramsey and daughter, Edith, of Covington; Mr. Dawson and family, of Lawrenceburg; Wm. Sebree and family, of Bellevue; John Jarrell and family, Louis Jarrell and family, B. F. Akin, wife and daughter; Reuben Akin, Miss Artie Sullivan, Frank Klopp and family, Stephen Hynes and Miss Stella Weaver, of Lawrenceburg; Burges Hynes, Richard McWethy and many others.

Sunday was K. of P. and I. O. O. F. memorial day, and quite a crowd witnessed the services, which were conducted by Dr. J. M. Grant. The benediction was pronounced by Capt. T. B. Mathews. Flower children decorated the graves of departed brothers.

Miss Maggie Harmon, aged 23, and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Harmon, died of consumption on the 7th inst. She was sick only four months. She died in hope of a life beyond the grave. The funeral was preached by Rev. Davis, of Anrora, after which the remains were interred in the cemetery here. Mr. and Mrs. Harmon are very thankful to the people of this community for their kindness during the sickness and death of their daughter.

We loved her, yes, we loved her,
But Jesus loved her more,
And He has sweetly called her,
To yonder shining shore.

The golden gates were opened,
A gentle voice said, "come!"
And with farewells unspoken,
She calmly entered home.

The gates will be opened at 7:30 p. m., and a collection of 10 cents will be taken at the gates to supply the park with seats. Hons. D. E. Castleman and N. S. Triumphs of Modern Surgery.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principal. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by all Druggists.

I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy he used as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say under oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails. Sold by all Druggists.

A SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

Papers Served on Gov. Peabody and Others.

Portland Mining Co. Wants $100,000 For Closing Their Mine and Asks That the Military Be Restrained From Interference.

St. Louis Mo., June 16.—United States Circuit Judge A. M. Thayer, sitting in chambers, has granted a writ of habeas corpus to have Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, brought before him on July 5. The writ is directed against Gov. J. H. Peabody, of Colorado; Adjt. Gen. Bell and Buckley Wells, another Colorado official.

The three have been cited to appear with Moyer and show cause why Moyer is being restrained from his liberty by being confined in a stockade, or better known as "the bull pen," at Telluride, Col.

Telluride, Col., June 16.—Capt. Wells delivered President Moyer, of the Western Federation of Miners, who has been in the military bull pen here for several months, to the sheriff of San Miguel county at 4:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, in pursuance of telegraphic orders from Adjt. Gen. Bell.

Cripple Creek, Col., June 17.—Assistant District Attorney S. D. Crump Thursday wired Sheriff Rutan at Telluride to hold Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, until K. C. Sterling, a secret service agent of the Mine Owners' association, can bring him to Cripple Creek. Sterling left Thursday afternoon for Telluride. Moyer will be brought here on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace Patrick, charging him with aiding and abetting the murder of Charles McCormack and Melvin Beck, who were blown up in the Vindicator mine by an infernal machine explosion November 1, 1903. The warrant implicates Charles C. Kennison, former president of the Miners' Union No. 40, who was arrested in Denver last Friday.

Victor, Col., June 17.—One hundred and forty-four union miners and their sympathizers have been deported from the Cripple Creek district since Monday, June 6, and about three score are booked for exile.

Denver, Col., June 18.—Papers in the $100,000 damage suit in the Portland Gold Mining Co. against Gov. James H. Peabody, Adjt. Gen. Sherman M. Bell, C. C. Hamlin, secretary of the Mine Owners' association, and others connected with that body, as well as Sheriff Edward Bell, of Teller county, and his deputies, who assisted in the closing down of the Portland mine, were served on Gov. Peabody Friday.

Gov. Peabody Friday afternoon received notice that on June 22 application would be made to United States Circuit Judge Amos Thayer, in St. Louis, for an injunction to restrain the governor, the military and all other persons from interfering with the operation of the Portland mine.

Those cited to appear before the federal court at St. Louis are Gov. James H. Peabody, Adjt. Gen. Sherman M. Bell, Sheriff Edward Bell, of Teller county, and the following officers and members of the Cripple Creek District Mine Owners' association: C. C. Hamlin, Judge Colburn, Charles Walden, F. J. Campbell, A. E. Carlton, L. E. Hill and A. T. Holman.

According to the complaint the number of persons employed in the mine was over 500 and these were taken into custody by the authorities and certain ones of them picked out and placed in the bull pen to be deported to the states of Kansas and Mexico. The charge is made that the governor gave tacit consent to the measure when he did not countermand any of the orders issued and carried into effect by Gen. Bell and outside the authority of the governor to carry into effect.

The jurisdiction of the United States court is asked on the grounds that the complainant is a citizen of the state of Iowa and that he has been deprived of his property without due process of law and in violation of the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and fourteenth amendments to the constitution.

The complaint further alleges that the complainant property is decreasing in value from lying idle and asks damages against the defendants in the sum of $100,000.

C. C. Hamlin, who is mentioned as one of the defendants, is the partner of the firm of Gunnell & Hamlin.

James F. Burns, president of the Portland Co., refuses to discuss his plans for publication, but it is reported he has declared to friends his purpose to defray all expenses of suits that may be begun in the federal court against Gov. Peabody and others by Portland miners who were deported from Cripple Creek. Former Gov. Charles S. Thomas, Mr. Burns' counsel, was busily engaged with Mr. Burns Friday in drawing complainants in the Portland Co.'s suit, but he denied all knowledge of suits to be brought by deported miners.

THE ANNUAL REUNION.

The United Confederate Veterans Hold Sessions in Nashville, Tenn.

Nashville, Tenn., June 14.—Nashville is crowded with visitors, veterans and delegates to the 14th annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, which opened officially Tuesday. All day long and far into the night trains were arriving at frequent intervals from all parts of the south bringing the old warriors, their friends, families and sponsors. There are delegations present from Missouri and as far north as Montana.

The Battle Abbey committee met Monday night at the Baptist publication house. The most important matter taken up for consideration was the report of the committee on the Abbey. This will be submitted to the convention for its action. The report of the committee shows that the treasurer has in hand nearly $106,000 in cash. In addition thereto are subscriptions collectible totalling $100,000, making the total money available for the erection of the Abbey $206,000. The committee is trying to raise $300,000, but the work can begin any time now with the money in hand. The exact date for the inauguration of the work, however, has not been decided.

The convention was called to order at noon Tuesday in the tabernacle by Gen. G. W. Gordon, of Memphis, as department commander, and after several welcoming speeches the acting commander-in-chief, Lieut. Gen. Stephen D. Lee, delivered his address.

The committee states that more funds will be raised as soon as possible to establish a complete library of American and especially southern history, which will become a part of the Abbey.

Nashville, Tenn., June 16.—A sweet-voiced young woman of Norfolk, Va., Miss Mary K. Ewell, maid of honor for the south, by her singing of "My Old Kentucky Home" Wednesday won for Louisville the reunion next year of the United Confederate Veterans. It was after the old veterans had chosen Lieut. Gen. Stephen D. Lee as their commander-in-chief and had listened to a stirring speech by Col. Bennett H. Young, of Kentucky, extolling the beauties, capabilities and hospitality of his home city, that Miss Ewell was escorted to the front of the stage. Her voice thrilled the great crowd that filled the tabernacle and the last note of the song had barely left her lips when the convention went wild with shouts of "Louisville," Louisville." Seconding speeches were unnecessary. The choice of the veterans was unanimous. The date will be determined later.

The veterans, in addition to electing officers, disposed of a vast amount of routine business, but did not complete their work and a final session will be held at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The most interesting part of the committee on resolutions' report was the resolution requesting congress to take appropriate action looking to the care and preservation of the graves of the confederate dead now in the various cemeteries in the northern states.

The veterans had their annual parade Thursday morning. The start was made at 10 o'clock. Owing to the increasing infirmities of the old soldiers, the route was almost cut in two by those having the parade in charge.

The most brilliant function of the reunion occurred Wednesday night at the Golf and Country club. It was a reception and ball complimentary to the sponsors and maids of honor by the Sons of Veterans.

Nashville, Tenn., June 16.—At Centennial Park Wednesday the corner stone of a monument to the private soldiers of the confederacy, the tribute of the Nashville veterans to the enlisted men, was laid with impressive ceremonies under the direction of the Masonic fraternity. State Grand Master James L. Sloan presided. The orator of the day was Hon. Henry Watterson, of Louisville, Ky.

THE DERBY TRIAL SPECIAL.

English Lad Won in the Easiest Imaginable Manner.

Caicago, June 16.—In the easiest imaginable manner English Lad, the American Derby favorite, won the Derby Trial Special at Harlem Wednesday, making the balance of the field look cheap. Lonsdale finished second, while Elwood was a close third. The time of 2:08 2-5 for the mile and a quarter was slow, but English Lad could have covered the distance much faster had he been urged.

JAP TRANSPORTS SUNK.

Were Attacked by the Russian War Vessels.

A Regiment of Soldiers Went Down With One of Them—An American Bark Was Stopped and Searched by the Russians.

St. Petersburg, June 17.—Emperor Nicholas has received the following telegram dated June 15 from Gen. Kuropatkin:

"I have received the following dispatch from Lieut. Gen. Baron Stakelberg, dated June 16:

"Yesterday I had intended to attack the enemy's right flank but just as our troops had been assigned for the purpose and were beginning to successfully envelop the enemy's right flank the Japanese in turn attacked my right flank with superior forces and I was compelled to retreat by three roads to the north.

"Our losses are heavy, but they are not yet completely known.

"During the engagement the Third and Fourth batteries of the First artillery brigade were literally cut to pieces by the Japanese shells.

"Of 16 guns, 13 were rendered completely useless and were abandoned.

"The conduct of the troopa was excellent, a large proportion refusing to retire until after they had been repeatedly ordered to do so."

The popular disappointment felt in St. Petersburg over the result of Lieut. Gen. Baron Stakelberg's fight, which it had been hoped for the past 36 hours might turn out to be a victory, is tempered somewhat by the knowledge that the Russian force was overwhelmed by numbers. Gen. Stakelberg does not attempt to conceal the seriousness of his losses, but his report and the report from all other Russian sources agree that the retreat was in no sense a rout.

The fierce character of the fight is made evident by the fact that the Russians were again forced to abandon their guns, thus indicating, as in previous encounters, the superiority of the Japanese artillery.

Tokio, June 20.—The Japanese transport Izumi, which was reported missing a few days ago, was sunk by the Vladivostok fleet of Oshima island last Wednesday morning.

St. Petersburg, June 20.—A dispatch from Mukden says that according to trustworthy advices received there an entire infantry regiment with its commander was sunk in the transports Hitachi and Sado. Nagasaki, June 20.—Three boat loads of survivors of the Japanese transport Izumi, which was sunk by the Russian squadron off Oshima on the morning of June 15, have arrived at Makata. Twenty-two other survivors have landed at Matsuru.

The survivors declare that the Izumi was surrounded at 2 o'clock in the morning of the 15th by Russian ships and that the passengers on board of her were transferred to the Russian armored cruiser Gromobol after which the transport was shelled and sunk.

AN AMERICAN BARK.

The Vessel Stopped and Searched By Russian Cruisers.

London, June 20.—The Daily Mail Monday morning prints the following dispatch from its correspondent at Makodate, Japan:

"The master of the American bark James Johnson, from Shanghai, reports that on the morning of June 18 his ship was stopped by Russian cruisers at the western entrance to the Tsugaru straits and searched. After being detained for two hours the captain was ordered to proceed."

VICIOUS DOGS.

No Mail Delivered Unless They Are Removed.

New York, June 20.—Notice has been served on the owners of vicious dogs that unless the animals are removed at once the post office department will cease to deliver mail to the houses. The notice is the result of the attacks of vicious dogs upon a number of carriers recently. One carrier was entering an areaway with the mail when a terrier sprang at him through the open basement gate. For ten minutes he battled with the animal.

Boys Killed by Lightning.

Chester, Pa., June 20.—Four boys standing under a cherry tree on a farm near Felton, three miles from here, were killed Sunday by a stroke of lightning. The dead: Ross Smith, aged 13; Alexander Fullerton, 13; William Davis, 14; Samuel Clark, 15, colored. The boys took shelter from the storm. Smith, Fullerton and Davis were killed instantly. The colored boy was so badly injured that he died on the way to a hospital.

Russian Loss at Vafangow.

Paris, June 20.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says the total Russian losses at the battle of Vafangow were about 2,000 men, including more than 55 officers. The Russians had 42 battalions engaged against 44 Japanese battalions.

A Chinese Rumor.

Che Foo, June 20.—There is current here a Chinese rumor that the Japanese have captured one of the inner forts at Port Arthur, losing 1,000 men in the engagement. It can not, however, be confirmed.

THE LIQUID FUEL BOARD.

The Navy Department Has Made Public Its Conclusions.

Washington, June 18.—The navy department Friday made public the conclusions of the liquid fuel board of the navy, formed as the result of tests covering a period of 33 months with coal and oil respectively as a navy fuel. In the opinion of the board an intelligent fire room force should find no trouble in burning oil in a uniform manner, and for general purposes on shore high pressure steam was found to be a better medium than air.

The board declares that no fuel oil installation should be permitted for marine purposes which would not permit a return to coal within 24 hours in case of the failure of the oil supply. It says that with the use of oil the forcing of a marine boiler can be more readily accomplished than with the use of coal. The board is of the opinion, however, that no attempt should be made to use oil as auxiliary or supplementary to coal.

GEN. BOBRIKOFF DEAD.

The Governor General Succumbed to Wounds Received By An Assassin.

Helsingfors, Finland, June 18.—The Russian flag at half-mast over the governor's palace Friday morning proclaimed to the people of Helsingfors that Gen. Robrikoff, governor general of Finland, was dead. There was no excitement in the city and no attempt at a demonstration was made. The father, mother, brother and sisters of Schaumann, the assassin of Robrikoff, were arrested and subjected to a searching examination, but late Friday evening they were released and allowed to return to their country home.

How far the Swedish party is implicated in the killing of the governor general has not been established, but the authorities are convinced that Schaumann had accomplices who found in the brooding, half-fanatical student a ready tool.

THE FLOOD IN CUBA.

More Than One Hundred Persons Lost Their Lives.

Santiago de Cuba, June 18.—The recent fall of 14 inches of rain in five hours, accompanying a hurricane, has resulted in the death of more than a hundred persons. The most severe loss was at the village of El Cobre, where about 60 persons were drowned. The river rose instantly, destroying the lower part of the village. Bodies were carried eight miles to the bay. Thirty bodies were recovered. Six persons were drowned at Daiquari, 14 at El Caney and many in the surrounding country. The list is still incomplete. All the bridges at Cobre, several at Daquari and four of the Central railroad and miles of track have been destroyed.

Early Adjournment.

In late years the first session of congress has usually lasted long into the warm weather, even in "presidential" years. The adjournment of the Fifty-eighth congress this year was unusually early. The Eighth congress closed its first session on March 27, 1804, more than a month earlier. But then, a country of 30,000,000 people has more business for its legislators than a country of 5,000,000.—Youth's Companion.

Use of Asphalt.

Asphalt was first used for street pavements in Paris in 1838, and since then the demand for this purpose has warranted an annual production throughout the world of 450,000 to 500,000 metric tons of asphalt and bituminous rock. The consumption in the United States alone in the year 1903 was over 250,000 tons, which is equivalent to more than one-half the average production in the world.—Industrial Journal.

His Graduation Exercises.

You see," he explained, "hit wus dis-away: He started humble—in de chain gang; but, by perseverance en strict attention ter business, he finally graduated ter de fed'ral prison of de United States!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Reclaiming Land.

The island of Nordstrand, the only portion of once fertile North Friesland which is yet unreclaimed, is now to be saved from the sea by the construction of a large dike. The island was first separated from the mainland by a terrific storm in 1634, during which over 6,000 persons were drowned.—Geographical Journal.

FOOD FACTS

What an M. D. Learned.

A prominent physician of Rome, Georgia, went through a food experience which he makes public:

"It was my own experience that first led me to advocate Grape-Nuts food, and I also know from having prescribed it to convalescents and other weak patients that the food is a wonderful rebuilder and restorer of nerve and brain tissue, as well as muscle. It improves the digestion and sick patients always gain just as I did in strength and weight very rapidly.

"I was in such a low state that I had to give up my work entirely and go to the mountains of this state; but two months there did not improve me; in fact I was not quite as well as when I left home. My food absolutely refused to sustain me and it became plain that I must change; then I began to use Grape-Nut food and in two weeks I could walk a mile without the least fatigue and in five weeks returned to my home and practice, taking up hard work again. Since that time I have felt as well and strong as I ever did in my life.

"As a physician who seeks to help all sufferers I consider it a duty to make these facts public." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Trial 10 days on Grape-Nuts when the regular food does not seem to sustain the body will work miracles.

"There's a reason."

ON A STEEP GRADE.

Sixteen Injured, Three Fatally, in a Railway Collision.

The Cars Were New and Were So Constructed As To Make It Almost Impossible To Telescope Them.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 20.—Thundering down a steep grade Sunday, B. & O. passenger train No. 1, westbound, near Vincennes, crashed into an open switch, colliding with a freight train of 30 cars, resulting in the injury to 16 persons, three of whom may die.

Seriously injured: John Eisenhart, 9 years old, with Philadelphia party en route to St. Louis; head badly cut, internally injured; may die. J. L. Witner, of Cincinnati, head cut, internally injured; may die. Ed Mason, Covington, Ky., porter on dining car; internal injuries, and wounded on head; may die.

Severely injured: Miss Maud Steighart, Burlington, Ia., face badly cut; Peter Miller, Cincinnati; Crawford Corner, Elkhart, Ind.; Mrs. W. E. Deler, Pittston, Pa.; Rev. M. M. Porter, Vincennes, Ind.; H. G. H. Humphrey, Gorden, Mo.; Capt. George W. Vandeusen, artillery corps, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Hugh Cox, Washington, Ind.; C. W. Brown, Dallas, Tex.; Chris Walters, engineer passenger train; R. L. Phillips, fireman on passenger train; James Eastridge, fireman on freight train; James Kennedy, engineer freight train. Many others were slightly injured.

Engineer Walters, of the passenger train, estimates that his train was running at the rate of 50 miles an hour when he discovered that the switch was turned. He says he immediately applied the air and jumped from his engine.

The interior of the dining car, which was the most badly damaged, was bespattered with blood and the furniture was a mass of debris.

Vincennes has no hospital, and while the physicians there were administering the first aid to the injured, the wrecking crew hurriedly cleared the track in order that the injured might be taken immediately to St. Louis, where they could receive hospital attention.

An engine was brought from Flora and attached to the passenger train, which proceeded to St. Louis. The cars in the passenger train were new and so constructed as to make it almost impossible to telescope them.

EVACUATION DAY.

President Roosevelt Delivered An Oration at the Celebration.

Philadelphia, June 20.—On the historic spot at Valley Forge where Washington and his "Gallant boys of '76" suffered in order that the United States might become a nation, President Roosevelt delivered a notable address Sunday.

This was "Evacuation day" at Valley Forge, and the anniversary was celebrated appropriately in the little edifice which has been erected on what is to be the site of the Washington Monument church. It was to add to his sympathy and encouragement to the project of marking the spot by a suitable memorial that President Roosevelt made his address.

Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, the attorney general and Mrs. Knox, President Roosevelt drove to Valley Forge from Mr. Knox's country home, Valley Forge farm, to attend divine services at 3:45 p. m. in the Washington Memorial chapel. Several hundred people had assembled at the chapel, but only a part of them could gain entrance as its capacity is very limited. The president and party were seated near the altar, which was simply draped with a silk American flag.

After the simple service of the Episcopal church had been concluded, Rev. Herbert Burk, rector of All Saints church at Norristown, Pa., introduced the president, who made a patriotic address.

Rev. Leighton Coleman, bishop of Delaware, followed the president with a speech in which he elaborated some of the points made by Mr. Roosevelt. Brief addresses were also made by former Attorney General Wayne MacVeagh and Representative Wagner.

From Valley Forge the president and party returned to Attorney General Knox's home.

For the president the day was a busy one. He spent the morning in company with Attorney General Knox, Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Knox, in driving over the ground made historic by Washington and his men. They visited the headquarters of Washington, the president insisting upon paying the small fee which all visitors are charged for viewing the place. The camp ground and battlefield were examined carefully. A visit also was paid to the first house in this country occupied by Audobon, the eminent naturalist.

The night was passed without noteworthy incident at Valley Forge farm.

CONVENTION GOSSIP.

Vice Presidency and the Tariff Plank the Principal Subjects.

Chicago, June 20.—The vice presidency and the tariff plank in the platform were the principal subjects of discussion among the delegates to the republican national convention Sunday and Sunday evening. The state delegations will meet Monday to organize and select members of the various committees and it is expected that declarations will be made on the vice presidency which will determine who will be the candidate.

From present appearances Senator Fairbanks will be the choice, as a sufficient number of leaders have declared for him and announced the probable support of their delegations for him to indicate his selection. The Indiana senator was seen for a few minutes in the corridors of the Auditorium Annex and was warmly greeted by a throng of men who indicated to him their desire to see him named for second place on the ticket. He remained non-committal, as usual, his position being that the nomination can neither be sought nor refused. The knowledge that the senator will not refuse has been communicated to the delegates and has largely increased the prospects of his nomination.

The movement Sunday for Representative Hitt seems to have been participated to some extent by those who felt that Fairbanks should make a declaration. Then again the Illinois men feel that in view of the action of their state convention they must make an earnest effort for Mr. Hitt. It is a fact, however, that the recent illness of Mr. Hitt at Washington has dampened the ardor of his supporters who acknowledge that this will work to his disadvantage.

Two active vice presidential aspirants were about the Auditorium corridors during the evening, John Lee Webster, of Nebraska, and John W. Springer, of Colorado.

Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, arrived with a draft of the platform in his pocket. He has been notified that he will be recognized to move the appointment of the committee on resolutions and this means his selection as chairman of the committee. All interest in the platform centers in the tariff plank and the sentiment is that there will be a straight declaration for protection without promises for future tariff revision or reciprocity. Senator Hanabrough has a draft of a resolution promising both, but it met with little favor among the republican leaders.

Illinois has decided to make an active, aggressive campaign for Hitt for vice president. A caucus was held Sunday afternoon in the state headquarters and a formal plan of campaign in the interest of the Illinois congressman was adopted, after a discussion between the leading men of the delegation, it was arranged that Senator Shelby M. Cullom, of Illinois, should present the namt of Mr. Hitt to the convention and seconding speeches will be arranged for by at least two delegates, one from the Middle Mississippi valley and the other probably from New York.

Washington, June 20.—Congressman Hitt, of Illinois, who is suffering from the effects of an attack of acute indigestion and a severe cold, was better Sunday. He is still confined to his room.

STEAMBOAT BURNED.

One of the Most Appalling Disasters in the History of New York.

MORE THAN 700 LIVES WERE LOST

Most of the Victims Were Women and Children Who Were on a Sunday School Excursion.

About Two Hundred Injured In the Panic Following the Bursting Out of the Flames Are Being Cared For in Hospitals.

New York, June 16.—One of the most appalling disasters in the history of New York, tragic in its immensity, dramatic in its episodes and deeply pathetic in the tender age of most of its victims, took place Wednesday in the East river at the entrance to Long Island sound, within a short distance of the New York shore and within sight of thousands of persons, the majority of whom were powerless to minimize the extent of the catastrophe.

By the burning to the water's edge of the General Slocum, a three-decked excursion steamer, the largest in these waters, more than 700 persons, the majority of whom were women and children, were burned to death or drowned by jumping overboard or by being thrown into the whirlpools by the lurching of the vessel and the frantic rush of the panic-stricken passengers.

Great preparations had been made for the 17th annual excursion of the Sunday-school of St. Mark's German Luthern church, the congregation of which is drawn from the dense population of the German east and west sides and the General Slocum had been chartered to carry the excursionists to Locust Grove, one of the many resorts on Long Island sound.

The fire is said to have broken out in a lunch room on the forward deck through the overturning of a pot of grease. The wind was high and all efforts to subdue the fire were futile.

At 134th street there are several lumber yards and oil tanks, and as Capt. William Van Schaick, in command of the General Slocum, started to turn his vessel towards the shore, there he was warned that it would set fire to the lumber and oil, and so he changed his course for North Brothers island, one of Twin islands near the entrance to the sound, some half mile away, where the boat partially burned, was beached. She sank near this place at 12:25 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, 2 hours and 25 minutes after the fire was first discovered.

In the meantime the passengers had become panic-stricken and those who were not caught up by the flames rushed to the rear of the vessel and hundreds jumped overboard into the swiftly running waters. It is alleged that the life preservers were too securely fastened to their holdings to be available, and stories are told of frantic efforts made by strong men to cut them loose, but even if they could have been torn down they were too high up for the children to reach. It is also alleged that no attempt was made to get out the fire apparatus at the first cry of "fire," though Capt. Van Schaick says that he immediately rang the bells for getting out the apparatus. According to several statements no attempt was made to lower boats or life rafts.

North Brother island, where the vessel was beached, contains a scarlet fever ward. The patients who witnessed the disaster were ordered indoors and the doctors hastened to the rescue of those who had been washed ashore, but some scores of persons died while they were being attended to. Capt. Van Schaick and his two pilots, Edward Van Wart and E. N. Weaver, have been arrested.

New York, June 17.—With unceasing effort, search is going on for the bodies of those who perished Wednesday on the Gen. Slocum. What the list of victims will total scarce one dares venture a guess.

Up to dusk 499 bodies had passed through the morgue and of these more than 300 were identified.

Many persons were injured in the panic that followed the breaking out of flames on the Gen. Slocum and at least 300 persons were taken to the hospitals. Not a death has occurred so far among these and many of them have already been discharged.

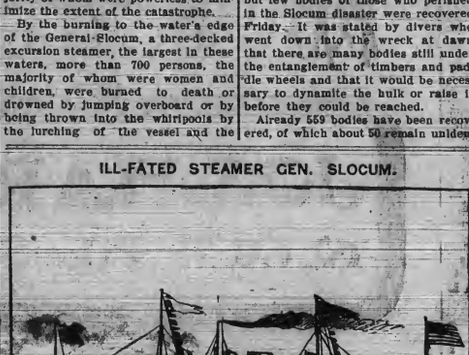
Mayor McClellan Thursday issued a proclamtion to the citizens of New York on the appalling disaster of Wednesday. He appoints a committee to receive contributions to a fund to provide for the fit and proper burial of the dead and for such other relief as may be necessary. As a sign of mourning he ordered the flags of the city hall to be placed at half-mast.

New York, June 18.—Despite the untiring work of the divers and grapplers and the watchfulness of scores of men who have given themselves over to the task of searching for the "missing," but few bodies of those who perished in the Slocum disaster were recovered Friday. It was stated by divers who went down into the wreck at dawn that there are many bodies still under the entanglement of timbers and paddle wheels and that it would be necessary to dynamite the hulk or raise it before they could be reached.

Already 559 bodies have been recovered, of which about 50 remain unidentified. These include 272 children, 243 women and 23 men. Thirteen officers of the St. Mark's church are among the dead, one of them being a woman.

Saturday there were 300 or more funerals, and 32 unrecognizable bodies which are now lying at the morgue were placed each in a separate coffin and in a separate hearse and laid away in the Lutheran cemetery at Middleville, L. I. The city has arranged for their burial, a plot large enough for the interment of 250 bodies having been set aside in this cemetery. All the unknown dead will be placed here side by side.

New York, June 20.—Sunday's harvest of dead from the steamer Gen. Slocum numbered 49, bringing the total number of bodies so far recovered up to 632. Of these 559 have been identified, while about 40 of the victims now lying at the morgue have not been claimed by friend or relative.



During the day 36 bodies were recovered and it was not till after dark when the great majority of the searchers had ceased to work that the other 13 were found. Most of these came up from the bottom and floated into shore. They were discovered by the police, who were left to watch all night.

While the list of missing was cut down somewhat by the identifications made Sunday, 11 new names were added to that roll, thus leaving the total of missing over 200.

Secretary Cortelyou, of the department of commerce and labor, visited the scene of the disaster Sunday. He was accompanied by H. K. Smith, deputy commissioner of corporations of the same department, under whose supervision an investigation will be held. Supervising Inspector General Uhler and Inspector Rodie.

Secretary Cortelyou remained at North Brother island long enough to witness a number of bodies being taken out of the water. He refused to discuss the situation, but Mr. Uhler gave out a statement in which it was explained that the trip was preliminary to the investigation to be made by the federal authorities which. It was promised, would be complete and thorough in every respect.

ILL-FATED STEAMER GEN. SLOCUM.

The General Slocum was built for an excursion boat, and when not chartered for special excursions ran between New York and Rockaway Beach. It was owned by the Knickerbocker Boat company, which also owns the excursion steamer Grand Republic. At yacht races the great size of the boat made it prominent in the fleet of excursion steamers that lined the course. The vessel was launched at Brooklyn in April, 1891. The keel was 235 feet, the deck 250 feet long. Its breadth of hull was 37 feet, overguard, 70 feet. The gross tonnage was 1,284 and the net tonnage 1,013. The boat had two boilers, each 23½ feet long and 9½ feet in diameter, and four furnaces.

STATE NEWS HAPPENINGS.

RIOT IN LOUISVILLE.

Strikers Attempted to Prevent Negro Women From Going to Work.

Lontsville, Ky., June 16.—A riot broke out at the plant of the Continental Tobacco Co. Wednesday, when 200 striking Negro men attempted to prevent 500 Negro women employed at the plant from going to work. Police, commanded by Chief Gunther, quelled the mob, but were compelled to resort to the use of clubs and revolvers. For a time it looked as if serious results would follow, but at 2 o'clock the Negroes had been driven away and the plant surrounded by a squad of police.

The trouble grew out of a strike of 200 Negro men, who demanded an increase of wages. Thomas K. Manson, the superintendent, refused to grant the demand and the men left.

At noon they stationed themselves at the entrances and refused to allow the women, who had gone out, to return to work.

The police were called for and were met by a determined mob of Negroes, who threw stones and clubs at the officers, hitting several. A liveryman at the time drew his revolver when he saw the police being driven back, and tried to fire upon the Negroes.

Additional aid was called and Chief Gunther with a detail went to the scene and the Negroes were finally driven back. None of the patrolmen were seriously injured.

Louisville, Ky., June 17.—Crowds of Negro strikers who gathered around the plant of the Continental Tobacco Co., were dispersed by the police, and there has been no further trouble. Four of Wednesday's rioters were sent to the workhouse for a year in the city court.

JACKSON'S APPOINTMENT.

A Race Prejudice Now Threatens the Organization.

Lexington, Ky., June 17.—Race prejudices have broken out among local republican leaders and which seriously threatens to impair the efficiency of the local organization, through the appointment of a Negro, Edward W. Jackson, as rural mail carrier, for a new route which has been created in this county. The appointment was made Thursday by the fourth assistant postmaster general. It is urged by the white republicans that the route has been created without cause or demand simply to enable the federal office holders in this district to carry out a political agreement between them and Jordan C. Jackson, a leading Negro politician of this city, and who was pushed for delegate at large from this state. The latter is a cousin of the appointee.

The Murderess of John N. Irvin Wounded By a Mob.

Lebanon Junction, Ky., June 16.—A mob of about 30 men went to the lockup early Wednesday morning, battered down the doors and took therefrom Martha Thompson, the Negress who murdered John N. Irvin Tuesday and who was confined without a guard. They placed a rope around her neck and started to lead her out to hang her when she began to fight. Weighing 250 pounds and possessing tremendous strength, she broke the rope and threw aside her captors and ran, when several members of the mob opened fire on her. She fell, wounded several times, and lay where she was until 6 o'clock Wednesday morning, when she was taken to her home and is believed to be dying. Tuesday afternoon Irvin reproved the woman's son for not returning a borrowed pair of pliers. The boy told his mother, who seized a butcher knife and went to a melon patch where Irvin was at work. Creeping up behind as he bent over a vine, she slashed his throat, almost severing his head with one stroke from her powerful arm. She was arrested immediately after and was to have been sent to Shepherdsville for safe keeping, but the officers did not arrive in time.

The Time Extended For Issuing the Mandate.

Frankfort, Ky., June 17.—The court of appeals Thursday extended for 40 days the time for issuing the mandate of the court of appeals in the Jim Howard case. The mandate is due now, and if issued Howard would be brought to the penitentiary at once, but Howard's attorneys expect to have the United States supreme court take jurisdiction in the case in the next 40 days, which would suspend the mandate of the Kentucky court till the supreme court passes finally on the question involved.

Acting Gov. Thorne Thursday pardoned Henry J. Draudt, of Louisville, who was given a two-years' sentence on a charge of embezzlement. He had served over half his term, and the trial judge, commonwealth's attorney and the jury that tried him all signed his pardon petition, as did Mayor Grainger and other officials.

An Early Hearing Is To Be Given the Indicted Officials.

Lexington, Ky., June 18.—Consternation was thrown into local investment company circles Friday, the officers and directors of which are under indictment for embezzlement, by the announcement made by Judge Watts Parker, from the bench of the circuit court, that he would insist upon a trial of these cases during the present term.

BOONE CO. RECORDER
Wednesday, - - June 22, 1904.
W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Please allow me space to tell your readers of my trip to Nashville, Tennessee, to attend the Confederate reunion. I left Covington at 11:20 a. m., on the 13th inst., and was joined by Elijah Parker, and daughter, of Petersburg, at Latonia. We arrived in Nashville at 8:05 next day in company with the Louisville delegation, and received a perfect ovation. We were a guest of H. C. Lassing. Commander-in-Chief Lee was reelected, and resolutions declaring so long as there is a Confederate soldier alive annual reunions shall be held. Louisville was chosen as the place for holding the next reunion. The parade was successfully held on Thursday, on which day it was said 150,000 visitors were in the city. We left Nashville Friday morning and stopped off at Louisville, from where I visited the Confederate Home at Peewee. We were met by Commander W. O. Coleman, of whom we asked the privilege to visit every department of the institution, which was granted without hesitation, and he said I should be his guest, I was introduced to the matron, Mrs. Sirand. Just before roll call I was taken into the dining room, where there were enough tables to seat every soldier who was able to come to his meals. After roll call I went to supper with the officers. After supper I spent the evening among the old soldiers, whom I found well dressed, clean cheerful and perfectly contented and well satisfied with their treatment. Next morning I was accompanied to the commissary by the stewart, where everything was in the very best condition, it being supplied with the best of everything money can buy. The water, fire and bath departments were in excellent condition. Before breakfast I was given an opportunity to view the table, after which I was introduced to the men by Commander Coleman. After breakfast, in company with Miss Florence Baslowe, I drove to the cemetery where arrangements were being made for the exercises in the afternoon. Having returned from the cemetery, Mrs. Girand, one of the grandest working women I ever saw, came for me to visit the rooms, and I went into every living room in the house. Some of them are elegantly furnished by different Chapters of D. C. Every room was in excellent condition, clean and neat. The nurse took me through the hospital, a small building a short distance from the main building. There were about 6 or 7 patients, the rooms clean and neat. I found one old soldier, named Norval, and from Covington. I did not know him. He was in camp Douglas with our boys. He is paralyzed and has to use an ea.. trumpet. His wife is with him at present. I found Mr. Parsons in the infirmary. He is feeble but looks well, and has gained about 20 pounds since he left the poor house. He said to me when leaving, "tell the boys that I am well treated as anyone could be."

Now I wish to say to the wives and daughters of the Confederate soldiers of Boone who are always at the front, that I did not see a room in the Home furnished by them, although I saw them that were furnished by chapters, camps and individuals from all over the State. I never expect to go to the Home, but I am always ready to give my mite to our cause. I hope the women of Boone county will take hold of this matter at once. The secretary of the board Capt. See, of Louisville, will be glad to receive from them an order for a room to furnish. Who will be the first to start in the move?

I want to make another appeal to the boys who were always at the front, to fill out their blanks and become members of our camps, as nearly all the boys are members. I want them all. Their wives and daughters should organize at home or somewhere else if not the nearest chapter. I will send blanks out this week to some of the ladies to become members of a chapter. B. F. NORMAN.

THE Republican national ticket will be Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

The wire rope is generally considered a modern invention, but a photograph in the possession of a St. Louis firm shows that it is really a rediscovered lost art. The photograph is of a piece of bronze wire rope nearly fifteen feet long and about one inch in circumference, which has been brought to light by excavations at Pompeii. The rope which is now in the Musio Borbonico at Naples, consists of three strands laid spirally together, each strand being made up of fifteen wires twisted together, and its construction does not therefore differ greatly from that of wire ropes made today. Pompeii was buried 1800 years ago. How long wire ropes had been known then it is impossible to tell, but experts say that judging from the knowledge shown in the construction of the piece found, it had been known for a considerable time.—Republic.

That old gray mule of Tony Bentler's never loses an opportunity to display its utter abhorrence of the local veterinary, L. H. Crisler, its last demonstration along that line being made last Saturday as Doc was passing Tony's place a mile south of town. The old mule was cited by Doc when he was several hundred yards from it, and it was grazing in a most leisurely manner. The Doctor had approached to within a few yards of the animal before it saw him, but when it got the first glimpse of him it began braying with all its might, and with its tail hoisted to a perpendicular position it started at the top of its speed for the uttermost parts of the farm, paying no attention to barbed wire fences or anyother obstruction. This mule undoubtedly knows the veterinary and does not intend to do business with him as long as possible.

BASE BALL.

The Third Infantry ball team of Ft. Thomas, played the Boones here last Saturday afternoon, and the game was about the best ever put up on the local ground. It was in the second inning that the visitors were permitted to make their only run by a series of errors, The Boones were not able to score until the sixth when Clutterbuck got first on an error and was forced to second by H. Kirk who was hit by the pitcher. Shearer's long fly was captured in center field, but Clutterbuck scored. In the eighth inning Hogan got to first when Herbert Kirk did some needed stick work, sending a two bagger to center, when Hogan brought in the winning run.

The game was intensely interesting and one in which the slip of a cog at any time would have given the opposing side the victory. Harry Shearer, of Erlanger, played left field for the Boones and three flies went into that territory, each of which he captured. Elbert Clore, of the Grays, played short and put up an excellent article of ball. The boys were all in good shape and played to win, and the work of the battery, Hughes and Hogan, was especially good.

Base hits—Souther 2, Hogan, H. Kirk, Basson, Burk, Phister.

Two base hits—H. Kirk, Hughes.

Base on balls—Hughes 1.

Hit by pitcher—Hughes 1, Phister 1.

The Bellevue second ball team played the Grays here last Saturday afternoon. The visitors made a very promising start, but in the 5th inning the Grays began doing business with the stick and when the final count was made it showed that Captain Jackson's aggregation had won the game by a score of 17 to 5.

Grays [illegible] 5 2 2 *—17

Bellevue 1 2 0 1 1 0 0 0 0—5

Hits off of McKim 6; off of Dailey 9, Struck out by McKim 7; Dailey 5, Smith 1.

On my way home from Kentucky I traveled through Indiana, Illinois and Missouri. In Indiana crops look bad—wheat thin and grass and oats short, and no corn to be seen. In the eastern part of Illinois the crops are poor, but in the western part of the State crops look well. In Kansas wheat is fine, and prospects for a big crop of grass and oats are good. Wheat harvest will be here in ten days. High water has ruined a great deal of wheat in Kansas. DAVID UTZ.

The Seeking of Jesus

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1904, by J. H. Edson.)

Chicago, Sunday, June 19, 1904.

Text:—"Jesus answered them and said: Verily, verily, I say unto you, ye seek Me, not because ye saw signs, but because ye ate of the loaves, and were filled."—John 6:26.

A FRIEND called on me the other day. I instinctively felt that some matter of special interest and importance to himself had brought him to see me. His manner and the general direction of his conversation strengthened me in my first impression, and ere he had departed I clearly saw the underlying motive of his visit, and what he hoped to accomplish thereby. We all have similar experiences, I think. We are not always able, however, to penetrate to the hidden motives of others and clearly understand the purposes which underly their conduct toward us. Neither is it wise or right that we should be always supposing that others in their relations to us have ulterior motives or selfish ends to serve. But Jesus, who could read the heart and "knew what was in man," always understood the impulses and purposes of the people who drew near unto Him and followed Him. In fact He could read the heart better than man could himself; He could penetrate deeper and understand more clearly the impulses and motives than could man himself; for no man knows himself perfectly, nor is conscious of the many underlying conditions and motives which rule in his life.

AND by His earnest, searching rebuke He at once laid bare the hidden motives which brought them to Him and forcibly suggested the highest desires which should cause one to seek Him. Jesus came not to minister to the physical man, the lower nature, but to the spiritual, the higher, nature—that is, the soul of man. He did not come to establish a bake shop and a soup kitchen, at which the hungry multitudes could be fed. He did not come to make man think of his stomach and to find satisfaction when it was full and to feel no higher impulses or aspirations. He did not come to make this life so attractive and easy, to multiply the comforts of the natural man, by miraculous touch, so that man should forget that he had a soul with deeper needs and higher possibilities. No, He came because the greatest need of man was the soul need, and that He might become for it the Bread of Life that could give life eternal, and satisfy the deepest needs of the soul. Jesus plainly declared His mission in the world when He said: "I came that they may have life, and may have it abundantly." And over and over and over again He stated this fact. And He who came with this supreme purpose; He who lived and suffered and died that this purpose might be accomplished, searcheth the hearts of men to see what it is that draws them unto Him. What is it that the all-penetrating eye of the Lord beholds? What hidden motives, what selfish ends and aims lie buried in the heart, unknown and unobserved by men, but painfully apparent to God? Must not Jesus say over and over again to multitudes in the world to-day who are nominally His followers, who are members of Christian congregations, who share in the activities of the church life: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, ye seek Me, not because ye saw signs, but because ye ate of the loaves and were filled."

LET us analyze this condition a little more carefully and see if we cannot lay bare some of the dangerous possibilities lurking here? What are some of the motives that draw people into the church? I overheard a woman say once that she had united with a certain church because of the social advantages which it gave. In the community where she lived the social life was largely centered in the church, and observing this she sought membership therein that she might eat of the loaves of the social life and be filled. I knew a man at one time who, with business keenness, identified himself with the church because of the trade it would bring him. Having tasted of the patronage of the church people and coveting more of these loaves, he eagerly sought church association and fellowship that he might gain the more. These are the lower and base motives which may tempt people to seek the church. Then there are the desires for the philanthropic and benevolent activities which find expression in the church life. The finer, nobler feelings of the natural man desire a channel through which they may flow, and this feature of the church life appeals strongly to one and he seeks the church for this purpose. And to such Jesus must say: "Ye seek, Me, not because I can give you eternal life, but because ye are interested in a certain worthy and commendable work which gratifies the religious sense and encourages a self-satisfied complacency." Or, education and training may fit for teaching of a large Sunday school class, or the [illegible] society within the church. All the interests and energies [illegible] in the work. There is great [illegible] and satisfaction in the work, [illegible] work is well done, and shows [illegible] results from an educational [illegible] standpoint, but again Jesus [illegible] "Ye seek Me, not because you have been saved and seek to save others, but because you have tasted of the intellectual joys of the natural man and take pride and pleasure in the work." Or, you may be the member of some of the numerous societies, or of the successful Bible class and be drawn and held there by the power of numbers and the association of congenial spirits. The connection may bring self-gratulation, and self-satisfaction, but Jesus may see the real secret of your activity and interest, and be forced to condemn you, because you seek Him not for Himself alone, but for the fellowship and pleasure you find with others. And so with other activities which may engage you in the church. What is the motive which draws and holds you?

AND this analysis of motives must not omit the object and purpose of attendance upon religious meetings. Some gather for the worship of God, but you go for what? To see your neighbor's bonnet; to admire or criticise her new frock; to hear the latest gossip; to plan for the next social event; to talk over some business project with Deacon So-and-So, who lives away over on the other side of town and whom you can conveniently see at meeting and save a trip to his home; to see the girls and smile and motion and whisper to them through meeting and then bow them home, and vice versa, to see the boys and to scandalize the meeting and dishonor God by your frivolous conduct? These and a thousand and one other things take one to meeting. Examine your heart and let the Lord show you what He sees there. The same sorrow which filled His heart as He beheld that great multitude come trailing back to Capernaum to find Him because it had partaken of the loaves for the physical body must move His heart to-day as He sees many, many go to His house under the pretense and guise of worship. What is it takes us to the place where two or three are wont to meet together in the name of Jesus? Are our hearts filled with the purpose to behold His wondrous works in the hearts of men; are we thrilled with the desire to learn of Him and to have sweet communion with Him? While the hymns of praise and worship are being sung, while the prayer is being offered, while the Word of God is being read or expounded by preacher of laymen, and the testimonies, of what are we thinking?

WHY should we seek the Lord? He wanted that restless, unsatisfied multitude that sat upon the grassy hillside and partook of the loaves and fishes which multiplied under his touch to feel a higher need and to realize His power to completely and richly satisfy that need. He wants you and me to think less and less of the creature comforts and more and more of the requirements of the undying soul. He chided the multitude with thinking more of the perishable food which filled their stomachs and eased the pangs of hunger than they did of the mighty power of God which had so miraculously given such inexhaustible store. They had been as blind to the wonderful sign of the Divine presence, as the worm in the black earth is indifferent to the glorious sunset. They had been as content to eat to the full and then hanker after the same generous bounty in the future as is the beast of the field when it gorges to the full and then lies by the carcass ready for the next meal. Jesus wants us to seek Him in order that He may realize in us that for which He came into the world. Let the soul comprehend the glory and majesty and power of the Divine presence, and think you it will grovel among the creature comforts of this life and desire only a full stomach and a full storehouse from which to obtain future supplies? I tell you nay! How pitiable it is to think of one choosing the gaudy bit of glass when right next to it is the sparkling, pure, priceless diamond; think of the folly of one taking the cheap, inartistic chromo, when one might have had the splendid masterpiece of art. And yet this but feebly and insufficiently expresses the folly of one who will not seek the Lord for the best which He has to give.

WHAT was the trouble with that multitude? What is the trouble with multitudes to-day, that they will not seek the Lord for the higher needs of the soul rather than for the needs of the natural man? A few days before the experience set forth in our text, Jesus had been talking with the Jews, many of whom were doubtless among those to whom the rebuke of our text was spoken. At that time He said: "Ye will not come to Me that ye may have life," and this perhaps is the best and most complete explanation which could be offered for their unbelief and hardness of heart. They would come for the loaves and fishes, but they would not come to the Life-Giver that they might obtain the life more abundant. When the reason for unbelief is reduced to its last analysis, it amounts to just this, "Ye will not." The multitude was blind because it would not see; it was indifferent because it would not be quickened by the Divine presence; it was unresponsive to the needs of the soul because it would not turn from the material things of this life. And so it is with people to-day. The will is in the way. It puts first the natural desires, and places second the needs of the soul. The will rules and crowds out the rule of the blessed Christ. There is something appalling in the thought of how near that multitude came to Jesus and yet remained indifferent and unresponsive to the eternal [illegible] so eager to give. And what tragedy it is that souls to-day come near to Jesus, hear His message delivered, receive of His temporal bounty, and still remain dead, when the Divine life of Christ might flow through them if they only would seek Jesus!

LONG ISLAND.

It is quite probable that Long Island presents more exceptional attractions than any other section of the entire country. It attracts the man who is looking for an investment, a farm, a residence or a summer home, and it is a perfect paradise to those who can spend their vacations by the briny deep.

The climatic peculiarities of the Island fit it especially for the raising of vegetables, fruits and flowers, chickens, pigeons and game birds.

The temperature in the summer running from 10 to 15 degrees cooler than the city, or any other section within reasonable distance and in winter, never less than 10 degrees warmer than the same territory. The Island trends almost east and west and therefore lies directly across the path of the prevailing summer winds, which come from the south and bring with them the invigoration and coolness of ocean winds. Its very place in columns giving health statistics of all sections is primarily due to the fact that even in its fertile central section it is everywhere perfectly underdrained by glacial drift and gravel.

Surrounded as it is on three sides by great bodies of water, the north, east and south winds reach it absolutely without chance of contamination—even its western end is isolated by the great broadening of New York Harbor.

Its water supply is notably fine. Springs, brooks and even lakes have their source in the higher parts of the Island, proving conclusively the theory of many geologists that its source of supply is situated high up in the north of Vermont, and that under Long Island flow great subterranean streams similar to those of Yucatan, Mexico; as further proof of this, there are wonderful flowing wells on various parts of the Island many of which have records extending over 35 years and without diminution in the quantity.

Its north shore slopes down from the highest points of Long Island's backbone (as the high range of hills is called) to the beautiful bays and harbors extending the full length of the Sound shore. These slopes are covered with a most thrifty growth of oak, hickory, chestnut, locust, walnut and other deciduous trees and shrubs to the very edge of Long Island Sound.

The central section is fertile farm land with splendid crop records and capable of producing handsome returns on the investment.

Its south shore, in part lying on that inland sea called the Great South Bay, and in part on the Atlantic Ocean, has attractions of tree growth including pine.

The settlements, many of them established 250 years ago, are thoroughly progressive towns and villages, and the school system compares most favorably with that of our great cities in that from the kindergarten to the high school the departments are most proficiently handled.

All portions of the Island are extremely well cared for by transportation facilities. The Long Island railroad system with branches to every section has a train schedule of over 800 trains daily. Many trolley systems are already in operation and others in the course of construction.

Steam boat lines connect with Block Island and the New England coast.

Long Island points fifty miles away from Metropolitan interests are readily accessible, and as quickly reached as the towns and near-by suburbs of the Empire City.

The price for land, either in acreage or house lots, is exceedingly reasonable, in comparison with other territories.

Farms with dwellings and other buildings in excellent condition are available for fruit growing, a business with great possibilities and phenomenal returns. Immense tracts present exceptionally good facilities for cranberry, strawberry and other small fruit culture which are still undeveloped, and Long Island berries command the best market prices. Like its asparagus, cauliflower, Blue Point oysters and Little Neck clams, the Island's newer productions are rapidly taking front rank. Its duck, chicken and pigeon farms are money makers hard to beat.

Its game and fish preserves are known to all true sportsmen who take their recreation, and gain healthful rest with either the rod or gun.

Its waters stand high in the estimation of those who love to be afloat.

The canoeist cannot but enjoy the wonderfully interesting voyage through Rockaway Bay, Great South Bay, Moriches Bay, Peconic and Gardiners Bay a paddle around Plum Island or through the Gut skimming along the high bluffs at the east end of the sound shore, weaving in and out through the harbors and bays at Port Jefferson, Smithtown, Huntington, Cold Spring, Oyster Bay, Hempstead Harbor, Manhassett, Little Neck and Flushing.

In Long Island waters are first tried the great yachts selected to defend the cup, the favorite cruising ground for all sailors from the man with the little cat boat to the owner of the palatial steam yacht—the rendezvous of the members of America's great yacht clubs.

The golf links and tennis courts of the Island are noted abroad as well as in the United States, and on Long Island links are annually played many championship matches.

Its bathing attractions are unlimited; for the lover of still salt water bathing its opportunities are many indeed. To those who prefer invigorating wrestles that the spirt of old ocean brings, from Coney Island to Long Beach, the length of Fire Island and from Good Ground to Montauk Point the places are many from which to choose.

CHANGE IS VERY PROBABLE.

Next House of Representatives Should Be Safely Democratic, for a Number of Reasons.

The fight for the control of the house of representatives of the Fifty-sixth congress is well under way, and the democrats have reason to believe the selection of Mr. W. B. Cowherd as chairman of the congressional committee was a wise one. Mr. Cowherd is a man of fine ability and has the proper temperament for the arduous duties which he has undertaken. Moreover, he finds the situation promising from every point of view.

In this respect, the prospects are quite different from the almost helpless fight of the party two years ago. Many things have happened which will be of advantage to the democrats. In the first place, under the leadership of John Sharp Williams, the minority of the present congress has made plenty of campaign capital for use in this campaign. The republicans for the first time in many years are on the defensive. The republican record is such as to impress upon the people of the country the necessity for a change at Washington. The postal scandals have disgusted the country, unprecedented extravagance has alarmed those who pay the taxes, the exactions of the trusts have impoverished the consumers and the burdens of the tariff have become unbearable.

Many northern people, says the Houston Post, have been affiliating with the republican party in recent years who do not believe in the policies of that party. They had fears, groundless though they were, that bimetallism would result in business depression. Now that this one issue is no longer pending, these former democrats and independents are ready to cooperate with the democratic party once more, and their assistance will be powerful [illegible] to give us many districts which have not been democratic before.

California, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Maryland, New York and New Jersey offer splendid opportunities for democratic effort in the way of winning districts. These states are now represented in the house by 105 republicans and 43 democrats, a republican majority of 62. In the Fifty-third congress, the last controlled by the democrats, these same states were represented in the house by 71 democrats and 53 republicans, a democratic majority of 18.

This all goes to show what a splendid field we have to work in with a united democratic party. And these ten states do not by any means include all the republican districts which may be carried by the democrats this fall. The prospects are that we will not only win much of our old territory back, but get some districts which have not been democratic in many years, or which have never been democratic. It is the splendid opportunity confronting the party which should impel every democrat to cease fighting over past disagreements and make a united effort to carry the election.

PUBLIC IS TO BE FOOLED.

Roosevelt, Cortelyou and Babcock Hatch a Programme to Fool Thoughtless Voters.

Chairman Babcock is evidently willing to do, or have done, anything to win a republican majority of the next house of representatives. The Washington correspondent of the New York Post, Mr. Francis E. Leupp, says:

"The word appears to have gone forth from the big men of the party that there must be no hidebound inhibitions in the platform, and that the stump must be free. . . . So the motto of this campaign, in the congressional districts, will be: 'Every man for himself.' The low tariff member will talk low tariff; the reciprocity advocate will talk reciprocity; the conservative revisionist will talk conservative revision; the standpatter will talk no change at all. It is safe to say that every candidate for congress will press upon his constituents—assuming to speak with the voice of the party—that phase of the question with which he believes the local majority to be most in sympathy."

As Mr. Leupp is a friend of President Roosevelt and therefore certain to be fully advised of the republican plan of campaign, this extraordinary programme of allowing each candidate for congress to take any position on the tariff that will suit the voters of his district has doubtless been agreed to by President Roosevelt and Chairmen Babcock and Cortelyou. Possibly two or three republican candidates for congress may slip in by this good God and good devil policy, but if the voters discover how they are being cheated, how many candidates will be slaughtered? As President Lincoln said, you can fool part of the people all the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all the time.

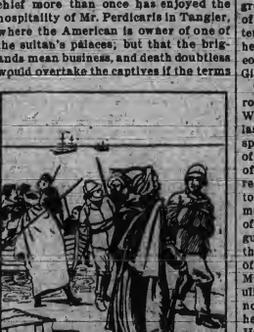
——There is already manifest a disposition on the part of certain eminent members of the G. O. P. to play horse with little Georgie Cortelyou.—St. Paul Globe.

——It's dollars to cents that as soon as Judge Parker begins to talk the republican newspapers will want him to stop.—Buffalo Times.

——Isn't there too much pretense of astonishment that Mr. Roosevelt is honest, "although in politics?" Why shouldn't Mr. Roosevelt be as honest as other people, in politics and out?—Brooklyn Eagle.

——The Pennsylvania railroad is discharging 17,000 men. Wall street has cut out 2,500 employes. This is not a very strong indorsement of the republican "standpat" platform.—Baltimore Sun.

Morocco Bandits and Their Field of Operations



The Marauding Bands of the Desert Are Well Organized and Are Fearless.

MOROCCO and piracy have been associated in our minds ever since school days taught us a little of the history of the Barbary states, brought to us thrilling tales of enslaved American voyagers, of gallant liberating Decatur; but, in our ignorance, we had thought Moorish piracy a thing of the past, not in existence in these modern days of telegraph and railway. However, we are to learn the Moorish pirate and brigand is still a creature of vitality, seemingly as unconquerable as the Berber race itself. At present, news is flashing round the world concerning the captivity of an American citizen, Mr. Ion Perdicaris, in a mountain stronghold in Morocco, and the danger threatening our citizen if the demanded ransom is not forthcoming, the demanded stipulations observed. It is not improbable that America may again take up arms against a Barbary state; at least we have begun making show of disapproval, our war vessels now hovering about that bold and treacherous African coast.

The story of the capture of Mr. Perdicaris and his stepson, Mr. Cromwell Varley, reads like a romance, and we may be pardoned for reviewing it. About half past eight in the evening Mr. Perdicaris was at home with his family in a villa about three miles from Tangier, the diplomatic capital of Morocco, when suddenly the house was surrounded by a body of armed Arabs, who, acting under order of their leader, Raisuli, seized the two men and fled with them to the mountains. Mr. Perdicaris is of Greek origin, but is a naturalized citizen of the United States. He is very wealthy, has been a resident of Tangier for years, is married to an Englishwoman, and his stepson is a British subject—which latter face brings down upon the sultan's head now the wrath of two nations. It is in accordance with the oriental custom, that our consul at Tangier has asked the sultan that he advance money for the ransom demanded, the consuls immediate concern being the safety of the lives of the captives. It is reported the brigand chief more than once has enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. Perdicaris in Tangier, where the American is owner of one of the sultan's palaces; but that the brigands mean business, and death doubtless would overtake the captives if the terms were refused. Mr. Perdicaris is 70 years old, and in poor health.

"IDONIA," HOME OF ION PERDICARIS AT TANGIER.

BOAT LOAD OF ENGLISHMEN CAPTURED BY MOROCCO BANDITS.

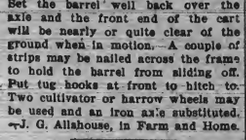
Raisuli is the same bandit that last year kept captive Mr. Walter B. Harris, correspondent of the London times, and foreigners in Morocco attribute the precipitant bold act of brigandage to the indifference shown by the government at the offense, the bandits then going unpunished. But it should be understood, before quick judgment is passed upon the laxness of the powers that be, that brigandage prevails to such an extent in Morocco arrests and punishment of individuals might easily lead to a general civil war, and the overthrow of the government.

And who is this Raisuli that he dare steal citizens of great nations, dictate terms to great nations? One of the oldest and most influential of the Sheredan families therefore not in awe of [illegible] and possibly a [illegible] and has had the distinction of [illegible] Moorish pirate, entered only by tribesmen and captive, a place of intrenchment far from coast and battleship, a retreat most difficult for outsiders to reach in safety.

Morocco has an area of about 219,000 square miles, but all except 83,800 miles is desert. Across the country, from east to west, extend the Atlas mountains. In the plains and mountains dwell the turbulent Berber tribes; in the north the Riffian tribes. The leading races are the Moors, Jews and Berbers; the latter styled "the free people," superior to authority, folk, that do not pay observance to, seem scarcely to be conscious of the existence of, that gentleman of supposedly autocratic power, the sultan of Morocco. Constantly they are getting the sovereign into trouble by reason of their high-handed deeds of robbery and kidnaping, and the sultan is ever mixed up in international broils, is very often called upon to pour into the coffers of the offended goodly thousands. No one nation, however, appears ready to interfere to the extent of assuming control of Morocco's internal affairs, and the country continues a land of political unrest, of lawlessness and also of oppression.

Recently the brigands have been especially bold in their depredations. They cross into the spheres of French and of Spanish influence, seize upon any "Christian"" that may come within their reach. In 1893 the Riffian tribes came in collision with Spain, and the government was forced to pay a large indemnity to the Spanish nation; since the bad feeling then engendered, piracy on the Riff coast has increased. It may be of interest to readers to glance at a few words from an article written for an English magazine by Mr. Perdicaris on "Piracy in Morocco;" the author doubtless not dreaming at the time of writing that some day he himself was to fall a victim to this very piracy. "Riffian mountaineers, men of a race which has, alone, succeeded, alike in the past and present, in maintaining their independence; men who were neither utterly quelled in bygone times by Carthage, Rome nor Goth, and who, to-day, defy the sultan of Morocco as they do the greatest of the European states, not one of whose subjects has penetrated that territory except as slaves or captives held as ransom, although the Bocoys country is situated in the very sight of Gibraltar."

The strife between the sultan of Morocco and the pretender continues. When the excitement was at its height last year, the London Times correspondent, Mr. Harris, spent three weeks of captivity with the mountain rebels, of whom Raisuli is the leader, in the region about Tangier. Raisuli has laid to his account highway robbery, blackmail and murder, and it may be some of the cruelty of which he has been guilty has been dealt out in payment for the years he spent in one of the worst of Morocco's notoriously bad prisons. Mr. Harris describes the brigand, Raisuli, as still young, quite handsome, with no appearance of the ferocity of which he has proved himself capable. Mr. Harris says his captors indignantly refused all offers of ransom for his release, declaring their motive in holding him being not robbery, but their idea that the retention of a foreigner might get them from the government certain much-desired concessions, one of these concessions the liberation of imprisoned brigands. Mr. Harris' freedom was finally purchased by means of a 16 to one ratio, 16 men from the Tangier prison being exchanged for the British subject. The Englishman said the liberated prisoners were in deplorable condition, Morocco's prison methods being the most inhuman, while he himself came from under the brigands' hands in the fine state of health.



As to present-day piracy in the land, Mr. Perdicaris writes that the Bocoyas of Morocco weaken the boasted security of Gibraltar by waylaying the smaller sailing vessels that are unluckily driven their way; shoot down those on board that resist, and carry off captive officers and men remaining. Italian, Portuguese, French, Spanish, all have had to make acquaintance with the tender mercies of the [illegible] Moorish pirate [illegible]

CONVENIENT FARM DEVICE.

For Carrying a Heavy Water Barrel the Cart Here Described Is Just the Thing.

In sections of the west where irrigation is not practicable and trees must be watered the first and sometimes the second year after planting, a device about two-thirds cart and one-third sled is used to draw the water barrel from tree to tree with one horse. The cart is easily and cheaply made. In its construction, as shown in the illustration, are used a three by four inch timber for axle, two long pieces of two by three inch scantling for sides of frame, and two short pieces of the same material for crosspieces, two wooden wheels and a single runner.

DEVICE FOR CARRYING BARREL.

Round down the ends of the three by four inch piece, making about seven inches of each end into a spindle two and one-half inches in diameter.

The length of the axle can be made to suit. Mortise and bolt the long two by three inch pieces on axle and on the two cross-pieces which are placed about 18 inches apart, making a frame two or two and one-half feet wide and six feet long. From a two by eight inch plank cut a runner of proper length to fit between the cross-pieces as illustrated.

Saw two wheels from a tree 14 inches in diameter, with about a five-inch wide face or rim. The wheels are kept in place by a wooden pin or iron bolt in the protruding end of the axle. Set the barrel well back over the axle and the front end of the cart will be nearly or quite clear of the ground when in motion. A couple of strips may be nailed across the frame to hold the barrel from sliding off. Put tug hooks at front to hitch to. Two cultivator or harrow wheels may be used and an iron axle substituted. —J. G. Allahouse, in Farm and Home.

GOOD ROADS ARE WANTED.

Prominent Men from All Sections of the Country Are in Favor of Their Construction.

The adjournment of the international good roads convention at St. Louis was marked by the adoption of resolutions recommending federal and state aid in highway construction. It was plainly the earnest intention of the delegates to make a political issue of "good public roads" and there is a probability that both parties will incorporate appropriate clauses in their platforms.

As many of the speakers said, including a few from other countries, the states on the American continent ought to have the best highways in the world. The material for construction is at hand nearly everywhere; funds are available if federal, state and county authorities will act in concert, and there should be no difficulty in obtaining labor at terms which would be reasonable for this class of work. Public interests would derive benefit from the employment of convicts and vagrants in roadbuilding; and there does not appear any reason why this system should injure any special interests.

Of the many conventions which are scheduled for this year, the good roads convention is to be ranked as one of the most important. There are indications that the officers and committees appointed will hasten the solution of the problem. The purpose is to make a political issue of the good roads question, and it may be said that the purpose is already accomplished. The senators, representatives and governors who were present were among the warmest advocates of good roads. A large majority of them urged federal and state aid.

Both parties should be induced to incorporate definite clauses in their platforms. Both parties should be induced to pledge themselves to the idea of federal cooperation in building interstate highways and state roads. Within the various states both parties should pledge state aid for the construction of state roads, and wherever it is possible, without seriously disturbing labor conditions, the parties should ratify the suggestion for using convicts and vagrants in the work.

The advantages of good public highways are many, as has been frequently mentioned. The crusade should result in the construction throughout the United States of the best public highways in the world.—St. Louis Republic.

When Rye Is a Nuisance.

Rye is an excellent crop for certain use when grown by itself, but when the grain becomes mixed with wheat it is as bad as weeds and it is almost impossible to separate them. This, of course, lowers the quality of the wheat, injuring the price for market and the quality of the flour if taken to the mill. As rye shoots up ahead of the wheat the heads can easily be cut off with a sickle before they ripen. However, wheat should be carefully cleaned before it is sown because the greatest possible care cannot prevent more or less of the rye maturing with the crop of wheat.

TO BE CONSIDERED.

The Digestive Power of a Cow Her Mouth to Be Valued with Her Capacity as Milk Producer.

The power of the cow to take and digest large quantities of food regulates to a considerable degree her value in the dairy. The small eater is of little value, as it is impossible for her to make milk, and force energy and milk out of food that contains too little of the elements for force and milk making. In all cases a large eater is wanted. The large eater will have a depth of body not seen in the small eaters. The breadth of the body will also be more than that of cows that are small producers of milk. In the same connection, we may say that the body must also be long. It is not enough that the cow have a deep and wide paunch if it is short. With these go the strong jaws, which much be strong to masticate the amount of food the animals require to fill the large cavity of the stomach. The greater number of good feeders have marked depth of body, and the ribs are what we call well-sprung. This means that the ribs are not bent down in such a way as to decrease the size of the abdominal cavity. No matter what the temperament of a cow may be, if she has not the power to digest easily a great quantity of food, she will be of little use as a milk producer. One of the best milk cows the writer ever knew had this great power of digesting feed to a remarkable degree. She had powerful jaws and a big paunch. Nothing seemed to be able to put her off her feed. She could fill up with anything and digest it without trouble. One night she broke loose in the stable and got to the place where the different feeds were kept. She sampled everything in sight, and filled up on corn meal, bran, gluten feed and middlings. When the owner opened the door in the morning the cow was standing facing him, with sides bulged out too far to allow her to pass through the door. He said: "You're a dead cow," for he thought that a cow stuffed so full of dry ground feed as she was would certainly die. But the cow seemed to think otherwise, and proceeded to digest her midnight meal as if it had been a common ration for her. The same amount of overfeed would have put most cows out of business, for some time, at least. That digestive ability in a cow is valuable, and where found it should be carefully transmitted by breeding.—Farmers' Review.

AN INEXPENSIVE HAY RACK.

Has Been Used with Success for Many Years in the Eastern and Middle States.

The style of hay and grain rack here illustrated is in common use in many parts of the east and middle states. The two bed pieces of spruce 3x6 inches in size are either 14 or 16 feet long. Five crosspieces 2x6 spruce, or 2x4 hard wood, 3 feet 6 inches long, connect the bed pieces. The side pieces which hold the rack, ten in number, five on a side, are 2 inches thick, 4 feet 2 inches long, and taper from 3 inches wide at one end to 1½ inches at the other. A plank 2x12 runs through the middle of the rack, and these side pieces fit under this, and inside the bed pieces, as shown.

Four boards 6 inches wide are placed on each side to form the rack. The first board rests on the cross pieces, the other three being equal distance apart. Two pieces 2x4, 7 feet 9 inches long, are used, one at each end of the rack, and are bolted to the side arms just beneath the top board. The ladders are made of hard wood and are 6 feet 9 inches long, with two cross pieces. The side arms should be of oak, or other hard wood, but the boards may be of spruce or pine. The ladders are bolted near the ends of the bed pieces, and rest against the cross pieces at the end. By removing the four bolts which hold the end pieces, the rack may be knocked down flat to save room in storage.—Orange Judd Farmer.

PLANTS AROUND CREAMERY

Beauty Is a Power That Speaks Loudly for Love of Cleanliness Within and Without.

Flower beds around the creamery is a subject that has only recently been discussed in the public print. Yet flower beds around the creamery are but an index of a general policy of keeping clean. A man that beautifies the ground of the creamery will also keep the inside clean. It is not usual to see the ground devoted to the creamery filled with all kinds of unsightly objects and find the inside of the creamery a model of neatness. The flower bed may not be enough of an object with the busy men in most of our creameries to induce them to undertake the work of making it, but certainly the grounds around the creamery should be placed in a condition that will make the visitor feel that he is in a place where attention is being paid to looks, as well as to work. There was a time when the old unsightly school building was all that was thought necessary for the place in which our children were to be educated. But that day passed. Beauty was found to be a power. The same is true in every line of human effort. Beauty is a power on the grounds of the cheese factory and creamery, as well as elsewhere.—Farmers' Review.

COLONY OF MANIACS.

Sect of Maine Lunatics Who Believe Human Sacrifices Are Necessary.

Maniacal proceedings are reported among the 500 members of a so-called religious sect living in a colony on Beals island, near Jonesport, Me. One woman who tried to kill her children, after announcing at a revival that God had ordered her to make the sacrifice, has been adjudged insane and taken to the hospital at Bangor. Jonesport deputy sheriffs and citizens have gone to the island to calm the excited inhabitants.

Persons just returned from the scene assert that during the revival the woman who was brought to the hospital called out that the voice of God had told her that a certain dog must be killed. The animal was brought into the meeting house and slain. Then she announced that she had received another Divine command that a cat in the village should be put to death. The execution was carried out, but when she arose a third time and declared she had been commanded to slay her baby a furious discussion was precipitated which broke up the meeting. The authorities heard of the affair and seized the woman before she could carry out the "command." The islanders are destroying their watches, jewelry and other articles of ornament.

TO BE GOOD, EAT APPLES.

Director of Pomology at St. Louis Says Fruit Will Cure Liquor and Tobacco Habits.

Apples are a sure cure for the drink and tobacco habits and for the low morals which lead to crime, says John T. Stenson, director of pomology at the St. Louis world's fair. Pamphlets setting forth the efficiency of apples as a cure of bad habits will be distributed with 1,000,000 apples on Apple day, September 27.

In order to work a sure cure by means of the apple diet, Prof. Stenson advises that when one has a craving for a smoke an apple be substituted; if a drink of liquor is desired take an apple in its place; if there is a tendency to do something desperate, sit down and quietly eat an apple and reflect over it.

Just what medicinal property is contained in the apple to eradicate bad habits Mr. Stenson does not pretend to say.

Senator Cockrell's moral life and his high standard of statesmanship is cited as an incident of the benign influence of apples. It is a well-known fact that the senator makes his lunch off apples every day to the exclusion of all other food, and has kept up this diet for 30 years.

BIGGEST CARVING KNIFE.

Monster Blade Thirty Feet in Length Will Be Exhibited at St. Louis World's Fair.

The biggest carving knife ever manufactured may be seen at the St. Louis world's fair. This monster blade is 30 feet in length and has an edge as sharp as a razor. It is made out of the finest steel and the handle is a masterpiece of the cutler's art, elaborately carved and beautifully polished. It would take a veritable giant to wield a knife like this. The blade is altogether of American manufacture, and it is expected to show for the first time that American cutlery has now reached a point of perfection where it fears no rivalry. The giant carving knife cost several thousand dollars, and special machinery had to be made before its construction could begin. No such knife was ever before manufactured.

PUT SUGAR IN THE SOUP.

Smith Thought It Was Tea; Then He Deliberately Lied Out of It.

There had been a glorious game of golf, followed by a jolly dinner at the club house, relates the Chicago Record-Herald.

Sometimes it is not the correct thing to tell even a truthful story with real names, hence it happens that it was the Joneses who gave the spread and the person that happened in was Smith.

Smith is really a man of parts, wealthy, intelligent and genial, and usually knows "what's what," but he is not given to swell affairs and is not dressy, withal.

A business call had taken Smith to the club house, and Jones, seeing him, called him to the table after the others had begun. Soon as he was seated, being preoccupied by salutations from other persons at the table that he knew, he was absently sweetening the cup at his elbow, when Mrs. Jones, hoping to make the matter quite plain to this plain man, said, shrinkingly:

"Ah—Mr. Smith—er—that is the soup."

"Yes, thank you," Smith nonchalantly replied. "Yes'm, I understand. But I always sweeten my bouillon," with the slightest emphasis on "bouillon." But Smith was at that moment a prevaricator, to put it mildly. He really thought the cup was tea, and probably never tasted sweetened bouillon in his life.

Disappointment.

The young man with the swell suit, slender cane, and jaunty air, was conscious of being observed.

Out of the corner of his eye he saw that the people on the other side of the street were looking at him as he sauntered along.

A sign on a letter box, "Fresh Paint," attracted his attention.

He stopped and looked at it.

But he did not touch it.

He turned, instead, and looked at the people on the other side of the street through his monocle.

Then he resumed his sauntering.

Some men are too contrary to live.—Chicago Tribune.

Strong Language.

Fredericksburg, Ind., June 20.—Rev. Enoch P. Stevens, of this place, uses strong language in speaking of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and he gives good reasons for what he says:—

"I can't praise Dodd's Kidney Pills too much," says Mr. Stevens. "They have done me so much good. I was troubled with my Kidneys so much that I had to get up two or three times in the night, and sometimes in the day when starting to the waterhouse the water would come from me before getting there. Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me entirely.

"I have recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills to many people, and have never yet heard of a failure. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the things for Kidney Disease and Rheumatism."

Wanted All to Know.

Ida—Emily captured that young man at last. I don't think she liked the way the engagement was announced, though.

Mrs. Fairbanks tells how neglect of warning symptoms will soon prostrate a woman. She thinks woman's safeguard is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ignorance and neglect are the cause of untold female suffering, not only with the laws of health but with the chance of a cure. I did not heed the warnings of headaches, organic pains, and general weariness, until I was well nigh prostrated. I knew I had to do something. Happily I did the right thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound faithfully, according to directions, and was rewarded in a few weeks to find that my aches and pains disappeared, and I again felt the glow of health through my body. Since I have been well I have been more careful, I have also advised a number of my sick friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they have never had reason to be sorry. Yours very truly, MRS. MAY FAIRBANKS, 216 South 9th St., Minneapolis, Minn." Triumphs of Modern Surgery.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principal. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail., For sale by all Druggists.

John M. Sleet, an old citizen of this place died on Tuesday of last week, aged 73 years. He was a bachelor, and he and his brother, Richard, who passed away a few months ago lived together, and were very devoted. It was known that they were quite well to do in this world's goods, but a discovery made just before John Sleet's death was a surprire to everybody. When he was taken ill he went to bed with his pants on, and his physician, Dr. Robert Finnell, could not prevail on him to allow them removed. When he became unconscious a short time before his death, the doctor and another person removed the pants, and upon examining them they were found to contain $1,500. The Doctor then suspected that other money might be found in the room, and a search was made, and in an old trunk that was kept beneath the sick man's bed was found $8,000 in gold, besides some currency. Some of the citizens here believe a considerable sum of money that belonged to the above named brothers is buried somewhere in this neighborhood. This belief is based upon the statement of the survivor of two old colored women who lived with them. She says that several years ago the Sleet Bros. gave to the colored woman now deceased a large sum of gold to take care of, and that she sealed it in tin cans and hid it away, and it is this money the whereabouts of which is causing much conjecture on the part of our people.

June 27.—[Special.]—The colored church at this place had a big meeting yesterday, and it was attended by colored people from all over this and Kenton county. Everything passed off quietly until the people began to leave for home, when a negro named Stant Kirtley, who works for Albert Conner, living five miles south of Burlington, and a negro from Walton, named Robinson, stirred up a row, and for what is very uncertain, as everyone who saw the trouble has his version of its origin. The result of the trouble was the shooting of Kirtley by Robinson, and for a while it was thought he was fatally wounded. Dr. Dulany was soon on the scene and discoved on Kirtley's left shoulder where one of Robinson's bullets took effect. The Doctor probed the wound and gave it as his opinion that the ball had ranged downward and lodged in Kirtley's breast. Kirtley was taken to relatives in Burlington that night. The general belief here is that fighting whisky was the cause of tronble. Robinson, who did the shooting, made good his escape by skipping while his revolver was yet smoking.—[When Kirtley reached Burlington Dr. Duncan was called and examined the wound in the shoulder but was unable to trace it, and the opinion is that it is not very serious being only a flesh wound. Kirtley complained of his hip hurting him and an examination revealed a second wound in his hip, the ball having passed nearly through the fleshy part of his thigh. This ball a 32 was removed and is not flattened nor battered in the least. Sheriff Allphin and Deputy Sheriff Hume, were in Walton, Sunday afternoon, and arrested Robinson, whom they met on the pike near Kensington, on his way home. He was brought to Burlington yesterday and executed bond in the sum of $200 to answer to the charge of carrying a pistol. The later developments in the case indicate that Kirtley was the agressor, and that the probability is Robinson will only have to answer to carrying a pistol All the whites in Walton appear to be Robinson's friends and he gave bond without any trouble.

The Lessons of the Fourth

BACK of the tom-toms, gimcracks, fireworks, semi-Mardi Gras features and general fanfaronade attendant upon Fourth of July celebrations is a healthy, deep-seated sentiment, which may well be termed patriotism—a love for and abiding faith in the republic. The young and the thoughtless and lively of all ages must needs find outlet for their enthusiasm in display of flags, roll of the drum and much noise of every kind. But these sound-and-mess-producing ones of this generation know, as well as do the quiet and sedate people, that this is a Nation, to be always spelled with a big N. These lively and thoughtless ones would be first to respond to the call of their country for soldiers, and would fight valiantly beneath the waving folds of Old Glory. All could respond and appreciate, and they bless God for it, the meaning of the Fourth of July—the birthday of a nation, in fullest liberty because of the people and for the people.

The fathers who framed the immortal Declaration of Independence knew their business; that it was serious and momentous, possibly fraught with near death for themselves. "We must all hang together," said one of the signers, meaning that every member should sign the document. "Yes, hang together, or separately," quickly responded the wit among that body. They might have their jokes among themselves, but they well knew that the great undertaking was the most momentous of their lives; it proved to be the grandest of the century. The French revolution, even, was not nearly so important in its results. The France of to-day has scarcely more than one-half the population of the United States, and excels the latter only in art, music and literature. But France was a great nation 1,000 years before Jefferson wrote the lines of the Declaration of Independence. Our fathers were wise men and they knew that in this act they were making history, most colossal history. Hence they were deliberate, earnest and marvelously thorough. As a piece of literature it stands forth a magnificent English classic; its sentiment is lofty and inspiring.

Until this July 4, 1776, the Americans were a body of revolters against constituted authority. They were rebels against their king and traitors to their country. Had the British been successful in the conflict the names of the great leaders of the revolution would scarcely have been named in history.

The Declaration was read 11 days later in New York city, on a spot just in front of the present city hall, before the entire continental army, which received it with wildest enthusiasm; just as did the people at their homes all over the country. It stopped dissension, sealed unity and strengthened all in a glorified purpose to conquer or die.

No wonder that American people are proud of this great work, which converted attainted rebels into dignified revolutionists. The act promoted admiration abroad, just as it excited admiration at home. It paved the way for recognition of this country by France and most effective assistance from the king of that country. The original copy, signed by the members themselves, is preserved with the greatest care at Washington, being justly regarded as one of the most illustrious state documents in all the world. If Magna Charta gave liberty to the English people, the Declaration of Independence assured a grand nation to the world; contributed largely to the overthrow of the French monarchy, and has caused its impress to be felt in every country. Russia itself not excepted.

Hail, then, the anniversary, and welcome. Let it never cease to be commemorated with appropriate ceremonials, this august natal day of a great and prosperous people, which is altogether free. Were it less esteemed, the fact would foretoken a decline of patriotism—a forging of links into a chain for the binding of the limbs of liberty.

Bird of Freedom Celebrates the Fourth

PUBLIC MIND IS CHANGED.

Men and Women Who Love Their Country Now Regard President Roosevelt Askance.

The changed attitude of the American public toward Mr. Theodore Roosevelt is the most patent fact in the present political season. Were the fact not already plain beyond the necessity of proof, any man in 15 minutes might substantiate it for himself by asking questions on the streets. There were plenty of Roosevelt enthusiasts when he stepped into the presidency. Then the grief for McKinley reacted to some extent in the form of a considerable sentiment for the new president. The average man participated in it and the sentiment was laudable. Now it has died out of the public altogether, and a questioner in a crowd will have to canvass for some time to find a genuine pro-Roosevelt expression. He will hear a volume of adverse criticism.

The explanation of the changed mind toward Mr. Roosevelt is simple. The wise skepticism of a practical people came to their rescue. Mr. Roosevelt's fictitious self lost its attractiveness and his magnified propensity for display naturally raised an interrogation as to the reality. The American gaze penetrated his heroic guise, his imposing aspect as the moral censor and his superficial and strenuous statesmanship, to perceive the inner ambition, narrow egotism and blind impetuosity of the real Mr. Roosevelt.

The St. Louis Republic says that not the least of the actual qualities discovered to closer scrutiny was his want of seeing sympathy with the people's motives, with national purposes, with the spirit of American life. Mr. Roosevelt is seen not to be imbued with the traditions which are a part of United States experience. There is in the Roosevelt mind obviously no linking with the past in American history, no deep respect for institutions which have required generations of statesmanly guidance in the upbuilding and in which are bound up the true motives of this country and which point the only true course for its future.

Mr. Roosevelt is not touched with the broad purpose of American development. He lacks the sweeping comprehension which can regard the future as having its foundation in the history which has been left behind. He would disregard the bearings for the nation's course established by past experience. He would swerve them into an "imperialistic" career. Mr. Roosevelt is an experimenter and he bids the country follow him in a career of experimentation. The public mind declines the invitation.

To this mind the Roosevelt personality fairly bulges with dangers. He revels in the thought of war. No man has ever heard from the Roosevelt lips the exclamation that "war is hell." To him war looms as glorious opportunity for the exploitation of personal valor and he constantly preaches knight-errantry to the American soldiery. He frankly despises the soldier who does not love war for its own sake and laments the fact that "there was not enough of the Spanish war to go around." Mr. Roosevelt writes books on war. He thunders war in his presidential messages. War-loving and headstrong, impulsive and impatient of remonstrance, Mr. Roosevelt as the commander-in-chief of the army and navy incarnates a menace which could not but affect the minds of a civilized and Christian people which hate war and hold peace and its normal accompaniments above mere military aggrandizement and foreign conquest.

Mr. Roosevelt has given the people abundant cause to consider the heavy responsibilities of the presidential office—the most important in the world, demanding of its occupant the highest ability, the broadest experience in the world's affairs and a fine discretion. Mr. Roosevelt has demonstrated the necessity for a man of trained wisdom, sober opinions and discriminating conscience to balance the executive action.

Socialism and Protection.

The rapid growth of socialism is directly due to the republican policy of protection and subsidies. It leads men to believe that the government should care for them as it protects the trusts and corporations. Seeing the tariff barons are made rich by special laws why cannot, they ask, all of us have our legal share of the plunder? Instead of numerous trusts, why not have a national trust, in which every one can be a stockholder? Protection thrives on public extravagance and breeds corruption, another argument for socialists. Honest republicans who have been led to believe in protection, should think of the broad road they are driving in and the revolution and destruction of republican government that must be met at the end of their journey. The only salvation for the masses is their being led to believe that "Equality of opportunity for all"—the fundamental doctrine of democracy—will destroy monopoly and give each his share for his labor, without the paralysis of individual effort that socialism would produce.

NO GENUINE PROSECUTION.

Public Has Received No Benefit from the Steps Taken by the Roosevelt Administration.

The exposure of the anthracite coal trust methods, through the investigation by the interstate commerce commission, shows exactly what is claimed by the democrats, that there is a conspiracy in constraint of trade between the railroads and the coal companies. This investigation has not been carried on by the administration, but by a suit of law commenced by a democrat of national reputation, who, when the coal trust refused to exhibit its books, carried the case to the supreme court of the United States, which decided against the trust.

This victory for the people shows what President Roosevelt and the late Attorney General Knox might have done to curb the trusts, if they had in good faith desired to do so. Instead of prosecuting the trusts under the criminal section of the anti-trust law, a half hearted equity proceeding for an injunction against the beef trust is the only legal step that has been taken against the industrial trusts to punish or restrain them.

The beef trust barons have paid no more attention to the injunction than if it had never been issued and still control not only the principal cattle markets but dictate the price of meat. The lower branch of congress, under the whip and spur of popular indignation, ordered the department of commerce and labor to investigate the cattle and beef combines, but although weeks have passed, and no doubt Secretary Cortelyou is ardently pressing the investigation, it does not appear to have had any deterrent effect upon the rapacity of the combine. It may be that the arduous labors of Mr. Cortelyou in aiding President Roosevelt to arrange the details of the republican campaign have prevented either of them from paying much attention to curbing a trust, which even the administration admits is a bad one.

It has been suggested that the reason President Roosevelt has selected Secretary Cortelyou to manage his campaign was that the evidence he has obtained against the trusts could be used as a club to make them "come down" to the great advantage of the republican campaign fund. That would be no new plan, for it is charged that Congressman Babcock threatened the steel trust with antagonistic legislation unless that giant combine made a donation to the campaign fund of 1902, when it was much needed.

If the coal trust, the beef trust or any of the other reputed bad trusts had been persistently proceeded against by the administration and results obtained by forcing them to sell their products at reasonable prices, the suggestion of their connection with the campaign fund in lieu of prosecution would have no weight. But the fact that no trust or combine has been exposed by the administration and that a private citizen has had to bear all the expense of forcing the evidence of the manipulations of the coal trust into public view, certainly allows a sinister construction to be put upon the lack of energy in prosecuting the trusts by President Roosevelt and his department of justice.

PRICE OF MEAT INCREASED.

Packers' Combine Still Defies Each and Every Provision of the Anti-Trust Law.

Dun's Index Numbers of Commodity prices for June 1 show a large decline in dairy and garden produce and a slight decline in clothing. An increase in the price of breadstuffs, meats and other food, metals and miscellaneous items that make up the cost of living. The average decline in prices during the month of May is 1.25 points. In spite of the protestations of the packers' combine that the prices it is charging are reasonable there has been a slight increase of 0.104 in the price of meats on the average during May. As the members of the packers' combine have proceedings pending against them in the supreme court and an injunction was procured by the law department of the government forbidding the beef barons from conspiring in restraint of trade, it would naturally be expected that the price of meats would decrease. But the facts seem to be that while cattle and hogs are lower in price there has been an increase in the price of meat. Perhaps when Secretary Cortelyou has finished his investigation of this trust, that President Roosevelt has decided is the only bad industrial trust, the report will explain how it is that the efforts of the administration to curb it have not succeeded.

The corporations having selected Attorney General Knox as United States senator from Pennsylvania will allow President Roosevelt to select some one in his place, who instead of being a trust lawyer, will be anxious to curb and punish the bad trusts. If President Roosevelt should appoint an attorney general who would carry out the criminal section of the anti-trust law and succeed in placing the beef barons "behind the bars," there is a strong probability that Dun's Index Numbers would soon make a more favorable showing on the price of meats, more nearly in accord with the price paid the farmers for cattle and hogs.

The Christian's Freedom

Chicago, Sunday, June 26, 1904.

"For freedom did Christ set us free; stand fast therefore, and be not entangled again in a yoke of bondage. . . . For ye, brethren, were called for freedom; only use not your freedom for an occasion to the flesh, but through love be servants one to another."—Gal. 5:1, 13.

CALVARY is the Christian's Yorktown. It marks the place where freedom from an oppressive foe was successfully and completely won. We speak of the American's freedom, and think of the Declaration of independence from the rule and possession of England; we think of the heroic struggle which followed, of the brave, precious lives laid upon the altar of a nation's need. We say: "This is what it cost to win our freedom." We speak of the Christian's freedom and think of the bondage into which man was plunged by sin; we think of his hopeless, helpless condition, of his efforts to win his own deliverance, and then we think of the great Deliverer come to win success where man has failed, to give His life that man's life might be redeemed. And we say: "This is the price which has been paid for the Christian's freedom." Freedom is a word not of American coinage, but has an older and a Diviner origin. In the extravagance of enthusiasm we Americans sometimes encourage ourselves in the belief that we were the discoverers of the genuine brand of liberty, and that the soil and climate of the United States afford about the only favorable conditions for the growth of the flower of freedom. But we forget that God established the principle of liberty when He placed man upon the earth, and gave him the freedom of choice of good and evil. Jefferson has said: "The God Who gave us life, gave us liberty at the same time." The foundations of this government are laid upon this underlying principle.

THERE is much that is thought of as liberty, and a great deal which is promulgated as liberty, which is as foreign to real, true liberty as goodness is foreign to the Devil and his angels. Schiller declared that "freedom was only in the land of dreams," because that which was flaunted as freedom was a perversion, was a travesty upon the fair term which proves so attractive to every human being. And because of human frailties and failures, because of selfishness, and prejudice, and ignorance, true freedom is more an ideal than it is a reality. It was for this same reason that Mme. Roland could stop in her march to the scaffold before the statue of Liberty in Paris and apostrophize it with the immortal words: "O, liberty! liberty! what crimes are committed in thy name." True liberty, that liberty in which the spirit of God's righteousness and truth moved, never committed an injustice, never took a life needlessly, never fought a war unnecessarily, never sought unfair advantage or exacted more than its due, and never imposed conditions which were harsh and unreasonable. And yet how much of what man calls liberty and freedom is tinctured by these human and unrighteous elements. Never were words more truly spoken than that liberty is purchased at the price of eternal vigilance. A vigilance which guards the rights of others, as well as protecting those of ourselves. A vigilance which is exercised with as great sincerity and faithfulness in measuring the needs and rights of our neighbor as we use in estimating and demanding what we consider our own rights and needs.

IF we would know what true liberty or freedom is we must turn to the Divine "author of liberty," as we sing it in our grand national hymn, "America." We must search not in man to find its genesis and completion, but in God, and in God's Son, Christ Jesus. We want to talk of the Christian's freedom, for in that freedom is found the essence of all true freedom. "For freedom did Christ set us free." Whom did He set free? What does the term as here used mean? The freedom which Christ obtained for mankind is a universal freedom, and while primarily it implies a spiritual freedom from sin and its consequences, it nevertheless includes as well freedom as connected with the various secular relations of life. Sin is the great enemy of freedom. God gave man the freedom of choice at the time of creation and sin entered in and robbed man of the freedom to enjoy the blessing and the fullness which were to be found in the garden where God had placed man. And that was only the beginning. Sin ever since has been robbing man of the freedom which it was God's desire and purpose he should have. Trace to its source every forfeiture of freedom, every oppression which denies the rights and freedom of others, and you will find the tell-tale mark of sin. And when for freedom Christ did set us free He struck at the very root of the trouble. He put away sin in His body on the tree, and thus gave to man the freedom which is the beginning of all freedom.

WHAT are the conditions and restrictions of freedom? The condition of freedom implies union with God; for, as we have already said, true freedom cannot be known apart from God's righteousness and truth. Union with God is [illegible] sacrificial work of Christ. He has died for us that we might become the righteousness of God in Him. Freedom, then, first of all, implies cleansing from sin and peculiar and close identification with God. And in the second place it means a close walk with God. The Psalmist declares that "I will walk at liberty, for I seek Thy precepts." Freedom, then, is not only passive—that is submission to Christ; but it is active—that is service for Christ. Ruskin says on this point: "To be free is to have learned how to rule our own passions; and then, certain that our own conduct is right, to persist in that conduct against all resistance, whether of counter-opinion, counter-pain or counter-pleasure. To be defiant alike to mob's thought, of the adversary's threat, and of the harlot's temptation—this is the meaning of every great nation to be free; and the one condition upon which that freedom can be obtained is pronounced to you in a single verse of the One Hundred and Nineteenth Psalm: 'I will walk at liberty, for I seek Thy precepts.'" Liberty is never license. This fallacious and fatal conception of the term liberty is common to-day. But liberty is not license. As Daniel Webster puts it: "Liberty exists in proportion to wholesome restraint." Liberty is bounded by the golden border of God's righteousness and truth. To remain within the limits of that circle, to restrict and restrain, is liberty. Wordsworth sings of the freedom of the flowers in the lines:

"How does the meadow flower its bloom unfold?
Because the lovely little flower is free
Down to its root, and in that freedom, bold."

But the freedom of the flower was restricted. It would no longer be freedom if that blooming flower were to uproot itself and wander with unfed and starving roots through meadow and wood. It must remain within its prescribed limits in order to enjoy its liberty. Oh, that man might learn this lesson and realize that true liberty is that which is found within the sphere of God's will and righteousness.

THERE are perils of freedom. There is always danger that blessing may be perverted to a curse. Every nation and every individual face this peril. Paul saw that these Galatian Christians were in danger in this very respect. He repeats in the thirteenth verse the glorious fact that they were free, but he goes on to urge: "Only use not your freedom for an occasion to the flesh." The fact that Christ delivered them from the law and its obligations did not warrant them in indulgences that were a violation of the righteousness and truth of God. They were not to make a selfish application of the principle of their freedom. And herein lies the peril of freedom. Man in the Garden of Eden was free to choose good or evil. Forgetful of God and His warnings, he used his freedom to the gratification of his own desires. He looked and saw that the fruit of the tree was good to eat. In the exercise of his freedom, he reached out and took and ate, and his freedom became his peril. Freedom became bondage. Obedience to God was forsaken for obedience to self. From sinlessness man passed into a state of sin. And sin brought bondage and death. Freedom has its perils for this nation. The very elements of liberty upon which this national life is founded, government of the people, for the people and by the people, our free institutions, our equal rights for all, have within themselves the germs of great danger. Selfishness, and ambition, and love of pleasure threaten to pervert and destroy. This nation, which is the freest nation in the world, is for that very reason the weakest. Unless the spirit of the Christian's freedom rules in the national life, uprooting selfishness, molding ambition, curbing the passion for pleasure and giving God first place in the thought and conduct, there is real and dreadful peril in this nation's freedom.

WITH freedom also comes obligation. Because ye are free, Paul says, "through love be servants one to another." The peril of freedom is in serving self, but the highest obligation of freedom is that that freedom may equip for the serving of others. It is with no small degree of pride that the American can point to the many instances in which this free nation has thus splendidly served other nations and peoples. Great obligations have been thrust upon us of late years because of the freedom and enlightenment which has been vouchsafed to us by God. In the foremost rank of the nations, the needy and oppressed of the world are looking to America for succor. And, thank God, in splendid spirit and noble self-sacrifice, we are fulfilling this obligation. There has been great pride taken in the fact that this people could so serve others. But the very fulfilment of this obligation has had its wholesome reward in strengthening the nation in its own freedom and free institutions, in giving life to others has come new life to us. And what is true of the nation is true of the individual. Your liberty and enlightenment place upon you heavy obligation.

"He only earns his freedom and existence

And the surest way of realizing this is using our freedom in the service of others. And of all persons the Christian freedman should meet this obligation. Vaughan calls him the "child of liberty," and urges: "Be free in the spirit of your mind. Have freer prayer, freer hope, freely take the freedom so freely given you." Yea, let us meet the obligation which the Christian freedom imposes upon us. Let us through love be servants one to another, because we are free in Christ—free from sin and the old life and free to throw all our energies and power to the bestowing of the blessings of that freedom upon others.

JAPAN AND THE JAPANESE.

Japan has a commercial marine of 764,413 tons, against Russia's 638,822 tons.

Japan has gold, silver, copper, lead, tin and mercury in abundance, besides coal and iron.

Japan does weaving in 660,408 dwellings or establishments, containing 924,423 looms and employing 1,043,866 persons.

Japan has facilities for making everything necessary for the construction and equipment of railroads except locomotives.

Japan has about the same area as Montana, with more than half as many people as there are in the whole United States.

Japan has 4,852 post offices, equal to one post office for each 9,700 people; Russia has only 6,029, or one for each 21,500 people.

Japan has railroads gridironing the empire, electric light plants in nearly all the cities, and telegraph lines all over the country.

Japan had a foreign commerce in 1896 of $145,000,000, while in 1903 it was $316,000,000, more than 100 per cent increase in seven years.

Japan has over 3,000 miles of railway and 1,500 miles of telegraph lines in operation. Twenty-five years ago not a mile of this system existed.

Japan has every kind of manufacturing—cotton goods, telescopes, microscopes, watches, knives, spoons, electric machinery, matches, clocks, woolen goods and a host of other lines. In 1870 manufacturing in Japan was almost nil; now she has over 8,000 factories of various kinds.

The latest type of compound freight engine weighs 181 tons, and can haul 4,000 tons of freight.

Daniel Larzelere, of Quincy, Mich., is believed to be the oldest grain dealer in the country. He began trading in 1846 and is still active in the business, hale and hearty at 83. He has been at his present station in Quincy for 27 years, personally taking in all the grain he purchases.

The heaviest man in England was buried at Dover the other day. His body weighed 630 pounds. It lay in a coffin that was seven feet long, three feet wide and two feet three inches deep. Twelve men lifted it, and it was rolled out through a window into a hearse backed up on the sidewalk.

It is a tossup, since the last policy was taken out, which woman carries the heaviest life insurance, Mrs. Leland Stanford, of California, or Mrs. James Dunsmuir, of Toronto. The odds are in favor of Mrs. Stanford, for she now is rated as insured for "over" $1,000,000, whereas Mrs. Dunsmuir is put down at an even $1,000,000. There is no question they are the most heavily insured women on the American continent and far ahead of any of their sisters in the east. The next nearest is Mrs. Basil N. Duke, of Durham, N. C., who has policies amounting to $385,000.

SAMPLE OF FUTURE HISTORY

The Way the Securing of a Vice Presidential Candidate May Be Recorded.

Stealthily the stalwart, determined men surrounded the house, undetected, owing to the darkness and the dense fog that covered everything, relates the Chicago Tribune.

Posting one of their number, fully armed, at every possible avenue of escape, the leader, accompanied by a dozen trusty followers upon whose courage and fidelity he knew he could rely in any emergency, approached a rear door.

The door yielded, and the next moment they were inside.

Rushing through the house, they soon found the man for whom they were searching.

He was sitting in the back parlor, surrounded by his family, unprepared to resist, and evidently taken wholly by surprise.

"Surrender!" cried the leader, pointing his revolver at his head.

"Gentlemen," said the man, pale but outwardly calm, "I see you have me at a disadvantage. But you need not have brought those handcuffs along. I'll go with you quietly."

He had just been nominated by one of the great political parties for the office of vice president of the United States.

The Preacher's Evidence.

Roland, Ill., June 27.—Diabetes has so long been looked upon as an incurable form of Kidney Disease that a sure cure for it must rank as one of the most valuable medical discoveries of the age. And every day brings forth fresh evidence that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure Diabetes. Important evidence in their favor is given by Rev. Thos. B. Norman, the well-known Baptist minister here. Mr. Norman says:

"I had all the symptoms of a bad case of Diabetes and received so much benefit from the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills that I cheerfully recommend them to anyone suffering from that dread disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure the worst form of Diabetes."

Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure Diabetes, one of the final stages of Kidney Disease. All the earlier stages, from Backache to Rheumatism, are naturally much more easily cured by the same remedy.

Chicago Decision.

"No, no; drop hogs at home. I say 'potcatser.'"

WHY HOT WEATHER MAKES WOMEN NERVOUS

Miss Mary Burns, 23 Spring Garden Road, Halifax, N. S., writes: "Having used Peruna for indigestion and stomach trouble and to build up a broken down system with the very best results, I am pleased to state my experience with this excellent medicine. I had been troubled with stomach trouble and poor digestion for some years, and although I tried many remedies and dieting, nothing seemed to restore my health until I used Peruna. In three months I had entirely recovered my health and strength."—Mary Burns.

Suggestions by Dr. Hartman to Combat the Nervous Depression Incident to Warm Weather.

Nervousness is very common among women. This condition is due to weak nerve centers. The nerve centers are the reservoir for nerve vitality. These centers become bloodless for the want of proper nutrition.

This condition is especially noticeable during the warm season. Every summer an army of invalids are prostrated by a direct result of weak nervous system.

This could easily be overcome by the use of Peruna. Peruna strikes at the root of the trouble by correcting indigestion. Perfect digestion furnishes increased nutrition for the nerve centers. Perfectly digested food gives these reservoirs of life a vitality which creates strong, steady nerves, and in this manner fortifies and nourishes life.

Miss Blanche Grey, a prominent young society woman of Memphis, Tenn., in a recent letter from 174 Alabama street writes: "To a society woman whose nervous force is often taxed to the utmost from lack of rest and irregular meals, I know of nothing which is of so much benefit as Peruna. I took it a few months ago when I felt my strength giving way, and it soon made itself manifest in giving me new strength and health."—Miss Blanche Grey.

Pe-ru-na Contains no Narcotics.

One reason why Peruna has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotic of any kind. Peruna is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit. Peruna does not produce temporary results. It is permanent in its effect.

It has no bad effect upon the system, and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh. There are a multitude of homes where Peruna has been used off and on for twenty years. Such a thing could not be possible if Peruna contained any drugs of narcotic nature.

At this season of the year we are peculiarly liable to inflammations of the stomach and bowels. It is the part of wisdom to learn how to cut them short, and in the easiest and quickest manner. Peruna does this by its peculiar power over all forms of catarrhal troubles.

THE Democrats have enough good presidential timber to get up a first-class row over at St. Louis, this week.

For sick headach take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and a quick cure is certain. For Sale by all druggists

AN effort is being made to launch a presidential boom for Judson Harmon, of Ohio, in time for the St. Louis convention next week.

IT is said that some thoughtless person has informed Teddy of the action of the recent Chicago convention which was a great surprise to him.

BE it said to his credit that Gov. Bradley did not take part in every performance given by the Kentucky delegation at the Chicago convention, last week.

THE Japs seem to be the best of fighters, and the killing of a few thousand men is regarded by them as a small matter, and when they start after a Russian he knows they are coming.

Just as sure as Judge Parker is nominated for the presidency by the Democrats, just so sure he will be elected and that is why such a howl is going up from the Republican press. Parker is a man who does not talk through his hat."—Jessamine Journal.

Well, boys, get your applications ready that there may be no delay in making a change in Uncle Sam's office force as soon as Judge Parker is installed in the White House.

THERE was not much enthusiasm on tap at the Republican national convention held in Chicago, last week, until the last day, when the leaders managed to get the delegates warmed up, and the nominations were followed by the usual scenes on such occasions. One thing was very apparent upon the assembling of the delegates, and that was that death only prevented the nomination of Senator Hanna. Teddy would not have been in it a little bit with the Senator.

The only conditions now required to make an instrument negotiable in Kentucky are: It must be in writing, signed by the maker. An unconditional promise to pay a certain sum of money at a certain time to a certain person or to the order of a certain person or to the bearer. When an instrument of this kind is signed it is provided that it is negotiated when it is transferred from one person to another. If the instrument is payable to a specified person or his order, it must be transferred by indorsement; if payable to bearer it may be transferred by delivery. This means that any person to whom a note, check, bill or draft is given may by indorsement on the back of it, if it is payable to order, or by delivery if payable to bearer, transfer it with all its rights to any other person. Under the old law to take away the rights of defense it must have been transferred to a regularly incorporated bank in this State, but now it is to any person.

—Texas is to have three million dollars of the sum appropriated recently by Congress for the reclamation of desert lands. The Federal government is now building a reservoir twenty-five miles long, eight miles wide, and two hundred feet deep, at the junction of Salt river and Tonto creek. The cost of this work is estimated at three millions of dollars.

The dam will be of masonry construction 220 feet above the present level, 250 feet above bed rock. The whole work will be done with materials on the grounds. The stone will come from the bluffs, which will be cut out to form a spillway. A cement will be manufactured out of the materials taken out of the earth almost at the door of the plant.

In connection with the basin the government is constructing a canal twelve miles in length to take care of the regular low water flow. By this means a 250-horse power will be secured which will be utilized in various ways.

It is believed that by the use of the water thus stored the arid lands may be made fruitful. The subject is one of great interest to the people of the South and West. The plant in Texas is only a part of the system for the reclamation of lands that have heretofore been considered valueless.

All accounts from Kentucky agree that saddle horses were never so scarce. One of our readers who is intimately connected with the trade states that it is doubtful if those who are not closely in touch with the situation can realize the severe character of the famine in saleable horses of this type. Prices are popularly quoted as fully 25 per cent. in advance of last season, but our informant declares that a number of sales made to his knowledge indicate that the increase in price is considerably greater.

The cause of this unfortunate condition is thus diagnosed by Mr. Charles L. Railey, whose knowledge and experience entitles his opinion to supreme respect.

"Twenty years ago almost every farmer had from one to ten mares, from which he aimed to breed and did breed really fine horses, but when the trotting fever spread over the country these farmer breeders disposed of their holdings and set about to raise and produce a $10,000 trotter, and from that day to this the breeding of the saddle horse has been very limited."

A few breeders have been true to the trust bequeathed them by their fathers who originated this type of beautiful and useful horses, but the majority of farmers have drifted with the tide, notwithstanding the efforts of the American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association to maintain interest in the breed and encourage its improvement. It is evident enough that but for the efforts and influence of that association the breeding of saddle horses in Kentucky would have been fairly obliterated by this time. Farmers have no excuse for their neglect. Ten years ago prices were low, but for the past five years there has been every price-encouragement that the most avaricious farmer could desire to produce saddle horses of high type. Unfortunately a lot of good mares have gone to market, but it is not too late to set determinedly to work to fill up the paddocks with horses of this class. Whatever may come to the harness horse the draft horse through mechanical invention, the saddle horse is absolutely safe. He had his tilt with the bicycle and came off victor. The bicycle is now a business proposition on the city streets. The saddle horse continues to be a business proposition in the country and a pleasure proposition in the city. And time will not modify his command of the situation.—Breeders' Gazette.

I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my [illegible] and [illegible] and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. The carriers of the star routes will begin operations under their new contracts in a few days. The new contract calls for a great deal more service on the part of the mail carriers in the event the people along the route demand it, as any person can put up a box immediately on the side of the road traveled by the carrier, and require him to bring his mail from the office and deposit it in the box. If the people should take it in their minds to demand this new service the carriers will surely earn all the money they will receive from Uncle Sam.

Now, we are guessing. In our opinion the coming crop of tobacco will command a good price. Our judgement is based on the fact that the Independent factories must have stock to run their plants, as the Continental this year, after the tobacco had left the hands of the producer, gobbled up everything in sight, leaving the Independent concerns empty handed. Grant it that the Continental has sufficient stock to run without the present growing crop—which is not a fact, of course—that Mammoth concern will not sit idly by and allow the Independent to buy tobacco at a low figure, but will go on the market and buy, therefore the price will continue at a figure, that farmers can afford to raise it for. In a nutshell the situation is this:—The Independents must have their crop and have it early, and it is not the policy of the Continental to let them have any part of it for nothing. Further, the Continental must have a goodly portion of the new crop to continue in busines.—Carrollton News.

BASE BALL.

Full time was put in at the ball park last Saturday afternoon. Beginning at one o'clock the Grays and the Allsorts, of Bullittsville were hooked up for seven innings, at the conclusion of which the score stood 11 to 9 in favor of the Grays. Gray's pitching for the Allsorts was the feature of this game. While at the bat in the 5th inning, young Calemese, who caught for the visitors, was struck on the head by a pitched ball and was not able to take any further part in the game.

The main attraction for the afternoon was the game between the Boones and the Petersburg team, and was witnessed by 300 people. This was an exciting contest, and when at the close of the third inning the Boones had to their credit five single, two double hits and three runs, while Petersburg had two hits and one run, it looked as though the Boone had easy going. In the fourth inning the Boones took exceptions to a ruling of the umpire and for a while it looked like the game would proceed no further, but after considerable parleying play was resumed, and when the inning closed Petersburg had made two more runs, while the Boones had annexed one. Nothing more was doing on either side but annex goose eggs, until the ninth, when Petersburg put three men across the home plate and won the game.

The Petersburg team is made up of first class ameteur players, and at the bat they are decidedly the strongest the Boones have gone against this season. The team that takes a game from Petersburg will surely know that they have been in a contest, as they work hard from start to finish.

Petersburg	0	0	1	2	0	0	0	0	3—6

Struck out—Hughes 2, Houston 6. Single base hits—Boones 8, Petersburg 12; Two baggers—Souther, Slayback, Clutterbuck. Three baggers—Hughes. Base on balls—Hughes 2. Hit by pitched ball—Hughes 1.

The next card was the Bellevue Sluggers, a colored club, that engaged a colored picked nine. This was a very amusing contest and the Sluggers were defeated 19 to 0.

The Rough Riders, of Aurora, will play two games of ball at Bellevue next Monday, July 4th.

Bellevue ball team will play Hebron at Hebron, next Monday, July 4th, two games, morning and afternoon.

Mrs. Ann Henry, wife of Mr. Asbury Henry, of Bullittsville, Ky., passed away, suddenly, from her friends, on the 27th of May, 1904. She went out of the world with the very words of this Life on her lips—and her hands as busy as they always were from morning until night. Surely, the Lord must have sent for her, in this unexpected, mysterious way, to teach us we should be always ready, any one of us must go just when God wills from the midst of this World's business, from the Heyday of her pleasures, or from the shadows of her Earthly gloom, we too, may be summoned to meet the Father of Spirits in another sphere. This solemn fact should not make us unhappy in this present state of existence; for if we will live right, the quickest way to go, should surely be the most welcome. Mrs. Henry's greatest pleasure was the love of her family. Her three daughters were devoted to her, and yet they could not keep her.

As swift as the wing of a bird, she was gone
That a sudden transition was given,
From the Lovelight of earth with all of its joy,
To the holier Lovelight of Heaven.

Mrs. Henry was a strong character; the snows of many winters had whitened her hair, and the experiences of Life were written on her face. Many of her characteristics were beautiful. We liked to hear her express her love for Religion, and her great respect for the office of the ministry was certainly deserving of praise, her thrift and industry were remarkable, and she was generous almost to a fault, but her peculiar characteristic was her heartfelt sympathy with the sorrows and aflictions of others. Her helping hand was always ready to alleviate physical suffering, in this, she seemed to try to imitate the example of Christ, surely we can hope she has seen the peace and glory reflected from the faces of those who walk on the banks of the Upper river, and that she has now found a home in one of the mansions of the New Jerusalem; only this thought can comfort the heart of her husband and the loving children whom she has left to mourn for her here.

DRILLING TRAGEDY.

Detroit, Mich., June 25.—A small private office in a suite on the eleventh floor of the chamber of commerce building, at the corner of Griswold and State streets, was Friday the scene of a most thrilling tragedy, when Charles A. Swayse, an insurance agent, fought with Miss Effie Alvord for several minutes in an attempt to throw her out of the window, then shot her twice and plunged himself from the window to the brick pavement of State street, being almost instantly killed. Miss Alvord was shot twice in the neck and badly beaten about the head and face by Swayse, but her physician said Friday night that she is not dangerously hurt. Every bone of Swayse's body below his neck was broken by his fall of 165 feet.

Back of the tragedy lies a tale of intimacy between Miss Alvord and Swayse, who was 51 years of age, married and the father of two young daughters. Both Miss Alvord and Swayse were for several years, prior to November, 1902, employed at the house of correction here, Swayse as deputy superintendent, and the woman as a matron. In a letter found on Swayse's body he charged that the woman tempted him while they were at the house of correction and he fell. Their intimacy resulted, Superintendent McDonnell, of the institution says, in neglect of their work, and both were discharged.

Swayse then entered the employ of the life insurance company, in whose offices the tragedy occurred. Miss Alvord held several positions and then entered the employ of a sewing machine company. Friday she drove up in an automobile to the chamber of commerce with J. W. D. Terry. She went up to the insurance office on the eleventh floor, where she and Swayse entered a small private office at the front of the building, Swayse locking the door after them. Angry words were heard, then a struggle and screaming. Next, several shots were fired and employes of the office broke in the door. The woman screams were heard on the street, and her companion, Terry, had hurried up in the elevator and arrived in time to be the first man to rush into the room. Miss Alvord lay on the floor, her clothing torn, blood running from the bullet wounds in her neck and her hair down and disheveled. The window was open, and through it could be seen Swayse's face above the window ledge, to which he was clinging with his hands. The face was there only a moment. Then the hands slipped across the ledge, and Swayse was hurling down through the air to his death.

The chamber of commerce is situated in the heart of the business portion of the city and hundreds of people on the street heard Miss Alvord's cries for help, as she struggled with the man. They also saw Sawyse's body strike the pavement.

There are still some elements of mystery in the case. At Miss Alvord's boarding house it is stated that she and J. B. Terry are married. This Miss Alvord denied to a physician who attended her. Reporters have not been permitted to question her at the hospital.

One of the letters found on Swayse was addressed to Mrs. A. Sweeney, of Saginaw, Mich., warning her not to let her son marry Miss Alvord, whom Swayse bitterly excoriated in the letter, charging her with wrecking his home. At Miss Alvord's boarding house it was stated that Swayse had been threatening her for some time, and that she went to his office to tell him that she was married.

A BIG NAVAL BATTLE.

Russian Ships Were Sunk and Disabled.

It Is Thought Great Events Are Impending and the Next Few Days Will Have Great Bearing on the War.

London, June 27.—The Central News has received the following dispatch from its Tokio correspondent, dated June 26:

"A detailed account of the naval battle at Port Arthur has just been published here.

"The Russian battleships Peresviet, Poltava and Sevastopol and the cruisers Bayan, Askold and Novik attempted to emerge from the harbor at dawn on June 23, led by steamers used for clearing the mines. At 11 a. m. the battleships Czarevitch, Revizan and Pobieda joined the others. All the ships then advanced endeavoring to dispose of the mines laid by the Japanese but they were hindered by two Japanese torpedo boat destroyers which had been guarding the mouth of the harbor.

"At 3 p. m. the Japanese torpedo boats exchanged shots with seven Russian destroyers which were covering the clearing operations. One of the Russian destroyers was set on fire and retired inside the harbor. Subsequently the Japanese decoyed the Russians out to sea and awaited an opportunity to begin a general action, but between 8 and 9 p. m. the Russian ships made for the harbor. The Japanese torpedo boat destroyers and torpedo boats chased the Russians and at 9:30 delivered the first attack in consequence of which the enemy was thrown into disorder. During the night eight separate attacks were delivered, lasting until dawn of Friday.

"In one of these assaults the Chiratka twice torpedoed a battleship of the Peresviet type and sank her. A battleship of the Sevastopol type and a cruiser of the Diana type were disabled and towed away. The Russian vessels re-entered the harbor during Friday."

While the special dispatches to the morning newspapers add nothing to the details contained in the press' information concerning the Port Arthur engagement and the situation on the Liao Tung peninsula the editorials by war experts devote much space to the situation.

The general view is that the Russians at Port Arthur lost their opportunity through their timidity and that Togo has again asserted his rights to be considered one of the world's great admirals.

It is conceded on every hand that, while the details are not yet fully known, when both sides tell the whole story, the calamity to Russia will only be increased. It is pointed out, however, that Port Arthur is open and that the Vladivostok fleet may make another diversion, in which case the remnants of the Port Arthur squadron may at any time make a forlorn hope dash for a juncture. The editorials, special dispatches and articles by war experts join in expressing the belief that great events are impending and that the next few days may have great bearing on the final result of the war.

Liao Yang, June 27.—Reports of fighting between the advance guard regiments are continually coming in. The battles are indecisive, but they show that the Japanese are moving forward regularly on each front. This is corroborated by official dispatches.

THE YACHT OVERTURNED.

New York, June 27.—Five persons were drowned in the bar off 47th street, Brooklyn, by the overturning of the 28-foot sloop yacht Elsie and Katie, in a heavy storm that swept over New York Sunday afternoon. Eight other persons who were on the yacht at the time were rescued by the members of the second naval battalion, who put out in whale boats from their armory at the foot of 52d street. Those drowned were Mrs. Kate Clarke, of Brooklyn, wife of Peter Clarke, the owner of the yacht, her two daughters, Lizzie, aged 10, and Louise, aged 4; her two-year-old niece, Mamie Clarke, and Lizzie Iason, 16 years old. The bodies of Mrs. Clarke and that of Mamie Clarke have been recovered.

Struck by a Cyclone.

New York, June 27.—A cyclone struck the village of Haledon, a suburb of Paterson, N. J., Sunday. It swept away the Hopper ice houses and at least one man, John Wieding, who was employed by the Rogers locomotive works, was killed. There are five houses, each 50 feet long. All were wrecked. It is believed that others were killed and workmen were busy clearing the wreck.

The Japanese Wounded at Vladivostok

Second Japanese Army.

Threatens to Starve Herself to Death With Children and Herself.

Chicago, June 27.—Threatened with starvation and with her husband hopelessly insane in the asylum at Kankakee, Mrs. Anna Kelsdzick gave up the struggle for existence, killed her three small children and then ended her own life. Illuminating gas was the means of destruction she adopted and when the bodies were found early Sunday all four had been dead several hours.

The family lived in three small rooms at 965 North Robey street, and Sunday a constable was to eject the mother and her babies from the premises for the non-payment of rent. It was after Mrs. Kelsdzick had been served with a summons to appear in court that she decided to end the lives of herself and little ones. The three children, Bruno, Herman and Walter, aged 7, 5 and 2 years respectively, were found in bed locked in each other's arms. The mother's lifeless body was found lying on the kitchen floor, while gas was escaping from a jet in the room.

That the woman made every preparation to do away with herself and children was evident. She first wrote and sealed a letter addressed to a relative in Germany. Then she bathed herself and donned clean linen. Each child had also been given a bath, clean night gowns placed upon them and the little ones sent to the sleep from which they would never awaken.

Several months ago Kelsdzick was out of work at the time he became insane from brooding over his troubles, and was sent to the asylum. Since that time the mother, who was in poor health, has had a hard struggle for existence. Last week she became so ill that she was unable to work any more and had spent her last dollar for food for herself and the children Saturday afternoon. With ejectment from her home staring her in the face Sunday morning and with no money in her possession to procure another, Mrs. Kelsdzick took the lives of her babies and her own to end her troubles.

MISSISSIPPI LYNCHING.

Starling Dunham Hanged in Eupora, Miss., By a Mob.

Eupora, Miss., June 27.—Starling Dunham, a Negro wanted on the charge of criminally assaulting the 14-year-old daughter of John Wilson, a white man, near Bellefontaine two weeks ago and attempting to criminally assault three young ladies named Dunn near this city, all during the course of the same day, was hanged in the public square here Sunday by a mob. A noose was placed about the Negro's neck by the little Wilson girl, who positively identified him as her assailant. The Negro was then placed upon the back of a black horse and at a signal from the leader of the mob the little girl led the horse from under him.

HOODLUMS AND TRAMPS.

Residents at Corliss, Wis., Are Terrorized By Their Depredations.

Racine, Wis., June 27.—Residents at Corliss and along the line of the Milwaukee road are terrorized on account of the depredations and crimes committed by hundreds of hoodlums and tramps who infest that locality. Gardens are ruined, everything in them being stolen. Houses and stores are entered, freight cars robbed and people assaulted. Section men are pelted with coal and rocks and one of them was struck and knocked senseless Sunday night. A dozen or more detectives are now at work rounding up the worst of the crowd. Ten arrests have been made.

AN AMERICAN MISSING.

Kent J. Loomis Disappeared at Plymouth, Eng.

The Possibility That Some Harm May Have Befallen Him After Landing at Plymouth Is Hinted at By the Officials.

London, June 27.—The whereabouts of Kent J. Loomis, brother of the American assistant secretary of state, Francis B. Loomis, who disappeared shortly before or after the arrival of the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II. at Plymouth, June 20, remains in the same state of doubt as Saturday.

Officials who are investigating the case say there is no truth in the report that Loomis turned up in Paris Saturday.

Paris, June 27.—Not a word was received Sunday regarding the whereabouts of Kent J. Loomis, brother of Francis B. Loomis, American assistant secretary of state, who disappeared shortly before or after the arrival of the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II. at Plymouth, June 20. Although midnight Sunday marks a week since the disappearance of Mr. Loomis, the officials still cling to the belief that he will turn up when the effects of his abstraction have worn off. The belief is due to a careful deduction from the series of circumstances related by W. J. Ellis, his companion on board the steamer, and by Gustave Flamm, of San Francisco, who was a fellow passenger. This process of deduction practically excludes the theory of foul play on board the Kaiser Wilhelm II., and also excludes the likelihood that Mr. Loomis fell overboard. It leads to the acceptance of Mr. Flamm's statement that he saw Mr. Loomis get off at Plymouth.

Accordingly, a minutely circumstancial description of Mr. Loomis has been forwarded to Joseph Stephens, American consul at Plymouth. Although thus satisfied that Mr. Loomis was not lost from the Kaiser Wilhelm II., the officials foresee the possibility that some harm may have befallen him after he landed at Plymouth. However, they consider this possibility rather remote, but, nevertheless, complete absence of clews after a week of continued efforts to find Mr. Loomis makes the case one of increasing mystery.

LIFE PRESERVERS.

Those on the Steamer General Slocum Were Practically Useless.

New York, June 24.—Much of the testimony at the inquest Thursday into the General Slocum disaster went to show that the life preservers on the steamer were practically useless. At least half a dozen witnesses described how difficult these life preservers were to get at, and how they fell to pieces at critical times. Paul Lilienow, a passenger of the General Slocum, who has lost six members of his family in the disaster, declared that when the wires by which the preservers were secured in the rackets would not give, he took hold of the preservers and they crumbled like so many soda crackers.

Capt. Van Schaick was brought into the court room on a stretcher. He apparently was suffering greatly, but expressed a willingness to undergo an examination by the coroner. He was ordered back to the hospital, however.

Twenty-four additional bodies were recovered Thursday, bringing the total number of known dead up to 907. One hundred policemen, who have been making a canvass of all districts where persons were reported to be missing, completed their work tonight. Inspector Schmitzberger, who was in charge of the canvass, estimated the total number of dead, including the missing, at about one thousand.

New York, June 27.—Crowds, with heads bowed and uncovered, lined both sides of East river as the wrecked hulk of the General Slocum was towed to a dock in Erie basin, where it is to be inspected by the federal authorities.

How the kidneys take from the blood every 24 hours 500 grains of impure, poisonous matter—more than enough to cause death. Weakened kidneys leave this waste in the blood, and you are seriously ill. To get well, cure the kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills, the great kidney specific.

Mrs. J. H. Bowles of 118 Core Street, Durham, N. C., says: "I was sick and bedfast for over nine months, and the doctor who attended me said unless I submitted to an operation for gravel I would never be well. I would not consent to that and so continued to suffer. My back was so weak I could not stand or walk, and it ached constantly. The first day after I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I felt relief, and in a short time I was up and around the same as ever, free from backache."

Weakness in Wickedness.

TWO STEPS.

The Last One Helps the First.

A sick coffee drinker must take two steps to be rid of his troubles and get strong and well again.

The first is to cut off coffee absolutely.

That removes the destroying element. The next step is to take liquid food (and that is Postum Food Coffee) that has in it the elements nature requires to change the blood corpuscles from pale pink or white to rich red, and good red blood builds good strong and healthy cells in place of the broken down cells destroyed by coffee. With well- boiled Postum Food Coffee to shift to, both these steps are easy and pleasant. The experience of a Georgian proves how important both are.

"From 1872 to the year 1900 my wife and I had both been afflicted with sick or nervous headache and at times we suffered untold agony. We were coffee drinkers and did not know how to get away from it for the habit is hard to quit.

"But in 1900 I read of a case similar to ours where Postum Coffee was used in place of the old coffee and a complete cure resulted, so I concluded to get some and try it.

"The result was, after three days use of Postum in place of the coffee I never had a symptom of the old trouble and in five months I had gained from 145 pounds to 163 pounds.

"My friends asked me almost daily what wrought the change. My answer always is, leaving off coffee and drinking Postum in its place.

"We have many friends who have been benefited by Postum.

"As to whether or not I have stated the facts truthfully I refer you to the Bank of Carrollton or any business firm in that city where I have lived for many years and am well known." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

ROOSEVELT, FAIRBANKS.

Republican National Ticket Was Selected Without a Dissenting Vote by the Convention.

THE SECOND TIME IN HISTORY.

Ex-Gov. Black Placed the Name of Theodore Roosevelt in Nomination For President.

Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, Nominated Senator Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indiana, For Vice President of the United States.

Chicago, June 22.—The republican national convention, the 13th in the party's history, met in the Coliseum at noon Tuesday and organized.

The keynote of the campaign of 1904 was sounded by Hon. Elihu Root in his speech as temporary chairman. His address was a review of the accomplishments of the present administration and a defense of republican politics in general. When that had been delivered and the various working committees dispatched to their labors the business of the first day's session was completed.

The crowning feature of the decorations is a painting of the late Senator Hanna, which hangs directly over the platform and occupies the most conspicuous position in the Coliseum.

The incidents which are destined to live long after the spasmodic demonstrations have been forgotten are Mr. Root's tributes to President McKinley. The temporary chaiman spoke of the late president's administration of progress, his gentleness of character and those qualities so beloved by the nation and in that connection said feelingly, "and with McKinley we remember Hanna.

The first speech at the convention was by Senator Scott, who informally presented to Chairman Payne a beautiful gavel. It was the gift of the Chicago citizens' committee, which cooperated with the national sub-committee in making arrangements for the convention. Later Graeme Stewart, member of the national committee from Illinois, on behalf of the Chicago committees, presented a similar gavel to Temporary Chairman Root.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT, NOMINEE FOR PRESIDENT.

HON. JOSEPH G. CANNON.

In the convention hall Tuesday there was one woman delegate who had the same right to vote that was held by each accredited male delegate. She was Mrs. Charles A. Eldridge, of Colorado Springs, Col., an alternate delegate whose principal was absent. Other women alternate delegates present were Mrs. Owen Lefevre, of Colorado; Mrs. Susan West, of Idaho, and Mrs. Jennie M. Nelson, of Utah, these states having women suffrage.

Shortly before the adjournment for the day Senator Depew was recognized to deliver to the convention an invitation from President Francis and the directors of the Louisiana Purchase exposition to delegates and members of the press to visit the fair at St. Louis before returning to their homes. The invitation was accepted.

Chicago, June 22.—The committee on resolutions met in the green room of the Auditorium Annex hotel immediately after the convention adjourned and organized by electing Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, as chairman, Senator Clark, Wyoming, secretary, and R. G. Proctor, Massachusetts, as clerk. The chair was then authorised to appoint a sub-committee of 13 to prepare the platform.

HON. HENRY C. PAYNE.
Vice Chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Upon re-assembling Senator Lodge announced the following sub-committee: Senator Lodge (Mass.), Senator Gallinger (N. H.), Edward Lauterbach (N. Y.), Representative Dalzell (Pa.), Senator Foraker (O.), Senator Hopkins (Ill.), Senator Clark (Wyo.), Senator Nelson (Minn.), Senator Hansbrough (N. D.), Senator Hepburn (Ia.), John W. Blythe (Ia.), Senator Beveridge (Ind.), and Frank H. Short (Cal.).

Chicago, June 23.—Visitors were not so early about the convention hall Wednesday, but when Mr. Root called the convention to order shortly after noon the Coliseum presented a more inspiring appearance than on the preceding day. The galleries were for the first time crowded, and the large number of ladies present were especially noticeable.

The announcement of the permanent organization for the convention started the continuous demonstration which followed the introduction of Mr. Cannon as permanent chairman. He was escorted to the platform by a committee consisting of Hon. John D. Long, Senator Cullom and Representative Burton, of Ohio. The temporary and permanent chairman met in the center of the stage, where they clasped hands in a cordial greeting. At this moment the applause was deafening. The convention rising to its feet. Still clasping his hand, Mr. Root led Mr. Cannon to the edge of the platform and introduced him to the convention as the man who presided over the greatest executive body in America, "with a grip so strong, a mind so clear and a heart so sound that he would wield the gavel in that body for many years to come."

SENATOR FAIRBANKS, NOMINEE FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

The scene that followed was inspiring; flags waved, hats were thrown into the air, delegates jumped to their feet and then to chairs, shouting wildly, loudly and continuously. Until the applause subsided Mr. Cannon stood, awkwardly facing his audience. In contrast with this was his appearance after he had made himself heard and his magnetism felt.

Speaker Cannon's oratory was decidedly to the liking of the convention. He established cordial relations even before he had uttered a word. He stood silent for for a moment on a tongue-like projection in the center of the platform. His face fascinated. It expressed abundant humor, strangely blended with virile pugnacity.

From the standpoint of political importance the adoption of the party platform was the event of the day. It contained declarations of party policy on the questions of the day, and a review of the events from the last national convention since. The flag showed the wear and tear of many similar contests. "Uncle Joe" waved it vigorously and kept time with his body. Soon the whole convention was swaying in exact measure.

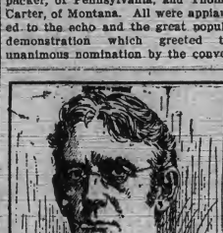
It was 10:30 o'clock when Speaker Cannon called the convention to order. Without preliminaries of any kind he announced the order of the day and instructed the secretary to call the roll for nominations for president.

By agreement, Alabama, the first state on the roll, yielded to New York. That was the signal for the first outburst of applause. In the midst of the cheering former Gov. Black made his way to the platform. Speaker Cannon took him to the front and characteristically introduced him to the audience.

Mr. Black entertained his audience by a discussion of party principles. He compared republican standards with those of other parties. With his keen sense of humor and the deep thought displayed in his address the orator fascinated always and frequently electrified his listeners.

He led up to the nomination gradually by defining the type of man best suited for the party color-bearer. As he named Theodore Roosevelt as the best example of that type the convention rose. The New York delegation led in the cheering which almost immediately spread to every part of the floor, to the galleries and to the crowds which filled the entrances and overflowed into the streets.

While the demonstration was at its height Chairman Cannon stepped to the front of the stage. He held in his hand the banner which was waved in the early days of the republican party. It was then carried through the west and south in the campaign which has been used in every convention since. The flag showed the wear and tear of many similar contests. "Uncle Joe" waved it vigorously and kept time with his body. Soon the whole convention was swaying in exact measure.



The delegates in their eagerness to exhibit approval of the man accepted every signal for renewed cheering. A little colored boy from Georgia and later a pretty little girl, dressed in a dainty frock of white, were lifted to the platform and they waved flag with as much vigor as their more lusty preceptor.

Senator Beveridge was recognized by the chair for the purpose of seconding the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt for president. He was followed by George A. Knight, of California; Stillwell Edwards, of Georgia; Ex-Gov. Bradley, of Kentucky; Joseph B. Cotton, of Minnesota, and Harry S. Cummings, of Maryland. The latter is one of the colored delegates.

The roll was called and the unanimous vote of delegations recorded for Mr. Roosevelt without incident until the name of New Jersey was reached. New Jersey asked unanimous consent that the roll be dispensed with and that the secretary of the convention be instructed to cast the entire vote for Mr. Roosevelt. The objection was general and every state accepted the opportunity of casting its entire vote for the president.

Pandemonium broke loose again when Speaker Cannon announced that in the convention there were 994 votes and 994 had been cast for Roosevelt. A great picture of the president was carried about through the hall. It was followed by a banner carried by the Oregon delegation, bearing the words: "First Gun, Oregon 23,804. Roosevelt. Forty per cent. Republican Gain."

Alabama again yielded its place at the head of the list when the roll call was started for nominations for vice president. The rank was this time given to Iowa and Senator Dolliver, taking the platform, named Senator Fairbanks. The speech was an eloquent endorsement of the candidate's qualifications and was received with tremendous applause. Seconding speeches were made by Senator Depew, Senator Foraker, Gov. Pennypacker, of Pennsylvania, and Thomas Carter, of Montana. All were applauded to the echo and the great popular demonstration which greeted the unanimous nomination by the convention was an enthusiastic tribute to the Indiana statesman whose name was thus joined with Roosevelt.

HON. FRANK S. BLACK.

When Illinois, Nebraska, Missouri and Georgia were called announcement was made that the candidates of favorite sons had been withdrawn. The entire vote therefore was cast for Senator Fairbanks.

The usual resolutions of thanks to officers of the convention and to committees on arrangement were adopted and the great body was adjourned.

Speaker Cannon came in for one of the resolutions and he blushed like a schoolboy as the word bouquet was given him. He made 11 speeches during the day, each a few crisp, original sentences introducing the 11 orators.

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

At Their Meeting George B. Cortelyou Was Elected Chairman.

Chicago, June 24.—George B. Cortelyou was chosen chairman of the republican national committee at a meeting held Thursday just after the adjournment of the convention.

In thanking the committee for the honor, he told the members that while he would be glad to have the benefit of their advice and counsel, he intended to be chairman in fact and would accept no dictation from anyone, high or low. He told them that the friends of the late chairman, Mr. Hanna, were his friends and he asked for the same measure of confidence and support that had been given to the last chairman.

A resolution of thanks was voted to the old committee and the committee adjourned to meet upon the call of the chairman.

HON. GEORGE B. CORTELYOU.

PLATFORM ADOPTED.

It Gives a Review of the Work of the Party.

Maintainance of Principles Is Urged —Rates of Duty Should be Readjusted Only When Conditions Warrant It.

Chicago, June 23.—The committee on resolutions reported the following platform to the republican national convention Wednesday:

Fifty years ago the republican party came into existence dedicated, among other purposes, to the great task of arresting the extension of human slavery. In 1860 it elected its first president. During 24 of the 44 years which have elapsed since the election of Lincoln, the republican party has held complete control of the government. For 18 more of the 44 years it has held partial control through the possession of one or two branches of the government, while the democratic party during the same period has had complete control for only two years, this long term of power by the republican party is not due to chance. It is a demonstration that the republican party has commanded the confidence of the American people for nearly two generations to a degree never equaled in our history, and has displayed a high capacity for rule and government which has been made even more conspicuous by the incapacity and infirmity of purpose shown by its opponents.

The republican party entered upon its present period of complete supremacy in 1897. We have every right to congratulate ourselves upon the work since then accomplished, for it has added luster even to the traditions of the party which carried the government through the storms of civil war.

We then found the country, after four years of democratic rule, in evil plight. Oppressed with misfortune and doubtful of the future. Public credit had been lowered, the revenues were declining, the debt was growing, the administration's attitude toward Spain was feeble and mortifying, the standard of values was unsettled and uncertain, labor was unemployed, business was sunk in the depression which had succeeded the panic of 1893, hope was faint and confidence was gone.

We met these unhappy conditions vigorously, effectively and at once.

We replaced a democratic tariff law based on free trade principles and garnished with sectional protection by a consistent protective tariff, and industry, freed from oppression and stimulated by the encouragement of wise laws, has expanded to a degree never before known, has conquered new markets, and has created a volume of exports which has passed imagination.

Under the Dingley tariff labor has been fully employed, wages have risen, and all industries have revived and prospered.

We firmly established the gold standard, which was then menaced with destruction. Confidence returned to business, and with confidence an unexampled prosperity.

For deficient revenues, supplemented by improvident issues of bonds, we gave the country an income which produced a large surplus and which enabled us only four years after the Spanish war had closed, to remove $100,000,000 of annual war taxes, reduce the public debt and lower the interest charges of the government.

The public credit, which had been so lowered that in time of peace a democratic administration made large loans at extravagant rates of interest, in order to pay current expenditures, rose under republican administration to its highest point, and enabled us to borrow at 2 per cent. even in time of war.

We refused to palter longer with the miseries of Cuba. We fought a quick and victorious war with Spain. We set Cuba free, governed the island for three years, and gave it to the Cuban people, with order restored, with ample revenues, with education and public health established, free from debt and connected with the United States by wise provisions for our mutual interests.

We have organized the government of Porto Rico, and its people now enjoy peace, freedom, order and prosperity.

In the Philippines we have suppressed insurrection, established order and given to life and property a security never known there before. We have organized civil government, made it effective and strong in administration, and have conferred upon the people of those islands the largest civil liberty they have ever enjoyed.

By our possession of the Philippines we were enabled to take prompt and effective action in the relief of the legations in Pekin, and a decisive part in preventing the partition and preserving the integrity of China.

The possession of a route for an isthmian canal, so long the dream of American statesmanship, is now an accomplished fact. The great work of connecting the Pacific and Atlantic by a canal is at last begun, and it is due to the republican party.

We have passed laws which will bring the arid lands of the United States within the area of cultivation.

We have reorganized the army and put it in the highest state of efficiency.

We have passed laws for the improvement and support of the militia.

We have pushed forward the building of the army, the defense and protection of our home and our interests.

Our administration of the great departments of the government has been honest and efficient and wherever wrongdoing has been discovered the republican administration has not hesitated to probe the evil and bring offenders to justice without regard to party or political ties.

Laws enacted by the republican party, which the democratic party failed to enforce, and which were intended for the protection of the public against the unjust discrimination or the illegal encroachment of vast aggregations of capital, have been fearlessly enforced by a republican president, and new laws, insuring reasonable publicity as to the operations of great corporations, and providing additional remedies for the prevention of discrimination in freight rates, have been passed by a republican congress.

In this record of achievement during the past eight years may be read the pledges which the republican party has fulfilled. We promise to continue those policies, and we declare our constant adherence to the following principles:

Protection which fosters and develops our industries is a cardinal policy of the republican party. The measures of protection should always at least equal the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad. We insist upon the maintenance of the principle of protection, and, therefore, rates of duty should be readjusted only when conditions have so changed that the public interest demands their alteration; but this work can not safely be committed to any other hands than those of the republican party. To entrust it to the democratic party is to invite disaster. Whether, as in 1892, the democratic party declares the protective tariff unconstitutional, or whether it declares in favor of a tariff for revenue only, it is committed to the destruction of the protective system.

However specious the name, the purpose is ever the same. The democratic tariff has always been fostered by business adversity; a republican tariff by business prosperity. To a republican congress and a republican president the great question can be safely entrusted. When the only free trade country among the great nations agitates a return to protection, the chief protective country should not falter in maintaining it.

We have extended widely our foreign markets, and we believe in the adoption of all practicable methods for their further extension, including commercial reciprocity wherever reciprocal arrangements can be effected consistent with the principles of protection and without injury to American agriculture, American labor or any American industry.

We believe it to be the duty of the republican party to uphold the gold standard, and the integrity and value of our national currency. The maintenance of the gold standard, established by the republican party, can not safely be committed to the democratic party, which resisted its adoption, and has never given any proof since that time of belief in it or fidelity to it.

While every other industry has prospered under the fostering aid of republican legislation, American shipping engaged in foreign trade in competition with the low cost of construction, low wages and heavy subsidies of foreign governments, has not for many years received from the government of the United States adequate encouragement of any kind. We, therefore, favor legislation which will encourage and build up the American merchant marine, and we cordially approve the legislation of the last congress, which created the merchant marine commission to investigate and report upon this subject.

A navy powerful enough to defend the United States against any attack, to uphold the Monroe doctrine, and watch over our commerce is essential to the safety and the welfare of the American people. To maintain such a navy is the fixed policy of the republican party. We cordially approve the attitude of President Roosevelt and congress in regard to the exclusion of Chinese labor and promise a continuance of the republican policy in that direction.

The civil service law was placed on the statute books by the republican party, which has always sustained it, and we renew our former declarations that it shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced.

We are always mindful of the country's debt to the soldiers and sailors of the United States, and we believe in making ample provision for them, and in the liberal administration of the pension laws.

We favor the peaceful settlement of international differences by arbitration.

We commend the vigorous efforts made by the administration to protect American citizens in foreign lands, and pledge ourselves to insist upon the just and equal protection of all our citizens abroad. It is the unquestioned duty of the government to procure for all our citizens, without distinction, the rights to travel and sojourn in foreign countries, and we declare ourselves in favor of all proper efforts tending to that end.

Our great interests and our growing commerce in the Orient render the condition of China of high importance to the United States. We cordially commend the policy pursued in that direction by the administrations of President McKinley and President Roosevelt.

We favor such congressional action as shall determine whether by special discriminations the elective franchise in any state has been unconstitutionally limited, and if such is the case we demand that representation in congress and in the electoral colleges shall be proportionally reduced, as directed by the Constitution of the United States.

Combinations of capital and of labor are the results of economic movement of the age, but neither must be permitted to infringe upon the rights and interests of the people. Such combinations, when lawfully formed for lawful purposes, are alike entitled to the protection of the laws, but both are subject to the laws, and neither can be permitted to break them.

The great statesman and patriotic American, William McKinley, who was re-elected by the republican party to the presidency four years ago, was assassinated just at the threshold of his second term. The entire nation mourned his untimely death, and did that justice to his great qualities of mind and character which history will confirm and repeat.

The American people were fortunate in his successor, to whom they turned with a trust and confidence which have been fully justified. President Roosevelt brought to the great responsibilities thus early forced upon him a clear head, a brave heart, and earnest patriotism and high ideals of public duty and public service. True to the principles of the republican party and to the policies which that party had declared, he has also shown himself ready for every emergency and has met new and vital questions with ability and with success.

The confidence of the people in his justice, inspired by his public career, enabled him to render personally an inestimable service to the country by bringing about a settlement of the coal strike which threatened such disastrous results at the opening of winter in 1902.

Our foreign policy under his administration has not only been able, vigorous and dignified, but in the highest degree successful.

The complicated questions which arose in Venezuela were settled in such a way by President Roosevelt that the Monroe doctrine was signally vindicated and the cause of peace and arbitration greatly advanced.

His prompt and vigorous action in Panama, which we commend in the highest terms, not only secured to us the canal route, but avoided foreign complications which might have been of a very serious character.

He has continued the policy of President McKinley in the Orient, and our position in China, signalized by our recent commercial treaty with that empire, has never been so high.

He secured the tribunal by which the vexed and perilous question of the Alaskan boundary was finally settled.

Whenever against humanity have been perpetrated which shocked our people, his protest has been made and our good offices have been tendered, but always with due regard to international obligations.

Under his guidance we found ourselves at peace with all the world, and never were we more respected or our wishes more regarded by foreign nations.

Pre-eminently successful in regard to our foreign relations, he has been equally fortunate in dealing with domestic questions. The country has known that the public credit and the national currency were absolutely safe in the hands of his administration. In the enforcement of the laws, he has shown not only courage but the wisdom which understands that to permit laws to be violated or disregarded opens the door to anarchy, while the just enforcement of the law is the soundest conservatism. He has held firmly to the fundamental American doctrine that all men must obey the law; that there must be no distinction between rich and poor, between strong and weak, but that justice and equal protection under law must be secured to every citizen without regard to race, creed of condition.

His administration has been throughout vigorous and honorable, high-minded and patriotic. We commend it without reservation to the considerate judgment of the American people.

Misses Dolly Huron and Ethel Souther, of near Hebron, were guests of Miss Mabel Huron, last week.

Several from here attended the Grange picnic at Richwood, Saturday and report it a success in every way.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Edwards, of Covington, have returned home after a visit of several days with relatives near here.

Operator Chess Northcutt, has been on the sick list for several days, but has managed to keep his place at the key and sounder.

Eugene Wallingford has entered suit against the Southern Railway for the sum of $2,000. He was returning from Cincinnati, recently, on the evening train, and he claims that he was insulted and roughly used in the presence of those in charge of the train and that they, the Company's employees, did not make any effort to accommodate him. He has but one arm and was physically unable to protect himself, and in his suit he prays that the sum above stated be given him for personal abuse and humiliation while on the Company's train.

WALTON.

June 27.—Miss Kate Grubbs is visiting Miss Blanche Smith in Sisterisville, West Virginia.

Prof. Dickey went to Maysville, last Wednesday, to attend the annual meeting of the Kentucky Educational Association.

An automobile party came out from the city, last week, and spent a few hours in town. On the return trip the machine became unmanageable and ran into a moving freight train near Richwood. The occupants escaped with slight injury, but the machine was a total wreck.

It was with a kind of mild surprise that our citizens learned that Walton dogs made a raid on the flocks of Messrs James J. Cleek and J. A. Sanders, a couple of nights last week. Such action on the part of the dogs had been predicted for some time, as there is an abundance of dogs, and their numbers appear to have been increasing so rapidly that many of them must have been going hungry for some time. Mr. Sanders had two of his flock killed and four wounded; Mr. Cleek had four killed. Since the raid, dogs have been very scarce on the streets.

Last Tuesday evening a jovial fishing party chartered the band wagon, filled it with poles and baskets and left for parts unknown. The party chaperoned by Miss Graham Roberts assisted by Miss Ada Lermond, consisted of Misses Hind, Green, Bentz, Mayhugh, Wilson, Menefee, and Messrs. Whiting, Jones, Dickey, Byland and Watson. As reported by the chaperones, the principal features of the evening were fishing, a moonlight drive, a choice and bountiful lunch, followed by an exciting visit to a haunted house. The party returned about 11 o'clock with a good supply of fish. Chas. Jones won first prize by catching 16 suckers; Miss Hind won second prize by catching a terrapin.

William Calemese, of Bullittsville, who was hit on his head and badly hurt while playing ball here last Saturday, rested well last night and is now thought to be doing well, we are glad to report.

Tomie Fowler is clerking for Marce Riddell.

Startling Evidence.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when other remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all Druggist.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, It has pleased our Grand Master to remove from our midst by death, our friend and sister, Belle Williamson, who departed this life on June 23d, at the age of 24 years. Sister Williamson was initiated into the mysteries of the Rebecca Degree, on Wednesday evening, September 9th, 1903. Sister Williamson was not only a devoted Rebecca with all the name implies, but a mother to her family, a neighbor to the distressed, and was respected by all who knew her. Her death has cast a gloom over our community, which is felt by all, regardless of affiliation. We commend the family to Him in Whom sister Williamson so faithfully looked for all good, and in Whose service her life was given.

Resolved, That this tribute is the expression of your committee and voiced by Evergreen Lodge No. 24, individually and collectively.

Resolved, That these resolutions be ... upon the Lodge records, a copy ... family of our deceased Sister ... to the Boone County ... for publication.

The little child of Bernard Rogers and wife, who live near Bellevue toll-gate, while out at play, a few days since, found a large spreading adder, which it picked up and carried into the house to its mother. When Mrs. Rogers first discovered that the child was carrying the snake, the snakes head was protruding from one of the child's beds, while the other hand grasped the snake near its middle. Badly frightened, Mrs. Rogers sprang to and grasped the child, giving it such a violent shake as to cause it to drop the reptile, which, no sooner had it struck the floor than it coiled, and was ready for battle. Having rescued her child Mrs. Rogers lost no time in killing the snake. How it happened that the child was not bitten is past comprehension.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of the remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel-complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr. Frank Rigg, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard and while especially beneficial to children, it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by all Druggists.

The Town Council passed an ordinance that all gates should open inwardly, and yesterday in all parts of the town men could be seen changing the swing to the inside. Another measure is under serious consideration by trustees, viz: that all paper, rubbish, etc., shall be kept off the streets by the owners of property abutting thereon: and also another that all refuse matter likely to contain germs of infectious disease shall be burnt or disinfected. There are other matters affecting the town that requires the attention of the trustees, and the board will be upheld by all good citizens if strenuous measures are adopted.

The Way of Blessing

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1904, by J. M. Ellison.)

Chicago, Sunday, July 3, 1904.

Text.—"Ye shall observe to do therefore as Jehovah your God hath commanded you; ye shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left; ye shall walk in all the way which Jehovah your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess."—Deut. 5:32-33.

GOD longs to bless. With inexhaustible resources at His command, with unlimited power to accomplish His purposes, with infinite wisdom to direct and unfathomable love to control. God is a God who is able to bless, who wants to bless, and who will bless, if we will put ourselves in the way of blessing. Man knows God so imperfectly, and judges of the Divine nature and character from the wayward and imperfect and sinful human heart, that it is not an uncommon thing for man to think that God is capricious and partial in His dealings, that blessing at His hands is not a sure reward, but uncertain in realization, and disproportionate in amount. How often God is charged with forgetfulness, if not absolute and heartless neglect. How often discontent and bitterness of heart control in the thought of God, because we encourage ourselves to believe that mer. it has gone unrewarded, that faithfulness has been unnoticed and uncommended; that obedience has not received its just compensation. We judge God unfaithful, unappreciative, unloving and unfair, and turn from Him in impatience and unbelief and resolve that we will quit trying. Such, I say, is a common experience. I dare say you who read these words can recall such in your life. But it is all wickedly untrue. God longs to bless, and His blessing is not given capriciously and with partiality, for "God is no respecter of persons;" He has no favorites, in the human sense of the term; He does not give to one what He is unable or unwilling to give to another under like circumstances and conditions, and the Divine will and purpose and the conditions which call forth the blessing do not fluctuate like the quotations of the stock market.

THERE are conditions governing blessing at the hands of the Lord. I do not recall a single promise of God which is not linked with some condition. Man must do his part in order to receive and enjoy the blessing which God would give him. Earthly parents give too often to their children with carelessly indulgent hand and spoil in the giving. They give without thought, reason or purpose. They give just to gratify the parental pride in giving, and to satisfy the willful desire on the part of the child to receive. More often than not no conditions whatever are imposed. The child receives whether it merits it or not. Even when conditions are imposed as like as not it receives whether the conditions are fulfilled or not. But it is not so with the dear Lord, who is too wise, and too loving, and too faithful, to commit any such error. The promise of His blessing is conditioned upon the attitude of the heart of man, upon the yieldingness of his will, upon the faithfulness of the life. In God's dealings with the children of Israel we find suggestive thoughts of God's method with man today. When they were obedient unto His law, and followed His leading, they received the blessing at His hands. When they were disobedient and turned aside into forbidden paths, the fruitage of their sins was trouble and hardship, and oppression at the hands of the heathen nations about them. Our text gives us God's special admonition: "Ye shall observe to do therefore as Jehovah your God hath commanded you; ye shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left; ye shall walk in all the way which Jehovah your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess."

HERE we have admonition and promise. The way of blessing was marked by life and well-being and fullness of years, and to walk that way required obedience to God's law, steadfastness of purpose and persistent effort. The highest thing which God could offer was life, and well-being while life lasted, and completeness of years, and blessing at God's hands always includes these three. What greater blessing can God offer than life? With that one element of life lacking of what good is all else? Life! Life! Life! What a wonderful thing is this life which throbs in our veins! This physical life, which makes of our flesh something higher and better than mere earth upon which our feet tread. And to obey God means life—physical life and spiritual life. Sin means death, it IS death, but observing God's law, and walking therein means life here and life in the world to come. First of all then as a matter of blessing is life to be, and when God promised life I feel that we are warranted in believing that he not only meant life here, but also life beyond the grave. There is no doubt that Godliness is profitable in all things and gives lengthened life here, but the few months or years which could be added to one's earthly career could hardly be held to fulfill God's promise of life. But eternal life as a reward of obedience to God's will seems more in keeping with the character and purpose of God. When God therefore says unto me: "Observe to do as the Lord your God commands you, that ye may live," He means to offer us nothing less than continuous life with Him.

THIS is the first and highest blessing which He can confer, and with this gift of life comes promise of well-being and completeness of years. "That it may be well with you." What does this mean, if it is not that every circumstance in life shall focus to the one point of accomplishing good for you? Those who know not God and who are indifferent to His claims upon them cannot realize what this means. The people of the world go through life experiencing its sunshine and its shower, its joys and its sorrows, its trials and its pleasures, and never learning any higher philosophy than that of enjoyment or endurance. Circumstances bring such and such experiences, and they look no higher for their message or their purpose, but it is not so with one who is walking in obedience and fellowship with God, for every experience and every circumstance work out for his best good. "That it may be well with you." Perhaps not as we would choose, or as our limited vision would dictate as best, but that which is well for us from God's perfect point of view. A parent is often forced to choose for the child contrary to the little one's desire and longing. Why? Not to cause the child sorrow. Not to deprive it of some real and wholesome good. No, but because the maturer judgment and clearer vision of the parent see that the good of the child demands restriction and denial. "That it may be well" with the child, requires that it yield loving obedience to the parent, and walk in the pathway marked out by his tender, wise judgment. And so is it with our relations to our Heavenly Father. His way is best. His way is the pathway of blessing. For some what may, "all things work together for good to them that love God." And then there is the thought of completeness. "That ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess." God never turns out anything but a finished product. View nature from any standpoint, with microscope or telescope, and everything is complete and perfect. Ah, how wonderfully so! And God desires for us just such delightful completeness. In His hands, obedient to His will, following His leading, mean prolonged days and complete possession of the place intended to be filled by us. We come short of the glory of God because we refuse to walk in the path of blessing. We fail to reach completion, but if we observe to do as the Lord commands us He realizes in us that glorious completion of life and character which He had planned.

SO MUCH then for the blessing which comes in the way of obedience to God. It means life, it means well-being, it means completeness. And around this three-fold blessing cluster all else that may come to one. But what of the way of realizing this blessing? How may we realize this God-given life, this well-being at His hands, this completeness of life and character? God says: "Observe to do as Jehovah your God hath commanded you; ye shall not turn to the right hand or the left; ye shall walk in all the way which Jehovah your God hath commanded." What is it to observe to do all that God has commanded? Can it mean less than complete observance of His perfect law? Surely not, for God means what He says and always says what He means. And if the way of blessing is to be found only by perfect obedience to God's law, who is there who can fulfill God's conditions? Moses failed, David failed, the prophets whom God sent all failed, there was none who could perfectly keep God's law. And there has been no one since then who has succeeded. What then is man to do? Has God imposed conditions He knew man could not meet? Yes, but He also provided one who has perfectly kept His law and earned the way of blessing, Jesus, the only begotten Son of God. And while man is utterly unable to fulfill God's conditions Jesus has accomplish it for him, and the first step in obedience to God's law is the recognition of Jesus as the Son of God, and the acceptance of Him as Saviour. Obedience cannot possibly be realized by the observance of a few of the minor laws of God, while the supreme command, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ," goes unheeded and is willfully disobeyed.

OBEDIENCE—what is obedience? Aboubeker, the successor of Mahomet, in order that he might continue his conquests wrote to Amrou, one of his followers, ordering him to levy a number of warriors among his tribes and conduct them to Damascus to swell the torrent of Islamism. Amrou, who governed in peace his shepherd tribes, received this order with pain, but he did not hesitate to obey. "I am," he sent back word to the caliph, "one of the arrows of Islamism; God has placed the bow in thy hand; it is for thee to launch the arrow to what destination thou mayest choose." Here was admirable obedience. Amrou might have yielded obedience in every other relation which he sustained to his chief and yet he would have failed if he had refused to grant this special request. Here was the test as to whether or not he was an obedient follower of Aboubeker. Can we think that God would demand less than an earthly ruler? If we reject Christ and His claims upon us, we reject all. If we refuse to obey the supreme call of God to believe on His son as the Saviour of the world, and the One who can cleanse from all sin, obedience in minor points will avail us nothing. The way of blessing is along the pathway of obedience. Jesus is the doorway to that pathway, and as we surrender our lives to Him, as we steadfastly follow His leading, we shall realize the blessing which God alone can give and which He will give if we will but fulfill His conditions. Oh, how we all may seek the way of blessing!

HE'LL GET IN, YOU CAN BET ON THAT.

ARGUMENT THAT IS FUNNY.

Secretary Shaw Tries to Prove That High Prices Are a Blessing to Workingmen.

There is no escape for the republicans from the stand-pat position on the tariff taken by them. They are compelled by events to contend that prosperity is widespread. But Secretary Shaw in opening the republican campaign in Delaware under the auspices of the Wilmington Roosevelt Workingmen's club endeavored to make "labor" see that their welfare depended upon the success of the republicans whose policy had produced high prices, and, as he claimed, correspondingly high wages and steady employment. Secretary Shaw is an adept at telling half-truths and then building thereon an argument to prove his contention. He said to the Wilmington workingmen: "Universal and constant employment at reasonable wages, even in the face of high priced living expenses, is preferable to employment to only a portion of our people, though at the same wages and at much reduced living expenses."

Are the workingmen of Wilmington blessed with "universal and constant employment," as Secretary Shaw would have them believe? The reports of the condition of the ship building industry, car shops, woolen mills and some other industries which are carried on at Wilmington do not by any means support the Shaw theory that employment is "universal and constant," but rather that a great many men are idle and a number working on short time. That this is the condition of the manufacturing and railroad centers nearly everywhere is unfortunately true, and no one should know it better than Secretary Shaw, who has all the government sources of information at his command.

But instead of telling the whole truth and nothing but the truth about the conditions that prevail for the American workingmen under the high priced trust era that republican policies have produced, Secretary Shaw promises to furnish "well authenticated data, from the highest possible authority in the United States, showing that the average wages have increased in larger proportion than the average articles of ordinary household consumption."

It is common report that Secretary Cortelyou is having prepared in the bureau of statistics the data that Secretary Shaw gives notice of appearing, in fact that the matter for the republican campaign book is being prepared at government expense and to make a showing favorable to the advantages of high tariff and high trust prices.

Government statistics are notoriously unreliable when manufactured to suit partisan purposes, and although the expert statisticians of the department of commerce and labor may prove that all of us are living in luxury, every one can judge of his own condition better than partisan figures can prove it to him.

There will doubtless be a great number of Roosevelt workingmen's clubs organized by the republican politicians all over the country, but it will keep Secretary Shaw and other republican spellbinders busy explaining how, under present high trust prices, those of us with restricted incomes can make expenses come within what is received. The true test of prosperity is a comfortable living and the amount remaining after all the bills are paid for necessities, that can be expended for luxuries, or that can be saved for the proverbial rainy day. Each family can decide if they are satisfied with their present condition more certainly than experts' figures or the special pleading of Secretary Shaw can determine for them.

If the voter concludes that he is prosperous and is willing to continue to pay high prices, and his own share of the enormous profits that the high tariff allows the trusts to plunder him of, he should vote the republican ticket and thus support the stand-pat policy of no change in present conditions. But if he is not satisfied, if he feels that the wages he is receiving do not allow him and his family to live in comfort because the cost of living has advanced more than wages have increased, then logically it is against his interest to stand pat and a change is necessary. As the republicans declare against any change, the voter must turn to the party whose declarations and traditional policy are to reduce the tariff, that trusts cannot find shelter under it. Such a change in the fiscal policy of the United States is advocated by the democrats. Not a radical change that would upset business and injure honest manufacturers, but the tariff so revised that the trusts that sell cheaper abroad than at home would be prevented from doing so any longer. That is the "Iowa idea" of a large faction of republicans of Secretary Shaw's own state, but he and his partisans were able through the enormous power of patronage to defeat the revisionists and are now intent on cooking the statistics to prove their contention. The workingman of the east must therefore, like the farmer of the west, decide between the two great parties as to the policy which will give him the greatest comfort and prosperity.

West Wants Free Lumber.

The once extensive pine forests of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota are rapidly disappearing under the ax of the lumberman—and the sources of lumber supply are so nearly exhausted east of the Rocky mountains that we are already forced to depend on the forests of Washington for lumber—and the prices of lumber have advanced and are advancing in proportion to the growing scarcity of the supply. Yet close at hand lie the almost inexhaustible forests of Canada—which is shut out of our markets by a tariff of two dollars per thousand. The admission of that lumber free would relieve the farmers of the northwest, and, indeed, the entire people of the states continuous to the Canadian border, of the heavy burden now imposed upon them by the high prices of lumber.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press (Rep.).

HOW JACK LONDON ARRIVED

Jack London, the fascinating short-story writer and brilliant war correspondent, now at the front, is but 23 years old, says the Boston Globe. Three years ago he was unheard of by the reading world. To-day he is read everywhere, is sought by publishers, and the pages of the magazines, from the Century down, are open to him.

The story of his early privations and hardships—his boyhood on a California ranch, his years before the mast in the waters of the Golden Gate, his struggle for learning, and the daring trip to the Klondike, from which he returned with more knowledge than nuggets—is known to most of his readers now. The story of how he "arrived," how he first set foot upon the stepping stone to success, he tells in the Editor, the New York magazine for literary workers, incidentally giving the latter class some excellent advice. Here are a few of his terse, pregnant sentences:

Work! Don't wait for some good Samaritan to tell you, but dig it out yourself.

Fiction pays best of all.

Don't write too much. Don't dash off a 5,000-word story before breakfast.

Avoid the unhappy ending, the harsh, the brutal, the tragic, the horrible—if you care to see in print the things you write.

Keep a notebook. Travel with it, eat with it, sleep with it. Slap into it every stray thought that flutters up into your brain.

This valuable advice is appended to the story of his own struggle for recognition. Every one likes to know how the successful succeed.

He had many liabilities and no assets, no income and several mouths to feed. He lived in California, far from the great publishing centers, and did not know what an editor looked like. But he sat down and wrote. Day by day his pile of manuscripts mounted up. He had vague ideas, obtained from a Sunday supplement, that a minimum rate of ten dollars a thousand words was paid, and figured on earning $600 a month, without overstocking the market.

One morning the postman brought him, instead of the usual long, thick manuscript envelope, a short, thin one. He couldn't open it right away. It seemed a sacred thing. It contained the written words of an editor of a big magazine. When, modest as ever, he had figured in his mind what the offer for this 4,000-word story would be at the minimum rate—$40, of course—he opened the letter. Five dollars!

Not having died right then and there, Mr. London is convinced that he may yet qualify as an oldest inhabitant.

But, by and by, in the course of its wanderings, one of his stories reached an editor who could see the genius of Jack London, and had the patience to penetrate beneath the husk of wordy introduction and discover the golden grain—the capital Story, with a capital S, and—rarest quality of all—the business sagacity to offer an unknown writer more for a good story than he would pay for a commonplace one from a famous author.

Here is the incident that proved the turning point in Jack London's literary career, as he so graphically tells it:

"Nothing remained but to get out and shovel coal. I had done it before, and earned more money at it. I resolved to do it again, and I certainly should have done it, had it not been for The Black Cat.

"Yes, The Black Cat. The postman brought me an offer from it for a 4,000-word story which was more lengthy and strengthy, if I would grant permission to cut it down half. Grant permission? I told them they could cut it down two-halves if they'd only send the money along, which they did, by return mail. As for the five dollars previously mentioned, I finally received it, after publication and a great deal of embarrassment and trouble. I forgot my coal-shoveling resolution, and continued to whang away at the typewriter."

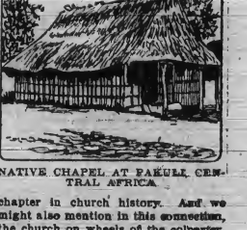
And the rate he received for his first Black Cat story was nearly 20 times what the five-dollar editor paid.

Nor is Jack London the only writer who has been lifted from obscurity to prominence by the lucky Black Cat, which, as the New York Press has truly said, has done more for short-story writers and short-story readers than any other publication.

Each of its famous prize competitions has brought new writers to the front. In its most recent, the $2,100 prize was won by a young Texan who had never before written a story, and the second, $1,300, went to a lawyer's wife in an obscure Missouri town.

It has just inaugurated another contest in which $10,600 will be paid to writers in sums of from $100 to $1,500. This will, no doubt, add many new names to the list of those who have "arrived" through its recognition.

The conditions are announced in the current issue of The Black Cat, and will also be mailed free to any one by The Shortstory Publishing company, Boston, Mass. Even those who cannot write a winning story themselves may earn ten dollars by giving a timely tip to some friend who can.



But all should bear in mind that it will be entirely useless for any one to send a story to The Black Cat without first reading and complying with all the published conditions. Here is a chance for the reader to dig dollars out of his brain, for what life does not at least contain one tale worth telling?

SOME ODD CHURCHES

THE ROMANCE AND PRIVATION OF THE MISSION FIELDS.

Economy and Force of Circumstances Often Compel the Use of Queer Places as Houses of Worship.

In the home land one often finds singular buildings serving as churches—the sod churches of the Nebraska prairies, the canvas church of the western town, an old land office, perhaps, preempted by a zealous preacher and converted into a chapel, as is the case at Goodland, Ind., an abandoned butcher shop at Cordell, Okla., with the meat hooks as clothes racks, and the meat block as pulpit, or the log churches of the lumber camps of Michigan. And then, on the other hand, in this Christian (?) land we sometimes find a church turned into a saloon, or a factory, or printing shop, and this all forms a singular and interesting chapter in church history. And we might also mention in this connection, the church on wheels of the colporter, who drives from town to town in our western and northwestern states with his well-equipped wagon containing organ and other adjuncts to the successful religious meeting, and the chapel cars, of which there are several now running over the roads, west and north and south. These cars contain chapels which will seat about 50 people, and are fitted up with all the conveniences of the modern church.

But the queerest places for worship are found in the strange lands to which we send our missionaries. Economy figures largely in the matter of church edifice on the mission field, and sometimes the missionary is forced to build the church as well as to preach the Gospel, as was the case with one who is stationed at Fakuil, central Africa. He constructed a chapel without boards or nails, and entirely with his own hands. Grasses woven into matting was strapped to upright poles to form the walls of the walls, and the roof was thatched, and a very cool and comfortable house of worship it made.

Bishop Partridge sends a pathetic story from Japan. "We have one small rough board table for Holy Communion," he writes, "and I don't know what use they put it to when we are not there.

"Our church is most primitive. We put square cushions in a circle for guests and call it our parlor. Then when little trays of fish and rice and eggs are slid along its polished surface it becomes our 'dining room,' and in the evening when we bring in the green quilts that tempt repose it is our 'bedroom.' And on Sunday morning when it is swept and cleaned and the cushions ranged facing the east we have to call it our 'church.'"

It does not take much to construct a "church" suitable for the beginning of missionary work, as will be seen from the following report from the Pwo Karen district of Burmah: "Our meeting place," writes the missionary, "was to be a booth, but when the natives planned this primitive church I told them to avoid the many posts which break up the floor space of native structures in Burmah. Forthwith they took me at my word and suspended the thatched roof from two mango trees.

News of another delightful church comes from the Presbyterian missions in Mexico—Toluca, Ozumba and Chimal—a little church room, with its dirt floor strewn with the new mown grass and the petals of pink roses. It is no wonder that the deacons and officials of these savage churches should take unto themselves flowery names.

Speaking of China, let the Rev. F. H. Crofoot tell us about his wonderful church at Weihsien, which may be said to have been built around one beautiful rose window, the gift of the Park Avenue church at Pittsburg. "This window may be seen behind the pulpit, and it was sent out just before the great Boxer outbreak, but fortunately had not reached its destination before the riots began in June

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

DESTRUCTION OF INSECTS.

Texas Man Has Invented a Gas-Making Machine That Kills Parasites "on Sight."

When the plants in the little garden patch in the house-garden begin to show the destroying effects of insects and worms, the gardener usually takes an old tomato can and a stick and gathers his first crop, which he proceeds to destroy forthwith. Only as he continues to harvest these preliminary pestiferous growths has he any assurance that he will be able to gather things good to eat later in the season. But the garden is comparatively small, and little time is required to keep the bugs and worms in check. It is only when the farmer begins his battle with the inhabitants of a potato patch covering acres of ground that he comes to realize how powerful an enemy he is fighting. The army is so large that he has no choice but to fight it wholesale, instead of dealing with each one of the little pests individually, as in the garden. The common method of work is to apply paris green, hellebore or some other poison which can be mixed in liquid form and sprinkled on the plants. It is well known that many bugs escape this poison and continue to live and breed, even when the plants are dosed several times during the season. It is to be hoped that the new apparatus which we show in the illustration will prove more effective and subject the bugs to a treatment which it will be impossible for them to withstand. In this machine there is a gas-producing apparatus, designed to generate a large quantity of noxious fumes. This gas is stored in the reservoirs on the carriage, and the latter is then driven over the field lengthwise of the rows of plants., It will be seen that the semi-circular shape of the reservoirs enables them to nearly inclose the plant growths for a considerable space of time while the carriage is being drawn along. The gas in storage is poured from the front of the hooded portion, and surrounds the plant completely for a period long enough to kill all insects which are harbored therein.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

REAL HOME OF BLUEGRASS.

It Was First Discovered in Indiana and Kentucky Got It from the Hoosier State.

"I notice by the papers that somebody in the southern part of the state wants to know where bluegrass first started," said Prof. John Collett, former state geologist. "A great many people contend that it was first found in Kentucky, but this is not so. Bluegrass is a native of the Wabash valley, in Indiana. It was found by William Henry Harrison's troops during that solemn march to Tippecanoe in 1811. Harrison gathered a small army at Ohio Falls and started north. At Vincennes the gallant heroes realized that they could not go 200 miles up the Wabash without feed for their horses. Gen. Harrison had two cribs of corn at Terre Haute, and persuaded the men to go on. As they came on with hungry horses and scant feed they found the ground covered with bluegrass.

"Six miles west of Newport, on the Collett farm, was found a bountiful supply of bluegrass. Some places in the bottom it was growing three feet high, and such feed had never been heard of by the Kentucky soldier. At State Line City more bluegrass was found, and from there to Tippecanoe the whole line of marc.. was covered with bluegrass.

"The seed was carried back to Kentucky and sown there, but they could not make it thrive alone in the warm soil, and it had to be sown with oats and rye. Mr. Sandusky, the father of the present family of that name, told me in an early day that no bluegrass grew in Kentucky until after it was imported from Indiana. Tom Downing, of Terre Haute, was an ardent admirer of Henry Clay, and once went to visit him at his home near Ashland, Ky. After seeing the fine farm well set in bluegrass, Downing suggested that Mr. Clay let him have some of the seed to take back to Indiana.

"'Tom, don't make a fool of yourself,' said Clay, 'the grandsire of Kentucky bluegrass is growing around your house and in the fence corners of your fields. We got the seed from Terre Haute and the middle Wabash and after a hard struggle got it to grow here in its present luxuriousness."—Indianapolis Journal.

TWO STRAWBERRY PESTS.

They Are Called False-Worm and Leaf Roller and Are Very Hard to Exterminate.

The Missouri station last year conducted some very interesting experiments and investigations in the destruction of the two worst strawberry pests in this country, the false-worm and the leaf-roller. The first is found to have but one brood which hatches from the time the first blossoms appear till the berries are ripe. These can easily be held in check by dusting or spraying about the beginning and middle of this time. For the home patch or home market, it is best to dust the patch with pure, fresh pyrethrum, which can be done at any time, as it is absolutely harmless. This is, however, the most expensive and least effective of all the known remedies. For commercial growers, the best method is to use fresh powdered white hellebore in the proportion of one pound to every three gallons of water. This should be sprayed on before the berries are a third ripe, so that the rains and dews will have abundant time to dissipate any possible harmful effects from it.

The leaf-roller probably has only two broods in the north, but in southern Missouri it has three. This pest has so many ways of protecting itself that no kind of sprays or ordinary remedy does any good. Fortunately, however, fire doesn't hurt the plants any and does dispose of them very effectually. The plants should be mowed, dried, raked up on the rows and if necessary assisted by the addition of dry straw and the whole burned when the wind is in the right direction. In the south this should be done either in the middle of July, to catch the second brood, or in the middle of September, to catch the third. The plants will at once put forth a set of fresh green leaves free from pests of all kinds; the next year's crop will generally be remarkably successful.

PLANT LICE IN ORCHARDS.

They Are Exceedingly Hard to Kill and Ordinary Sprays Have Little Effect on Them.

Although plant lice probably often occur in orchards, they are very seldom found in such numbers as to be really troublesome or destructive. A noted exception was the past season in New York state, probably on account of the unusual weather conditions, which seem to have prevented the usual development of their natural enemies, the lady beetles. There are three kinds of plant lice that may occur on apple trees, namely, Fitch's apple aphis, the Rosy apple aphis and the Apple Leaf aphis. The last is the only one that lives on the apple all the year round and is doubtless responsible for the remarkable amount of damage done in western New York during the past season.

As these insects feed somewhat after the manner of a mosquito, by sucking up the internal juices of the plant through a long threadlike bill, therefore the ordinary poison sprays, such as bordeaux mixture or paris green, have little or no effect on them. They should rather be smothered and drowned in emulsions of kerosene, whale oil soap or tobacco. A spraying of this kind should be extremely thorough, as the insects are not killed unless hit with the spray, and they reproduce very rapidly indeed.

VERY CHEAP STEPLADDER.

Convenient in the House During Cleaning Time and Out of Doors All the Time.

The illustration shows a cheap, handy stepladder. It need cost but very little. It is just five feet high, and is most convenient in the house during cleaning time, and out of doors at all times. During the fruit-picking season it is almost indispensable. The ladder proper is made of one by six boards, with the steps of the same material. The two opposite legs are two by two, properly braced. The board on the top should be of good lach boards with at least two cleats underneath. — Orange Judd Farmer.

New Lime and Oil Spray.

A Delaware fruit grower, William Dickson, has worked out a new formula for the destruction of the San Jose scale. He calls it lime oil. This new combination will doubtless be responsible for many changes in the use of both crude petroleum or refined oil. Mr. Dickson slacks ten pounds of stone lime with five gallons of refined kerosene oil, after which he adds 25 gallons of water; this gives him a 20 per cent. oil solution. It can be applied almost as easily as pure kerosene, does not injure the foliage and will kill the scale. It is much less trouble to make than the kerosene emulsion and more easily applied.—St. Louis Republic.

How to Grow the Currant.

No other small fruit is so often found in the home garden and under so general neglect, and yet that under this condition produces fruit of some value, remarks Prof. Maynard. When well grown in a rich soil and properly pruned the fruit is of large size and is produced in large quantities. It succeeds well under the shade of fruit or ornamental trees, if the soil is made rich. To obtain the largest and best fruit the old wood (that over three years old) is cut away as the large fruit is borne on canes two and three years old.

POPULARITY OF HOUSEBOAT

Summer Outings on the Waterways of This Country Are Coming More Into Favor.

Dealers in boats say there is an increased call this year over last for houseboats, and some of them believe that this way of taking a summer outing is at last coming into popular favor after a delay that has always been inexplicable, says the Philadelphia Record.

In London the fad has flourished on the Thames to such an extent as to necessitate special legislation to regulate it, and at certain times the boats have been so numerous as to make it possible to walk across their decks from one bank to the other.

In this country the trouble seems to have been that there is too much rather than too little available room, and the long reaches of water, such as those in Barnegat bay and other places which are ideal for sailing, are found rather lonesome for living on the anchored houseboat. It is to be noticed that the enthusiast of one year, full of really convincing arguments concerning the absence of taxes and other possible economies, is ready to sell his craft the next year after having tried it, and often finds it hard to make a satisfactory sale.

A company which was organized to build houseboats in order and to keep a number on hand for rent went into business on an extensive scale in New York about ten years ago, getting out a magazine as a further means of popularizing the idea, but only lasted a year. Since then there has been a small increase in the total number of boats thus used, and now the hopeful ones think the boom is at last in sight.

ENGLAND'S MONEY WORSHIP

The Avowed Religion of a Large Section of Great Britain's Upper Classes.

"How is it that on his arrival in London, apparently a poor, if not a penniless, man he could in a few years reconstruct his fortunes, build a palace in Surrey, acquire a mansion in Park Lane, fare delicately, lie soft, and warm both hands before the fire of life as the associate of smart society, and the subsidizer of statesmen, as the patron of privy councilors, exercising despotism over dukes, earls and marquises, and dispensing favors to financiers of standing and to leaders of public opinion in the press and society? How is it no voice was raised by those who knew his character, to warn the public and society against him?" So asks Mr. Arnold White in his article on "The Whitaker Wright Case," in Pearson's:

"The answer is—because the worship of money to-day in England has become the avowed religion of a large section of its upper classes. The origin of money is immaterial; its possession everything. The man who can impart an effervescent value to worthless stock is worshiped and pursued by the votaries of pleasure as magicians, philosophers and saints were pursued in former times. Whitaker Wright pursued his course unchecked. He ruined thousands, degraded the most honored names in the land, and was aided and abetted in his scheme by men guiltier than himself, by a corrupted press, and by those who knew the unsoundness of his methods, but profited by their knowledge."

AS TO RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

Increase in Casualties Traceable to Physical Deficiencies and Too Long Hours.

Railroad accidents are increasing every month. During the months of July, August and September last there were 280 persons killed and 3,582 injured in train accidents. Other accidents not due to train collisions make the total number of killed and injured 15,187. This is an increase of 181 over the number of accidents in the preceding quarter, i. e., April, May and June last year. This quarter showed, also, an increase of 50 over the quarter immediately preceding.

The constant increase in the number of fatalities and accidents on our railroads, says Medical Talk for the Home, certainly requires investigation. In spite of all the precautions and scientific additions for the safety of men, the destruction of men continues to increase every year.

Traced to the bottom it will be found, we doubt not, that this increase in casualties is due to the physical condition of the men employed. We do not think that any moral delinquency explains it. We believe it to be partly due to the long hours of work, and partly due to original physical deficiencies. A railroad man ought to be a man who has regular hours of sleep, a man of good habits, a man whose physical condition is such as to give him complete possession of his body, steadiness of nerve and coolness of judgment in all cases of emergency.

Cox, Wis., July 4.—Frank M. Russell of this place, had Kidney Disease so bad that he could not walk. He tried Doctors' treatment and many different remedies, but was getting worse. He was very low.

He read in a newspaper how Dodd's Kidney Pills were curing cases of Kidney Trouble, Bright's Disease, and Rheumatism, and thought he would try them. He took two boxes, and now he is quite well. He says:—

"I can now work all day, and not feel tired. Before using Dodd's Kidney Pills, I couldn't walk across the floor."

THE wisdom of the Democratic party is supposed to be assembled at St. Louis, this week, for the purpose of selecting material for President and Vice President of this the greatest country on earth.

The largest shipment of logs that ever came down the Kentucky river passed through Lock No. 5, the first of this week, blocking the river for a distance of ten miles and passing steamers had to stop in their course until the rafts could be prized aside sufficiently to afford them passage. In all, these rafts contained 60,000,000 feet of white oak timber, all of which is destined for the ship yards at Liverpool, England. The largest log is 60 feet in length and is squared to thirty inches, containing 4,500 feet of lumber, and there is no place in this lot which is less than forty feet in length. The timber will be taken to Cincinnati where it will be loaded on the cars and taken to the sea-board. This is the first run made on a contract of 180,000,000 feet of timber to be taken from Casey county, and all shipped to the same parties. All timbers are squared before starting from the forest. The sixty foot piece is said to be the largest single stick that ever came down the river.—Anderson News.

The editor of Practical Farmer says: Many farmers have gotten so accustomed to the use of the convenient commercial fertilizers that they have come to the conclusion that with every crop planted it is necessary to use some complete fertilizer, and daily we get letters from farmers in all parts of the country asking for a formula for a fertilizer for the corn crop. We have in years past experienced largely in fertilizers for various crops, and in no instance have we ever found that a complete fertilizer of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, ever paid its cost to the corn crop. Experiments made during a series of years at the Ohio Experiment Station have shown the same results. Of course, the application of a complete commercial fertilizer will increase the crop of corn, but if the farmer will have a test plat unfertilized we are certain that he will find that the increased crop did not pay the cost of the complete fertilizer. A constant dependence on the commercial fertilizers simply for the production of crops for sale is not good farming. The true office of commercial fertilizers is to enable us the better to improve our lands through the growing of legumes for forage and thus to increase the amount of the home-made manure. The cornfield is the place where the home-made manure can be the most profitably used, and it should there go broadcast with a manure spreader, and should have the further aid of a clover sod. In the Middle States and North this will be red clover, and in the South where the corn follows the cotton crop, it should be crimson clover or vetch sown among the cotton the fall before. Then the cultivation of the corn crop will be the best possible preparation of the soil for the sowing of fall grain. Acid phosphate and potash on the clover will make the complete fertilizer for the corn more cheaply than the use of a factory mixed complete article, in which the nitrogen is the most costly part, and which in the way we have outlined we get practically free.

A query is presented to the Commissioner as follows: "A tenant was to have a part of the Tobacco crop for his share, but afterwards the owner of the land concluded to buy the tenant's Tobacco. It was in effect a contract for wages instead of part of the crop." The applicant desires to be informed whether or not a farmer who thus acquires Leaf Tobacco of his tenant can go out and retail it to consumers. The Commissioner held that under the conditions above specified the farmer himself who owns the land and buys the Tobacco of his tenant as an offset for wages would be entitled to sell the same without restriction in its natural condition at retail or in bulk without the payment of taxes.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Dear Sir:—In your paper of last week is an article in Verona news stating that when John M. Sleet was taken sick, that he went to bed with his pants on and that no persuasion from his physician, Dr. Robert L. Finnell, could induce him to take them off. Now the facts in the case, are, that, when Mr. Sleet became sick enough to go to bed, he DID remove his pants the same as any sick man would, and never had them on any more while living. Nor did I, and some one else (as stated) after he became unconscious, remove his pants and find FIFTEEN HUNDRED DOLLARS, nor did I open his trunk, or any one else do so, and find eight thousand dollars in gold and currency as stated. At no time did I EVER count or, see, or assist any one in counting his money. Now, Mr. Editor, who ever gave you that item is either a "smart Alex" or a NOTORIOUS LIAR.

THE PROHIBITIONISTS.

Silas C. Swallow, of Pennsylvania, Nominated for President.

George W. Carroll Was Named For Vice President—The Platform is the Broadest Ever Placed Before Prohibition Party.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 30.—The national prohibition convention completed its organization Wednesday and adjourned till Thursday morning at 9:30. The new national committee was selected at state meetings and organized by re-electing Oliver W. Stewart, of Chicago, chairman, and J. A. Tate, of Harriman, Tenn., secretary.

That part of the platform agreed upon by the general committee includes six planks on the liquor question, holding it the most important issue, asserting that all systems holding it has a right to exist have proved failures, pledging the party to its abolishment and holding that there is no real issue between the republican and democratic parties, the so-called issues being mere pretext over which they wrangle for office. Imperialism is touched only by a plank guaranteeing to all persons under the American flag the rights given by the constitution. A plank pledges reform in the divorce laws, the exterpitation of polygamy and the abolition of the present system of toleration of prostitution by fines.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 1.—The prohibition party, in national convention Thursday, nominated Silas C. Swallow, of Pennsylvania, for president, and George W. Carroll, of Texas, for vice president.

The platform was adopted without argument after a long deadlock in the resolutions committee. It was described by I. H. Amos, of Oregon, secretary of the committee, as the broadest platform ever placed before the people by the party. In addition to the planks on the liquor question it declares the party to be in favor of international arbitration, a suffrage law based on mental and moral qualifications, uniform laws for the country and dependencies, popular election of senators, civil service extension, and the initiative and referendum. The trust question was recognized by a demand for a rigid application of the principles of justice to all organizations of capital and labor. A reform of divorce laws is demanded and polygamy denounced.

Gen. Miles put an end to the movement to nominate him for president by sending to John G. Woolley a telegram from New York which reached him shortly after noon asking that his name not be presented. This was considered final and the movement to Mr. Swallow was unanimous, no other name being considered.

Over $16,000 was raised by subscription pledges from the floor of the convention which, with $11,000 in the treasury, will be the nucleus of the campaign fund.

National Chairman Stewart and National Secretary Tate were re-elected. The prohibition editors organized for the campaign by electing Edward Clark, of Indianapolis, president. The convention program closed Thursday night with a mass meeting at which addresses were made by National Chairman Stewart, John G. Woolley and others. Several hundred of the delegates left Thursday night for St. Louis to visit the exposition.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 1.—The Patriot Friday says: Dr. Silas C. Swallow may decline the nomination after all Thursday evening in response to a congratulatory telegram he sent the following to Chairman Stewart:

"Harrisburg, Pa., June 30.—Hon. Oliver W. Stewart, Prohibition National Convention, Indianapolis, Ind.—If honor referred to in your dispatch implies duties requiring my absence from home, while I highly appreciate any honor or duty the grandest party of the age can give me, yet unless Mrs. Swallow's health greatly improves, I would be compelled to decline. S. C. Swallow."

A SCALE AGREED UPON.

American Sheet and Tinplate Co. and Employes Come to Terms.

Pittsburg, July 1.—At a conference which closed late Thursday night the American Sheet and Tinplate Co. and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers agreed upon the scale for the coming year. The men accept the reduction of 18 per cent. the same rate they have been working under since January. The decision of the rebate question was postponed until July 22, when another conference will be held. In the meantime all mills will work as at present.

Socialists Nominate a State Ticket.

IS LOOMIS DEAD?

Counsel General Evans Believes That the Missing Man Is.

London, June 30.—"I am by no means satisfied with Ellis. He has kept on adding story to story, and none of them agree exactly. He should not have been permitted to depart until a more thorough examination had been made of the manner in which Kent J. Loomis met his death, if he is dead." These significant utterances are credited to Consul General Clay Evans, of this city.

Consul General Evans declares that, in his belief, Loomis is dead, and that he did not commit suicide. He believes, rather, that he fell or was pushed from the steamer before it reached Plymouth. He will not say that he believes that Loomis fell from the boat.

Marietta, O., June 30.—Hon. Francis B. Loomis, assistant secretary of state, arrived here Wednesday night on a double errand, to visit the wife of his brother, now mysteriously missing, at Parkersburg, and gather some information necessary to the investigation now going on and to see his uncle, J. D. Cadwallader, who is critically ill at Marietta. To a press representative he gave the following statement regarding the mysterious disappearance of his brother.

"I have no theory to advance at this time. When I first learned of my brother's disappearance I did not allow myself to become alarmed, as I had a feeling that perhaps he had planned to leave the vessel at Plymouth, go to London, thence to Paris and from there to Marseilles, where he was to have taken the steamer some time Saturday. Not hearing of his reaching Paris or Marseilles I then felt considerable alarm, and it has continued to increase every day since.

"Any theory I might have now would have to be based on the statements of Mr. Flamm, and he is decidedly positive that Kent Loomis went ashore at Plymouth. If he is correct, I have hopes that my brother will be found."

While in Parkersburg Wednesday Secretary Loomis made careful inquiry as to the jewelry and clothing worn by his brother. The description of the jewelry will be wired to Plymouth at once with the hope that if foul play has been indulged in the jewelry will be found in some of the shops there.

IN A THREE-CORNERED RACE.

Walthour Was Thrown Against the Railing and Seriously Injured.

Atlanta, Ga., July 1.—In the three-cornered 20-mile motor-paced race between Bobby Walthour, of Atlanta, Benny Munroe, of Memphis, and De Guichard, of Paris, France, at the Stadium here, Walthour was "pocketed" by the other two riders in the fourth mile, and while going at a terrific speed was thrown against the railing. His body struck two supporting posts 3 by 6 inches with such force that they were snapped in the center and the champion was left hanging insensible on the railing, his feet dangling over the track. An ambulance was summoned and Walthour was carried to his home in an unconscious condition. The latest report given out by physicians at his bedside is that two ribs, one arm and a collar bone are broken.

THE ELKS' REUNION.

Cincinnati Is Ready For the Grand Lodge Session.

Cincinnati, July 1.—Cincinnati is ready for the 18th annual reunion and the 40th grand lodge session of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. The reunion begins Monday July 18, lasting five days. The local lodge, assisted by a committee of citizens, has prepared an elaborate program for the week. The grand lodge trustees and Exalted Ruler Joseph T. Fanning, of Indianapolis, have given their official approval of it. The city's streets are now lined with thousands of electric lights for illumination and there are being constructed an immense electric flag covering Government square, an illuminated memorial clock 30 feet high, to be used in observing the 11 o'clock toast, and several arches. The shriners give a ball to the visitors Wednesday night, July 20, in Music hall.

ALABAMA MINERS.

But Little Progress Made in Adjusting the Wage Scale.

Birmingham, Ala., July 1.—The furnace operators and United Mine Workers have made apparently little or no progress towards getting together on a wage scale, but Thursday the majority of the commercial operators signed the old scale awarded by Judge Gray as arbitrator a year ago. The scale expired Thursday night, which means that mining operations by the furnace companies will be suspended July 1. Out of 12,000 or 13,000 union miners in this district about 3,000 are employed by the commercial concerns. The iron men are holding out for a 40 cents minimum. The old scale provides for 47½ cents minimum and 57½ cents maximum.

THE PAST FISCAL YEAR.

Statement in Regard to Receipts and Disbursements.

Pensions Show An Increase of $4,133,000 and Interest, Payments a Decrease of Over $4,000,000, as Compared With 1903.

Washington, July 1. — Secretary Shaw Thursday gave out a statement showing the comparison between the estimates which he submitted to congress in his last annual report and the actual receipts and disbursements during the fiscal year, from which it appears that the actual surplus is only about three-fourths of a million less than the estimated surplus when account is taken only of expenditures which were considered in submitting the estimate. In the estimate submitted to congress no account was taken of possible expenditures in securing the right of way for the Isthmian canal, nor of the loan of $4,600,000 to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Co. The estimate was based also on the then existing laws. These were subsequently modified by the ratification of the reciprocity treaty with Cuba. The secretary calls attention to the fact that the surplus would have been several millions in excess of his estimate but for the reciprocity arrangement with Cuba which reduced the revenues from $6,000,000 to $8,000,000.

The available cash June 30, 1904, amounts to $166,965,872, as compared with the fiscal year ended June 1, 1903. These figures show increases and decreases in receipts as follows:

Customs, decrease, $21,823,235; internal revenue, increase, $2,320,440; miscellaneous, increase, $1,802,014.

The civil and miscellaneous expenditures for the year just ended exceeded those for the year 1903, including the payments on account of the Panama canal purchase and the St. Louis exposition loan by $67,813,602. The expenditures on account of the war department were $3,211,897 less than for 1903, and the expenditures on account of the navy were $20,060,271 greater than for 1903.

Pensions show an increase of $4,123,000 and interest payments a decrease of over $4,000,000 as compared with 1903.

Commissioner Yerkes, of the internal revenue bureau, Thursday made the following statement:

The total receipts of the internal revenue bureau for the fiscal year closing Thursday evening will be about $233,500,000. This shows an excess of collections over the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903, of some $3,000,000. The rates of taxation on various articles paying an internal revenue tax being the same this fiscal year as during the year which ended June 30, 1903, and the amount of tax collected being in excess by some three and a half millions of dollars, does not indicate that the business movements of the country and its commercial transactions are decreasing, or that we are suffering from general business depression, as claimed by some.

CUSTOM HOUSE STATISTICS.

The Amount of Duties Collected For the Year Was $170,972,579.

New York, July 1.—A summary of operations at the custom house for the fiscal year ended Thursday shows that the number of entries was 366,893 as compared with 361,568 for the previous fiscal year. The amount of customs duties collected for the year was $170,972,579, as compared with $[illegible]0,970,144 in the previous year. The year 1902-3 was a high record year in volume of customs receipts. The year just ended is second highest.

Wild Texas Bull Creates a Panic.

Peoria, Ill., July 1.—A wild Texas bull escaped from the stock yards in the lower end of the city and dashed through the streets with several stockmen in pursuit. It entered the wholesale drugstore of Colburn, Birks & Co. The clerks, panic-stricken, fled from the building. The animal destroyed considerable property and finally leaped through a window 15 feet from the ground, sustaining injuries which caused death.

NEGRO POPULATION.

Census Bulletin Just Issued Places It at 8,840,789.

Washington, July 2.—The census bureau Friday issued the final bulletin on the Negro population of the United States, which shows a total of 8,840,789. The report indicates that between 11 and 16 per cent. of the Negro population has, or is believed by the enumerators, to have some degree of white blood. The center of the Negro population is in DeKalb county, Alabama, about four miles from the west boundary of Georgia, having moved thence from Dinwiddie county, Virginia, 476 miles northeast, since 1790. More than 77 per cent. of the Negroes live in the country, against more than 57 per cent. of the whites. Almost 90 per cent. of the Negroes in the continental United States are in the southern states, and three-tenths of them are in Georgia, Mississippi and Alabama. Negroes constitute about one-fifteenth of the city population and about one-seventh of the country population of continental United States.

The proportion of mulattoes to all Negroes is usually higher in cities of the great cotton growing states than it is in the districts outside of the cities.

The district in which the proportion of Negroes is greatest lies in the Mississippi alluvial region along both banks of the lower Mississippi, where five-eighths of the population is Negro, the maximum being in Issequena county, Mississippi, with more than 15 Negroes to each white person. Negroes form one-third of the population in the south, both in cities and in country districts, while in the north they are about one-fortieth of city and one-ninetieth of the population of country districts. In the country districts of the south, excluding the population of the 242 cities which had at least 2,500 inhabitants both in 1890 and 1900, the Negroes increased from 1890 to 1900 over 16 per cent.; in the 242 southern cities as a whole they increased 21.7 per cent. Their increase in the country districts was about two-thirds as rapid as that of the whites in the same area; their increase in southern cities was nearly five-sixths as fast as that of the whites in the same cities.

In the five southern cities having at least 100,000 inhabitants in 1900, the Negro population increased 25.8 per cent. from 1890 to 1900; the white population of the same cities increased only 20.8 per cent. This is the only group of southern cities in which the rate of increase of Negro population exceeded that of the whites. In the 38 cities of this class in continental United States the per cent. of increase was 38 for Negroes and 32.7 for whites.

The largest number of Negroes living in compact masses are found in certain urban cities, several of which lie outside the great cotton growing states. The four each having over 75,000 Negroes are: District of Columbia, co-extensive with Washington; Shelby county, Tennessee, containing Memphis; Baltimore city, Md., and Orleans parish, La., co-extensive with New Orleans.

Half the Negroes in the United States are below 19 years of age, this median age being four years below the whites. Their illiteracy is much more common in country than in city districts and the females, as with the whites, are the more illiterate sex.

TWO ARMY TRANSPORTS SAIL.

One Goes to Manila and the Other to Alaska.

San Francisco, July 2.—Two army transports sailed Friday, the Sherman for Manila, via Honolulu and Guam, and the Buford for Alaska. The Sherman carries about 100 saloon passengers, 37 unassigned field artillery recruits, 33 unassigned recruits for the cost artillery at Honolulu, 4,000 tons of army supplies, and $5,000,000 in money. Of this amount $2,000,000 is in the form of silver certificates and $3,000,000 in specie.

On board the Buford bound for Alaska are about 800 men of the Third infantry, who are to be stationed for the coming year at the various military posts of the far north.

Ill-Smelling Boats.

Travelers say that there is a certain indefinable, unnamable smell peculiar to Japanese steamships that makes life on board of them not worth living. It has been traced to "daikon," a large-leaved vegetable as dear to the Japanese palate as cabbage to the Teutonic. It is a kind of white radish, boiled and cut in strips and served in everything. "The smell and flavor are repulsive beyond anything the east has offered to our senses," says a war correspondent.

Pineapple Mousse.

Grate one pineapple after peeling, put it over the fire with one pint of water and cook ten minutes, then drain through a fine strainer, add juice of half a lemon and sugar to make sweet; scald and add one-fourth of a box of gelatine that has been soaking in one-fourth cupful of cold water, strain and cool as the mixture stiffens; add the whip from one pint of cream, mould, pack in ice and salt; let stand four hours.—People's Home Journal.

Fire Never Goes Out.

The Chequers Inn, at Slapstones, near Osmotherly, must be unique among English inns in one respect. It boasts of a fire which for more than a century has never been allowed to go out. The place is a quaint little building, to which many visitors resort on account of its never-extinguished fire and the turf cakes baked upon its hearth. It has been in the occupation of one family for over 100 years.

Not Unusual.

"All the big aristocrats attended the reception. It was really remarkable."

"What was so remarkable about it?"

"Well, dukes, earls and marquises were positively thick about the place, and—"

"Huh! Dukes, earls and marquises usually are positively thick. A bright one is an exception."—Catholic Standard and Times.

WRONG TRACK

Had to Switch.

Even the most careful person is apt to get on the wrong track regarding food sometimes and has to switch over.

When the right food is selected the host of ills that come from improper food and drink disappear, even where the trouble has been of lifelong standing.

"From a child I was never strong and had a capricious appetite and I was allowed to eat whatever I fancied—rich cake, highly seasoned food, hot biscuit, etc.—so it was not surprising that my digestion was soon out of order and at the age of twenty-three I was on the verge of nervous prostration. I had no appetite and as I had been losing strength (because I didn't get nourishment in my daily food to repair the wear and tear on body and brain) I had no reserve force to fall back on, lost flesh rapidly and no medicine helped me.

"Then it was a wise physician ordered Grape-Nuts and cream and saw to it that I gave this food (new to me) a proper trial and it showed he knew what he was about because I got better by bounds from the very first. That was in the summer and by winter I was in better health than ever before in my life, had gained in flesh and weight and felt like a new person altogether in mind as well as body, all due to nourishing and completely digestible food, Grape-Nuts.

"This happened three years ago and never since then have I had any but perfect health for I stick to my Grape-Nuts food and cream and still think it delicious. I eat it every day. I never tire of this food and can enjoy a saucer of Grape-Nuts and cream when nothing else satisfies my appetite and it's surprising how sustained and strong a small saucerful will make one feel for hours."—Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

BATTLE AT GEN-SAN.

A Russian Force Engaged the Japs and Inflicted Losses.

Russian Torpedo Boats Entered, Bombarded the Settlement and About 200 Shells Were Thrown, But No Serious Damage Done.

Tokio, July 1.—The Russian Vladivostok squadron, accompanied by torpedo boats, appeared off Gen-San on the east coast of Korea Thursday. Torpedo boats entered Gen-San harbor at 5:30 in the morning, shelled the settlement and sunk a small schooner. The torpedo boats left the harbor at 7:20. A total of 200 shells was fired into the settlement, but no serious damage resulted.

The Russian vessels which took part in the bombardment of Gen-San were the cruisers Rossia, Gromobol and Rurik, and nine torpedo boats. Later reports show the vessels, when they left Gen-San, steamed to the north. They were seen, however, to return from this direction. They were lost sight of at 10:30 in the morning.

St. Petersburg, July 1.—Although nothing has been received by the admiralty from Adm. Skrydloff confirming the reports that the Russian Vladivostok squadron had sunk Japanese vessels at Gen-San, there is no disposition to doubt the correctness of the news.

St. Petersburg, July 1.—Telegrams from Tokio relating the capture of forts forming part of the defenses of Port Arthur do not agree with information received at the war office, nor with the report of Gen. Stoessel, which indicate that the siege operations are proceeding very slowly. Heavy guns have not been brought in range of the works at Port Arthur.

Vladivostok, July 1.—Reports from the Russian detachments operating in Northern Korea have just been received. Couriers bringing them were delayed by the bad roads. The dispatches show that a Russian force reached Gen-San June 5 and engaged the Japanese, inflicting losses. Gen-San was then held by 1,200 Japanese infantry with artillery and 400 Korean soldiers. The Korean soldiers are ill-disposed towards the Japanese. Two thousand Japanese infantry with artillery are quartered at Seoul, where there are many hospitals and enormous stores of provisions and munitions.

Tokio, July 1.—A report received from Gen. Oku says that after the fighting at Telissu (Vafangow) on June 15 he buried 1,854 Russians. The trophies taken by the Japanese at this engagement consisted of 16 guns, 46 wagons, 958 rifles and other things.

THE TWO BIG ARMIES.

The Generals Are Moving Their Troops Like Men on a Chess Board.

Liao Yang, July 2.—Gen. Kuropatkin and Gen Kuroki are moving their troops like men on a chess board. The Japanese are now 20 miles from Liao Yang. The rains are impeding their movements. Detachments to the amount of 1,200 men have been detailed from Gen. Rennankampff's Cossacks to scout in the defiles and hills, harrassing the Japanese and not allowing them any rest day or night. The Japanese artillery is said here to be commanded by an American. His tail form is frequently seen with the batteries.

Kuroki's army is extremely active east of the Russian position, and the Russians are correspondingly active. The Russian forces are being rapidly pushed northward to a point where Kuropatkin established his base after the battle of Vafangow. So far as the Russians know Kuroki is steadily pushing onward through all the mountain passes, even toward Mukden.

JAPANESE SHIPS.

Reported That Four Were Sunk Near Port Arthur.

Cheifu, July 2.—Russian advices from Port Arthur say that the Russian Port Arthur squadron, consisting of 11 ships, attacked the Japanese squadron, of 18 ships, sinking four of the Japanese torpedo boats and inflicting damage on the other vessels.

The Russian ships returned to Port Arthur. Not a single vessel, it is added, was damaged.

In the evening of June 26, fifteen miles from Port Arthur, two Japanese regiments were ambushed by a company of Russian artillery, who allowed the Japanese to approach within 400 yards.

The Vladivostok Squadron Undamaged

London, July 2.—Adm. Skrydloff, according to a dispatch from St. Petersburg to a news agency here, reports that the Vladivostok squadron has returned to Vladivostok undamaged. The admiral confirms the bombardment of Gen-San.

SECRET SERVICE REPORT.

The Total Arrests Made During the Year Were 419.

Washington, July 2.—The report of the operations of the secret service division of the treasury department for the fiscal year, ended June 30, was made by Chief Wilke Friday.

The report says that on a liberal allowance there is about $3 in counterfeit coin for each $100,000 of gold and silver in circulation, and a little less than $1 in counterfeit notes for $100,000 of paper circulation. There were 25 new counterfeits discovered during the year, but only four of these notes fell in what is termed the deceptive or dangerous class. The makers and passers of 18 of the 25 counterfeit issues were arrested, and in nearly every case the "plant" was captured and destroyed. The total arrests for the year were 419, and of the prisoners 306 were born in the United States.

THE VICTOR RIOTS.

A Number of Miners Indicted on a Charge of Murder and Inciting Riot.

Cripple Creek, Col., July 2.—As the result of the finding of the coroner's jury, which investigated the death of Roscoe McGee and John Davis, who came to their deaths during the riots in Victor, on the afternoon of June 6, President Charles H. Moyer and W. D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, together with some thirty odd men, are charged with murder and inciting riots.

Judge Lewis Cunningham, sitting in the district court, Friday afternoon fixed the bonds of Moyer and Haywood at $10,000 each. The bonds of the others will be fixed at a special session of the court later. The verdict accuses William Boyle of killing John Davis and Albert Bilat of killing Roscoe McGee.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

A Decrease of $8,069,860 During the Month of June.

Washington, July 2.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business on June 30, 1904, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $967,231,774, a decrease for the month of $8,069,860, which is largely accounted for by a corresponding increase in the amount of cash on hand. The debt is recapitulated as follows:

Interest bearing debt, $895,157,440; debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,970,920; debt bearing no interest, $389,130,655; total, $1,286,259,016.

This amount, however, does not include $977,744,569 in certificates and treasury notes outstanding which are offset by an equal amount of cash on hand held for their redemption.

SOUTH CAROLINA LYNCHING.

A Negro Murderer Taken From Train and Hanged By a Mob.

Charleston, S. C., July 1.—Cairo Williams, the Negro who killed Thurston O. McGee, white, at Scranton, in Williamsburg county, last February, was taken from the Atlantic Coast Line train at Scranton Thursday evening and lynched by a mob. Williams narrowly escaped lynching immediately after the killing and was spirited off to the penitentiary in Columbia for safe-keeping and the mob was greatly enraged thereat. Last Monday Williams was brought from Columbia to Kingstree, the county seat, for trial. The result was a mistrial and the sheriff thought it safe to send him back to Columbia for safe-keeping.

CONVENTION GOSSIP.

Friends of Parker Will Attempt to Rush His Nomination.

Another Schema is to Scatter the Vote, Preventing an Early Election With a View of Naming Cleveland or Gorman.

St. Louis, July 2.—Two distinct lines of operation developed Friday in the preliminary skirmishing of the democratic national convention. One is a scheme to rush the nomination of Judge Parker on the first or second ballot, and the other is to scatter the vote, prevent an early nomination with a view of naming Cleveland or Gorman. The friends of Gorman and Cleveland are working to hold the convention for several ballots in the hope that their candidate would be named. The Gorman men are not parties to the Cleveland movement, nor are the Cleveland advocates combining with Gorman's friends. There is no alliance, but it is to the interests of both that the Parker strength be disintegrated as soon as possible.

There are a few men here of the old Cleveland guard who are watching every point and who are in close communication with Cleveland's supporters, and in a subtle and subterranean manner they have been feeling the pulse of men as they arrive. They are using the race issue on the southern men and with all delegates they use the argument that Cleveland is the only man that the democrats can elect. With some effect they are pointing out to the southern delegates that they need no better excuse for supporting Cleveland than that they did so for the purpose of preventing Negro domination by the republicans.

Gorman's position is stated to be that he will not enter into any combination to prevent the nomination of Parker unless it means his own selection. He will not be used to pull out chestnuts for Cleveland. Around Gorman is gathered the Maryland, West Virginia, District of Columbia delegations and some from other states, with a bare possibility of securing New Jersey and Pennsylvania. But like Gorman, ex-Senator Smith, of New Jersey, and James A. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, want to see success in sight before they jump.

There is a story going the rounds of the politicians who are here that the recent conferences between Gorman, Smith, Guffey and McLean had for their main object a proposition to control the party organization, that in the selection of a national committee chairman some one should be chosen who would name men for the campaign committee under the control of these men. This control is desired to prevent it falling into the hands of David B. Hill and also so that the machinery of the party organization should not be used for Parker in 1908 if he should be nominated and make a good showing this year.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Some of the Western Delegates Have Arrived in St. Louis.

St. Louis, July 1.—Some western delegates to the democratic national convention arrived Thursday, but aside from their individual opinions they had no knowledge of what was going to be done when the democratic national convention meets next week. Everything seems to await the arrival of the leaders when it is expected that there will be the usual life antedating an interest in national convention. Senator Fred T. Dubois, of Idaho, came Thursday evening and when asked what he thought of the presidential outlook said he saw nothing but Parker.

"Who will they nominate after they have beaten Parker?" he asked.

"Would it be Cleveland?" he continued. "Why, there is more than a third of the convention that will stay here until the election before allowing the nomination of Cleveland. An attempt to nominate Cleveland will throw the convention into the hands of Bryan. The convention will nominate Parker because they have no other man to nominate."

CANTRILL IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Striking Figure in Kentucky Political Life Critically Ill.

Owenton, Ky., June 30.—The friends of Judge J. E. Cantrill, of Georgetown, are growing alarmed, and for the first time the truth is beginning to leak out regarding his condition. Two weeks ago Judge Cantrill came here to make a speech in his canvass for the nomination for appellate judge. After the speech he was seized with a partial stroke of paralysis, but it was thought the attack was not serious. Reports were given out that he would be out in a few days, but in the two weeks that have passed there has been no sign of improvement, and the distinguished patient is in too precarious a condition to be removed to his home. It is said by one of his friends that he is paralyzed from the waist down, and that there is serious doubts as to ultimate recovery.

Judge Cantrill is one of the most striking figures in Kentucky public life. A man of strong mentality, he has been an aggressive fighter in all contests into which he has entered. He is 6 feet 4 inches tall, and of striking appearance. As a young man he was a captain under Gen. John Morgan, the confederate.

Owenton, Ky., July 1.—A statement regarding the precarious condition of Judge J. E. Cantrill's health was greatly overdrawn and without entire foundation in fact. Cecil E. Cantrill, who has been with his father during the latter's illness, said Thursday that the improvement in Judge Cantrill's condition has been steady and marked.

DETECTIVES AFTER HIM.

Alleged He Stole Wife, Children, Stock and the Dog.

Owingsville, Ky., July 1.—Detective Lewis Johnson, of Lexington, has gone to Ozark, Ark., to bring to Kentucky A. C. Jones, wanted in Carlisle, near here. Although horse stealing is the charge against him he is also accused by Lem Anderson, of Carlisle, of stealing Anderson's wife, children, live stock and, in fact, everything, even including an old dog that served the family faithfully for 15 years.

In addition to his role as an officer Detective Johnson went to Ozark for Anderson to persuade his wife and children to come home.

Requisition papers for the return of Jones were issued by Gov. Beckham Tuesday, and no trouble is expected in having them honored by the governor of Arkansas.

Anderson's troubles commenced in May, when he went to the mountains on business. He owns two farms, one near Carlisle and one near Mt. Sterling. When he returned to Nicholas county he expected to be received with open arms by his wife and children, but everything, except the land and house, had disappeared. Anderson wanted to charge Jones with wife stealing, but as he could find no laws to cover that offense he contented himself with the charge of horse stealing.

Local admirers of the late democratic leader say that it now resembles him closely. The original design had him wearing a Prince Albert coat, which has now given place to a sack coat, such as Goebel used to wear. This change was made upon the suggestion of Arthur Goebel.

CONSTANCE.

The building belonging to Dr. Murat and known as the "Mission," is under going repairs.

Our coal yards are stocking up with a large quantity of coal for the fall and winter market.

Young Robinson, who spent the winter and spring in California, arrived home a few days since. He had a delightful sojourn in that state.

Occasional a traction road from Covington down the river road and through Constance is talked of, but none of the parents have any fears of their kids being crushed beneath the wheels of a traction car in Constance.

John Klassener is building a commodious blacksmith and wagon shop on his lot in close proximity to his stable. John is one of the town's best hustlers, and people will be glad to see him in his new quarters.

There has been considerable improvement in the appearance of the town within the last two years. Several new buildings have gone up, while others have been remodeled and much improved in looks, and the good work is still going on.

The farmers' telephone company is moving slowly with its work of construction in this neighborhood. The poles have been set for some time, but no wires have been strung. When the company was first organized it was calculated to have its lines in operation long since.

A few days ago Capt. Henry Kotmeyer's little boy, while playing in the water at the river's edge, got beyond his depth, and would have drowned, had not his sister, who is also small, gone to his rescue. The little heroine was the only one any ways near the little boy when the current swept him off of his feet.

The truckers about here have been getting good prices for their vegetables this spring, potatoes being almost a legal tender. The face of the country here is very rough and unseemly, but the land produces early vegetables in abundance, and our hillsides are reasonably good gold mines when industriously tickled with the plow and hoe.

The numerous fishing camps are in full blast again this summer along the river shore, and the many tents that dot the willow groves give the valley the appearance of being infested by an army. The usual amount of beer and other liquid refreshments are being consumed by the campers, assisted by an occasional nip on the part of some of our citizens.

J. S., better known as Doc Anderson, brother of Montgomery and Southgate Anderson, of this place, died at his home above here on the river road, near Bromley, at 8 p. m. on the 7th inst. His death was sudden and is supposed to have resulted from a stroke of paraiysis by which he had been stricken twice. He was sitting in his chair when the summons came.

IDLEWILD.

Charles Gaines lost 20 lambs over in the Ohio hills and bushes as he was taking a drove to the city, one night last week.

Mrs. William Stephens visited her sister, Miss Katie White, of Ft. Pleasant, a few days since. Miss Kate has been quite sick.

Mrs. Dunlap and children, of Peoria, Ill., and her grandfather, W. H. Grant, were guests at Thomas Grant's, near here, one day last week.

Miss Lizzie Graddy and Mr. Ross, of Lexington, will be guests at Courtney Walton's, this week. Mr. Ross and Mr. Graddy will attend the Elks' convention in Cincinnati.

The members of Bullittsburg church have disappointed in that the colporter failed to come and preach for them last Sunday. We are glad that our new pastor, Rev. Earle, will be with us on the 17th.

The friends of sister Sproles will be glad to hear she and Harris are enjoying excellent health, and that Brother Sproles is doing a great work as an evangelist, and supplying two pulpits. God has blessed and will continue to bless his labor wherever he goes. He will take his family to California ere long.

PETERSBURG.

The celebration of the completion of our [illegible] 30th ult., in many respects, was a disappointment to our superintendent. The weather, the speakers who failed to come, the small attendance in the park, the lack of public spirit and appreciation of his work, manifested on the part of a large body of the town people, who assembled on the outside of the park, and the scanty receipts at the gate, were discouraging and disheartening to the superintendent, who had expended so much of his money, time and labor in the interest of the town. His main purpose in the entertainment was to obtain a fund by charging 10 cents at the gate, to supply the park with comfortable and permanent seats. He had 10 iron seats made by the Stewart Iron Works in Cincinnati, three of which he paid for out of his own funds and placed in the park. The other seven he will have to pay for unless the town people, who will enjoy them, will come to his rescue and supply the necessary money. He says he has already expended $70 of his own money, and feels that his public spirit will not stand another test. Now, if the delinquents, who signed his paper and failed to pay their dollar, will come forward and settle, and the great number of property owners in the town, who have not contributed anything toward building the park, will come forward and pay their dollar, it will be a great relief to the superintendent, and place our park on a solvent basis. For my part I am proud of our park. There is not a town the size of Petersburg in this or any other State that can boast of possessing so beautiful a park. It is a living witness of the pride and public spirit of our citizens, and I predict that it will be the means of bringing hundreds of dollars to our town.

It has been the custom of the children of G. T. Rue, for three or four years past, to give their father a surprise on his birthday. They had planned to give him a surprise last Sunday, July 3d, it being his 53d birthday; but the father turned the tables on them and gave them a surprise—one long to be remembered. When they arrived Sunday morning they found Mr. Rue prepared to receive them in grand style, and entertained them as they were never entertained before. The dinner eclipsed anything of the kind ever in this vicinity. It surpassed the dinner at Scott's a few months since, in as much as Mr. Rue had fish and lemonade on tap. Those present were Wm. Sebree and family, Henry Smith, wife and little daughter, Leola Mae, Irvin Rue and wife, John Ryle, wife and son, Arch Rouse, wife and daughter, Henry Wingate and family. All the children and grand-children were present, except George Rue and family, of North Bend, Ohio. J. R. Stephens had a very common horse killed by lightning a few days since. We say common horse for we are getting tired of hearing that every horse or cow that dies is valuable.

We had the pleasure of meeting your "Commissary correspondent" a few days ago, and found him a very pleasant gentleman. The only thing we can say against him, and that is a great deal, is, he is an old bachelor. As our community has been cursed with so much like Ben Bob, John E., C. G. and Nathan, we can not help but have an aversion to such men. But we hope Bro. Thomas will see the sins of his way and make some poor woman happy.

About 300 persons witnessed the game of ball here, last Saturday afternoon, between the Petersburg team and the Boones, which was a fairly good game. Petersburg outplayed the visitors at all stages of the game, and it was plainly to be seen at the outset that Petersburg were the winners. Houston's work in the box was not up to the expectation of his friends, while Hughes, at short, put up a game far short of his ability. Gordon, pitcher for the home team, held the visitors down to six hits, and is far the best amateur pitcher in the county. He will get into fast company some of these days, as he never loses his head. The home team got 10 hits off of Houston, who, at times, was as wild as a broncho, and at the hat he could not connect with the ball, much to the disappointment of his admirers. The Burlington rooters rejoiced at the feast, but their joy was soon turned into mourning when their favorites failed to circle the diamond. Umpire Lindsay, of Cincinnati, was fair in all his decisions, and no complaint was heard during the game. Burlington is far the best drawing team that visits our grounds, and local ball enthusiasts hope another series of games will be arranged between the teams. Score of last game, 5 to 2 in favor of Petersburg.

All our plans are matured, and will be divulged at that meeting. I deem it important that the growers, and especially the stockholders of this county, should be represented at that meeting. L. H. Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr. Frank Biggs, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering.

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

St. Louis, July 11.—Mr. Bryan left the Jefferson hotel early Sunday and went to the residence of his cousin, Dr Jennings, in this city. His physician says his condition was much improved over Saturday and he expects to leave for his home in Lincoln Monday night.

When Mr. Bryan left his bed Saturday night to go to the convention hall his temperature was above 100, and he complained of much soreness of the lungs. He was examined after the close of the convention by Dr. Osborne, who decided there was nothing alarming in Mr. Bryan's condition and that a quiet and rest would quickly restore him to his usual good health.

His appearance at the convention hall was in opposition to the commands of his physician and contrary to the wishes of his friends. He left his bed at a time when his attendants were absent from the room, and in doing so created no little alarm for his safety.

Oyster Bay, July 11.—There was intense feeling among the Negroes of the village Sunday night because a Negro clergyman was put out of a white man's barber shop here Saturday night when he insisted upon being shaved by a white barber.

At any rate, the Negroes say they will make an effort to have the matter laid before the president at once, and they are confident he will uphold them.

MUNICIPAL ENTERPRISE.

Webster City, Ia., Is To Own a Daily Newspaper.

Webster City, Ia., July 11.—Webster City's penchant for municipal ownership is to take a new form—that of a city-owned daily paper. This departure in municipal enterprise probably has not a counterpart in the United States. The paper is to be known as the Daily Graphic-Herald, and will be issued from the present office of the Weekly Graphic-Herald, the only democratic paper in Hamilton county. Webster City began its career as a municipal ownership city many years ago. It first acquired possession of the water works. Next came the electric light and power plant. Then came the city heating plant.

Hobson must have made a mistake in reading his speech, or had been misinformed, as he had never made any suggestion, and that the subject was not touched upon in the address mentioned.

CARS TELESCOPED.

Seventeen People Killed and About One Hundred Injured.

Engine of Second Train Tore Through Rear Car of the First Train and Drove the Front End Into the Car Ahead.

New York, July 11.—Seventeen persons were killed and about a hundred injured in a collision which occurred at Midvale, N. J., just before noon Sunday when a regular passenger train on the Greenwood branch of the Erie railroad ran into an excursion train that had stopped to take water. All the dead and injured lived in Hoboken, Jersey City and New York.

The accident is believed to have resulted from a tower operator having lowered his signal too soon, and this was admitted by D. W. Cooke, general passenger agent of the Erie railroad, who gave out a statement in which he said: "The operator in the tower failed to set the block signal against the train following."

The train which was run into was a special carrying members of the First Plattdeutcher association of Hoboken on their annual outing and had 2800 passengers. It consisted of 12 cars and two engines. The first engine had taken water and the train had moved up and stopped with the second engine beside the tank when the regular train drew near. The flagman of the special signalled the engineer of the incoming train but owing to a curve in the road his flag was not seen until it was too late. It is claimed that the engineer of the regular train had slowed down to about ten miles an hour before he crashed into the special but his engine tore through the rear car the greater part of its length and drove the forward end of that car into the car ahead. The killed and injured were in those two cars.

The wreckage did not catch fire and the work of taking out the dead and maimed was accomplished quickly. The passengers from the uninjured coaches ran back and joined in the work and the residents of Midvale, many of whom had heard the crash, assisted them. The 14 dead were soon laid beside the track and the injured were carried to the nearby houses.

While physicians were being sent for women of Midvale brought bandages and other articles that could be used in caring for the injured. An engine and cars were sent from Little Falls to the scene of the wreck and as rapidly as possible the most seriously hurt were prepared for transportation by train to Little Falls and thence to Jersey City or Hoboken. The less severely hurt were continued under treatment in Midvale until later in the day. All those hurt were eventually taken either to their homes or to hospitals.

The engineer and fireman of the regular train disappeared from the scene just after the accident. They both escaped injury by jumping just before the crash.

The operator in the tower was Walter Richards. He would make no statement and was relieved and left the scene soon after the accident.

STRUCK BY A STREET CAR.

Senators Bailey and Tillman, In An Auto, Were Injured.

St. Louis, July 11.—An automobile in which Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, and Senator J. W. Bailey, of Texas, were riding Sunday night collided with a Jefferson avenue street car, while running rapidly, and both were thrown into the street but neither was seriously injured. Senator Tillman suffered a sprained ankle and Senator Bailey was bruised about the body. After ascertaining the extent of their injuries and viewing their wrecked automobile, the two senators boarded a street car and proceeded to their hotel. The chauffeur was badly bruised, but set about collecting the debris of the automobile.

CONDEMNED MURDERER.

He Confessed to Committing Four Other Murders.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 11.—John Johnson (colored), who with Frank Ousley, also colored, will hang next Thursday for the murder of Grocer James Donnelly, has confessed to four other murders. Johnson says he was born in Georgia and when about 18 years old started out as a tramp. Two of his victims were with him, traveling in a box car on a Virginia railroad, and after murdering them for the $5 in their possession he threw their bodies from the car while the train was going. His other two victims suffered a like fate on a Georgia railroad.

They Occupy the Second Range of Hills Around Port Arthur.

Che Foo, July 8.—In the fighting which occurred on July 4 for the possession of one of the hills northeast of Port Arthur, the Russians lost, according to Chinese, 100 men killed and 50 wounded.

The Japanese having occupied the second range of hills around Port Arthur, are now massing men to march upon the Russian marine camp that commands the principal pass through the hills, which is directly back of Port Arthur. This camp is considered vital to the safety of the fortress, and it is guarded, according to the Chinese, by 20,000 marines and sailors. In the Chinese-Japanese war the Japanese occupied this camp for seven days before they took possession of Port Arthur.

Wasp Stings.

A lady writes as follows: "I read recently a paragraph in the newspaper about a farmer who died from the effects of a wasp sting. It cannot be too widely known that turpentine, applied to the place where a wasp has stung, will reduce the swelling immediately. If the sting be in the mouth or throat, some turpentine should be swallowed, and the effect produced will be almost instantaneous."—People's Home Journal.

The editor, in comment, adds: There is one other—"bough."—London Chronicle.

A BACK LICK

Settled the Case with Her.

Many great discoveries have been made by accident and things better than gold mines have been found in this way, for example when even the accidental discovery that coffee is the real cause of one's sickness proves of most tremendous value because it locates the cause and the person has then a chance to get well.

"For over 25 years," says a Missouri woman, "I suffered untold agonies in my stomach and even the best physicians disagreed as to the cause without giving me any permanent help, different ones saying it was gastritis, indigestion, neuralgia, etc., so I dragged along from year to year, always half sick, until finally I gave up all hopes of ever being well again.

"When taking dinner with a friend one day she said she had a new drink which turned out to be Postum and I liked it so well I told her I thought I would stop coffee for awhile and use it, which I did.

"So for three months we had Postum in place of coffee without ever having one of my old spells but was always healthy and vigorous instead.

"Husband kept saying he was convinced it was coffee that caused those spells, but even then I wouldn't believe it until one day we got out of Postum and as we lived two miles from town I thought to use the coffee we had in the house.

"The result of a week's use of coffee again was that I had another terrible spell of agony and distress proving that it was the coffee and nothing else. That settled it and I said good bye to Coffee forever and since then Postum alone has been our hot mealtime drink.

"My friends all say I am looking worlds better and my complexion is much improved. All the other members of our family have been benefited, too, by Postum in place of the old drink, coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"Ten days' trial of Postum in place of coffee or tea is the wise thing for every coffee drinker. Such a trial tells the exact truth often where coffee is not suspected.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Judge Alton B. Parker Selected as Candidate For President on First Ballot.

NOMINATION MADE UNANIMOUS.

Ex-Senator H. G. Davis, of West Virginia, Was Nominated For the Vice Presidency.

Judge Parker, in a Telegram to the Convention, Expressed His Views on the Gold Standard Question, to Which a Reply Was Sent.

Wednesday's Session.

St. Louis, July 7.—The democratic national convention met Wednesday, listened to the extended speech from representative John Sharp Williams, its temporary chairman, appointed the committees necessary to perfect a permanent organization and adjourned in a session lasting two hours and 50 minutes one striking incident overshadowed all other proceedings. That was the enthusiastic and prolonged cheering which greeted the name of Grover Cleveland. While the outburst which greeted the name of the former democratic president before its last syllable had fallen from the lips of the temporary chairman was noteworthy in itself, it was magnified by contrast with the greetings accorded the actual men who stood for all that has been opposed to Mr. Cleveland within the party during the last eight years.

James K. Jones, of Arkansas, chairman of the national committee, went onto the platform and took his seat unnoticed. Practically no greeting was given him when he faced the convention with gavel in hand.

Listening attentively to the democratic doctrine laid down by Mr. Williams, the conservatives found occasion for the first demonstration when reference was made to the record of former President Cleveland. All the shackled party interest which had lain dormant through the national campaigns was released as by the touch of a trigger. The name of Cleveland was echoed from a thousand throats. Hats, handkerchiefs, fans and arms were waved, delegates and spectators stood on their chairs and the last semblance of order turned into confusion which convention officials were powerless to subdue.

Thursday's Session.

St. Louis, July 8.—The democratic national convention Thursday adopted the report of the committee on rules, credentials and permanent organization. The session opened at 10 o'clock, an hour later took a recess until 2 p. m., and adjourned at 6:20 until 10 o'clock Friday. During the day several speeches were made, chief of which was William Jennings Bryan's effort to overthrow the report of the credentials committee and seat contesting delegates from Illinois. The controversy was ended by the rejection of the minority report of the committee by a vote of 647 nays to 299 ayes. Though Mr. Bryan's speech and his appearance on the floor of the convention was cheered far beyond any previous demonstration, it made few votes. The alignment of delegates proved the correctness of previous estimates of the division between those who favor the radicals and those who are supporting the conservative element, which is now in control.

When the result of the contest was announced the report of the committee on permanent organization was made. Representative Champ Clark, who was chosen permanent chairman, addressed the convention. He had prepared and furnished to the press a speech of great length. The hour was so late when he gained the platform, however, he spoke about 300 words and left his audience to read the remainder.

The ovation given to Mr. Bryan was one of the greatest ever transpiring at any of the notable events for which the immense Coliseum is famed. It was begun before the afternoon session of the convention had been called to order and continued for 12 minutes with so much furore that Temporary Chairman Williams and all of his assistants, including a hundred policemen, were unable to restore order.

The platforms presented to the full committee at 8 o'clock Thursday night, and the contest over the gold plank which had occurred in the subcommittee was soon renewed and with cumulative force.

The day was given up by the subcommittee to the consideration of the details connected with the consideration of the various planks, action on the most important of them being postponed until the closing hours of the sitting. The taking up of the financial plank precipitated a sharp debate in which most of the members participated. Senator Dubois opposed it most vigorously. He admitted that the increase in the production of gold had had the effect of creating a sufficient supply of money for the present needs, but said that the output of the precious metals is so irregular as to render it most uncertain, and argued that while the present supply may be sufficient to meet the wants of the world, it can not be relied upon permanently.

He was replied to by Senators Daniel and Hill, who contended that the plank presented recognizes the quantitive theory of money advocated by the democratic party—and from this point drew the conclusion that the declaration is not inconsistent with former pronouncements on the subject.

Friday's Session.

St. Louis, July 9.—The democratic national convention Friday night adopted a platform by a viva voce vote and listened to nominating speeches for president. Judge Alton B. Parker was named by Martin W. Littleton and William Randolph Hearst by D. M. Delmas. Both orators were applauded at length. Anti-Parker delegations attempted to create enthusiasm for their candidates but the Parker men remained undisturbed and unconcerned. Hearst delegates paraded the hall but the showing was small in comparison with the Parker procession which preceded it.

Nominating speeches for favorite son candidates and seconding speeches for both Parker and Hearst occupied the convention for several hours. The convention hall seats about 10,500 persons and from appearances hundreds more had been admitted. The floor and lower and upper galleries contained thousands of sweltering men and women oblivious to the fact that the crowded condition of the hall endangered every life.

As soon as the convention had been called to order Chairman Clark announced that the report of the committee on resolutions was ready. Senator Daniel read the report as chairman of the committee. The convention confusion was so great that not a word could be heard ten feet from the platform.

The great climax of the convention —the nomination of a candidate for president—followed immediately upon the adoption of the platform.

Alabama was called and yielded to

JUDGE ALTON BROOKS PARKER.

New York. Mr. Littleton's speech immediately pleased his audience and when he concluded pandemonium reigned. Flags waved, banners were held aloft and great as was the crowd, delegates carrying the standards of the Parker states paraded through the convention, pushing, trampling and fighting all who obstructed their progress. The scene was one of tremendous confusion. Then was enacted a scene that recalled an incident of the democratic convention in Chicago which nominated William Jennings Bryan eight years ago.

California, a Hearst state, was next in order. D. M. Delmas, of that state, was recognized and there was some cheering as he made his way to the platform, but it was not prolonged. The hall was a bedlam when Mr. Delmas concluded.

Motion to limit seconding speeches to four minutes was put to vote and carried.

Vigorous applause followed Mr. Overmeyer's mention of the name of Gen. Miles, but when he continued his address after naming his candidate he was frequently interrupted by the galleries and the applause at the conclusion of his remarks was shortlived. In the midst of the handclapping Chairman Riley's gavel fell sharply and ended it.

At 1:28 Saturday morning Maino gave way to Missouri and Champ Clark, of that state, took the platform to place in nomination Senator Francis M. Cockrell, of Missouri, for the presidency. Clark was heartily cheered and brought out great laughter by his earnest and witty passage in turn.

When Nebraska was called at 2:25 there were loud cheers for Bryan. After many calls Bryan mounted a chair and received an ovation. Bryan announced that Nebraska yielded to Wisconsin.

"Massachusetts," called the clerk, and Patrick A. Collins, of Boston, made his way to the platform to nominate Richard Olney, of the Old Bay state.

When Wisconsin was called David S. Rose nominated Wall, of Wisconsin.

J. S. Williams, who was placed in nomination, withdrew his name early Saturday morning and seconded Parker.

St. Louis, July 9.—5:30 a. m.—Alton B. Parker has been nominated for president. On the completion of the first ballot he received a total of 658 votes. Before the vote was announced, Idaho changed her six votes.

Washington changed from Hearst to Parker. This was followed by a motion by Champ Clark to make the nomination of Parker unanimous. Scenes of great enthusiasm followed. A monster American flag was unfurled from the dome of the building. The band struck up "Star Spangled Banner."

Patrick A. Collins, of Massachusetts, took the stand to second the motion to make the nomination unanimous. Parker's nomination was made unanimous.

Saturday's Session.

St. Louis, July 11.—The following telegram was received from Judge A. B. Parker, by the democratic national convention Saturday afternoon just as the democratic national convention was about to finish its work and nominated a candidate for vice president

"I regard the gold standard as firmly and irrevocably established, and shall act accordingly if the action of the convention of to-day shall be ratified by the people. As the platform is silent on the subject, my views should be made known to the convention, and if it is proved to be unsatisfactory to the majority, I request you to decline the nomination for me at once, so that another man may be nominated before adjournment. A. B. PARKER."

The convention then adjourned until 7 o'clock Saturday evening. On reassembling the convention partially granted Mr. Parker's request by sending him the following telegram:

"The platform adopted by this convention is silent on the question of monetary standard because it is not regarded by us as a possible issue in

ST. LOUIS PLATFORM.

Democratic National Convention Announces Its Principles.

Many New Issues Brought Out—Capital and Labor—Freedom of the Press, Conscience and Speech and Other Topics.

The Democratic party of the United States, in national convention assembled, declare devotion to the essential principles of the democratic faith which bring together in party communion all who believe in them.

Under them local self-government and national unity and prosperity were alike established. They underlaid our indefinite, the structure of our free republic and every democratic extension, from Louisiana to California, and Texas to Oregon, which preserves faithfully in all the states the tie between taxation and representation. They inspire the masses of our people, guarding jealously their rights and liberties and cherishing their fraternity, peace and orderly development. They remind us of our duties and responsibilities as citizens and impress upon us particularly at this time, the necessity of reform and the rescue of the administration of government from the subversion and perversion which distract business by uncertainty and pervade the public mind with dread, distrust and perturbation.

1.—The application of these fundamental principles to the living issues of the day constitutes the first step toward the assured peace, safety and progress of our nation. Freedom of the press, of conscience and of speech; equality before the law of all citizens; the right of trial by jury; freedom of the person defended by the writ of habeas corpus; liberty of personal contract, untrammeled by sumptuary laws; the supremacy of the civil over the military authority; a well disciplined militia; the separation of church and state; economy in expenditures; low taxes, that labor may be lightly burdened; the prompt and sacred fidelity of public and private obligations; fidelity to treaties; peace and friendship with all nations; entangling alliances with none, absolute acquiescence in the will of the majority, the vital principle of republics—these are doctrines which democracy has established, approved by the nation, and they should be constantly invoked, and enforced.

We favor the enactment and administration of laws, securing to labor and to capital impartially their just rights. Capital and labor ough not to be enemies. Each is necessary to the other. Each has its rights, but the rights of labor are certainly no less "vested," no less "sacred," and no less "inalienable" than the rights of capital.

Constitutional guarantees are violated whenever any citizen is denied the right to labor, acquire and enjoy property or reside where interest or inclination may determine. Any denial thereof by individuals, organizations or governments should be summarily rebuked and punished.

We deny the right of any executive to disregard or suspend any constitutional privilege or limitation. Obedience to the laws and respect for their enforcement are alike the supreme duty of the citizen and the official. The military should be used only to support and to maintain the law. We unqualifiedly condemn its employment for the summary banishment of citizens without trial, or for the control of elections.

We approve the measure which passed the United States senate in 1896, but which a republican congress has ever since refused to enact, relating to contempts in Federal courts and providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt.

We favor the liberal appropriations for the care and improvement of the waterways of the country. When any waterway like the Mississippi river is of sufficient importance to demand aid from the government, such aid should be extended with a definite plan of continuous work until permanent improvement is secured. We oppose the republican policy of starving home development in order to feed a false scheme of conquest and the appetite for national "prestige" and display of strength.

Large reductions can easily be made in the annual expenditures of the government, without impairing the efficiency of any branch of the public service, and we shall insist upon the strictest economy and frugality compatible with vigorous and efficient civil, military and naval administration as a right of the people too clear to be denied or withheld.

2.—The enforcement of honesty in the public service, and to that end a thorough legislative investigation of those executive departments of the government already known to teem with corruption, as well as other departments suspected of harboring corruption, and the punishment of ascertained corruptionists without fear or favor or regard to persons. The persistent and deliberate refusal of both the senate and house of representatives to permit such investigation to be made demonstrates that only by a change in the executive and in the legislative department can complete exposure, punishment and correction be obtained.

We condemn the action of the republican party in congress in refusing to prohibit an executive officer, member of the senate and house of representatives to permit such investigation to be made demonstrates that only by a change in the executive and in the legislative department can complete exposure, punishment and correction be obtained.

We condemn the action of the republican party in congress in refusing to prohibit an executive officer, member of the senate and house of representatives from entering into contracts with convicted trusts or unlawful combinations in restraint of inter-state trade, and we charge that one of the best methods of procuring economy and honesty in the public service is to have no favorites, from the occupant of the white house down to the lowest of them return, as early as may be, to Jeffersonian simplicity of living.

3.—We favor the nomination and election of a president imbued with the principles of the constitution and who will set his face sternly against executive usurpation of legislative and judicial functions, whether that usurpation be wielded under the guise of executive construction of existing laws, or whether it take refuge in the tyrant's plea of necessity or superior wisdom.

We favor the preservation, so far as we can, of an open door for the world's commerce in the orient, without unnecessary entanglement in oriental and European affairs, and without arbitrary, unlimited, irresponsible and absolute government anywhere within our jurisdiction. We oppose, as fervently as did George Washington himself, an indefinite, irresponsible, discretionary and vague absolution and a policy of colonial exploitation, no matter where or by whom invoked or exercised; we believe, with Jefferson and John Adams, that no government has a right to make one set of laws for those at home, and different set of laws, absolute in their character, for those in the colonies. All men under the American flag are entitled to the protection of the institutions of those making that flag; if they are inherently unfit for those institutions, then they are inherently unfit to be members of the American body politic. Wherever there may exist a people incapable of being governed under American laws in consonance with the American constitution, the territory of that people ought not to be part of the American domain.

We insist that we ought to do for the Filipinos what we have already done for the Cubans. And it is our intent, as soon as it can be done wisely and safely for the Filipinos themselves and after amicable arrangements with them concerning naval stations, coaling stations and trade relations, and upon suitable guarantees of protection to all national and international interests to set the Filipino people on their feet free and independent to work out their own destiny.

The endeavor of the secretary of war, by pledging the government's endorsement, for "promoters" in the Philippine Islands to make the United States a partner in speculative exploitation of the archipelago, which was only temporarily held up by the opposition of democratic senators in the last session, will, if successful, lead to a permanent entanglement from what would be difficult to escape.

We congratulate our western citizens upon the passage of the measure known as the Newlands Irrigation act for the irrigation and reclamation of the arid lands of the west—a measure framed by a democrat, passed in the senate by a non-partisan vote and passed in the house against the opposition of almost all the republican leaders by a vote, the majority of which was democratic. We call attention to this great democratic measure, broad and comprehensive as it is, working automatically throughout all time without further action of congress, until the reclamation of all the lands in the arid west capable of reclamation is accomplished, preserving the lands reclaimed for homeseekers in small tracts, and rigidly guarding against land monopolies, as an example of the policy of democratic development contemplated by the democratic party, should it be placed in power.

The democracy, when entrusted with power, will construct the Panama canal speedily, honestly and economically, thereby giving to our people what democrats have always contended for—a great inter-oceanic canal, furnishing shorter and cheaper lines of transportation and broader and less trammeled trade relations with all other peoples of the world.

The democratic party has been, and will continue to be, the consistent opponent of that class of tariff legislation by which certain interests have been permitted, through congressional favor, to draw a heavy tribute from the American people. This monstrous perversion of these equal opportunities which our political institutions were established to secure has caused what may once have been infant industries to become the greatest combinations of capital that the world has ever known. These especial favorites of the governmental favor, through trust methods, been converted into monopolies, thus bringing to an end domestic competition which was the only alleged check upon the extravagant profits made possible by the protective system. These industrial combinations, by the financial assistance they can give now, control the policy of the republican party.

We denounce protection as a robbery of the many to enrich the few, and we favor a tariff limited to the needs of the government economically administered, and so levied as not to discriminate against any industry, class or section, to the end that the burdens of taxation shall be distributed as equally as possible.

We favor a revision and a gradual reduction of the tariff by the friends of the masses, and for the common weal, and not by the friends of its abuses its extortions and its discriminations, keeping in view the ultimate end of "equality of burdens and equality of opportunities," and the constitutional purpose of raising a revenue by taxation, to wit, the support of the economical government in all its integrity and virility, but in simplicity.

We recognize that the gigantic trusts and combinations designed to enable capital to secure more than its just share of the joint product of capital and labor, and which have been fostered and promoted under republican rule, are a menace to honest competition, and an obstacle to permanent business prosperity.

A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. Individual equality of opportunity and free competition are essential to a healthy and permanent commercial prosperity and any trust, combination or monopoly tending to destroy these by controlling production, restricting competition or fixing prices, should be prohibited and punished by law. We especially denounce rebates and discrimination by transportation companies.

We pledge ourselves to insist upon the just and lawful protection of our citizens at home and abroad, and to use all proper measures to secure for them, whether native born or naturalized, and without distinction of race or creed, the equal protection of laws and the enjoyment of all rights and privileges open to them under the covenants of our treaties of friendship and commerce, and, if under existing treaties the right of travel and sojourn is denied to American citizens or recognition is withheld from American passports by any countries on the ground of race or creed, we favor the beginning of negotiations with the governments of such countries to secure, by treaty, the removal of these unjust discriminations.

We demand that all over the world a duly authenticated passport, issued by the government of the United States to a naturalized citizen, shall be prima facie the fact that he is an American citizen, and shall entitle him to the treatment which implies.

We favor the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

We favor the admission of the territories of Oklahoma and the Indian territory. We also favor the immediate admission of Arizona and New Mexico as separate states and a territorial government for Alaska and Porto Rico.

We hold that the officials appointed to administer the government of any territory, as well as with the district of Alaska, should be bona fide residents at the time of their appointment of the territory or district in which their duties are to be performed.

We demand the extermination of polygamy within the jurisdiction of the United States, and the complete separation of church and state in political affairs.

We denounce the ship subsidy bill, recently passed by the United States senate, as an iniquitous appropriation of public funds for private purposes and a scheme of legislative and useless attempt to overcome by subsidy, to the obstruction raised by republican legislation, to the steadily increasing development of American commerce on the sea.

We favor the upbuilding of a merchant marine, without new or additional burdens upon the people, and without bounties from the public treasury.

We favor liberal trade arrangements with Canada and with peoples of other countries where they can be entered into with benefit to American agriculture, manufactures, mining and commerce.

We favor the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine in its full integrity.

We favor the reduction of the army, and of army expenditure to the point historically demonstrated to be safe and sufficient.

The democracy would secure to the surviving soldiers and sailors and their dependents generous pensions, not by an arbitrary executive order, but by legislation which a grateful people stand ready to enact.

Our soldiers and sailors, who defend with their lives the constitution and the laws, have a sacred interest in their just administration. They must, therefore, share with us the humiliation with which we have witnessed the exaltation of court favorites, without distinguished service, over the scarred heroes of many battles; or aggrandized by executive appropriations out of the treasuries of a generous people, in violation of the act of congress which it fixes the compensation and allowances of the military officers.

The democratic party stands committed to the principles of civil service reform. We demand their honest, just and impartial enforcement.

We denounce the republican party for its continuous and sinister encroachment upon the spirit and operation of civil service rules, whereby it has arbitrarily displaced with examinations for office in the interests of favorites, and employed all manner of devices to over-reach and override the principles upon which the civil service was established.

The race question has brought countless woes to this country. The calm wisdom of the American people should see to it that it brings no more.

To revive the dead and hateful race and sectional animosities in any part of our common country means confusion, distraction of business, and the re-opening of wounds now happily healed. North, south, east and west have but recently stood together in line of battle from the walls of Pekin to the hills of Santiago, and as sharers of a common glory and a common destiny, we should act fraternally the common burdens.

We, therefore, deprecate and condemn the Bourbon-like selfish and narrow spirit of the recent republican convention at Chicago which sought to fan anew the embers of racial and sectional strife, and we appeal from it to the fair, common sense and patriotic spirit of the American people.

The existing republican administration has been spasmodic, erratic, sensational, spectacular and arbitrary. It has made itself a satire upon the congress, the courts and upon the settled practices and usages of national and international law.

It summoned the congress into hasty and futile extra session, and virtually adjourned it, leaving behind its flight from Washington uncalled calendars and uncompleted tasks.

It made war which is the sole power of congress, without its authority, thereby usurping one of its fundamental prerogatives. It violated a plain statute of the United States, as well as plain treaty obligations, international usages and constitutional law, and has done so under pretense of executing a great public policy which could and should have been effected lawfully, constitutionally, and with honor.

It formed strained and unnatural constructions upon statutes, usurping judicial interpretation, and substituting congressional enactment decree.

It withdrew from congress their customary duties of investigation, which have before been made the safeguard of the people and the states the terror of evil doers.

It conducted a secretive investigations of its own, and boasted of a few sample convicts, while it threw a broad covering of executive secrecy which had been their chosen field of operative abuses. Where in power the superior officers under whom administration the crimes had been committed.

It ordered assault upon some monopolies, but in the most made the first victory, it flung out the flag of truce and declared that it would not "run amuck"—leaving its future purposes beclouded by its vaccillations.

Conducting the campaign upon this declaration of our principles and purposes, we invoke for our candidates the support not only of our great and time-honored organization, but also the active assistance of all of our fellow citizens who, disregarding past differences upon questions no longer in issue, desire the perpetuation of our constitutional government as framed and established by the fathers of the republic.

Boer Colony for Kansas.

Gen. William Fouche, Boer patriot, is now a Kansas farmer. He has purchased a quarter section of land near Geneseo, in Ellsworth county, and has taken possession of the property. The purchase by Gen. Fouche is said to mean that a Boer colony will be established there. Gen. Fouche is in correspondence with former companions in arms who are still in South Africa, and who have been waiting for Gen. Fouche to find a suitable location before they came to America with their families.

Automobiles in Prophecy.

Forty-three hundred automobile licenses have been issued in a neighboring state. The number of these machines is becoming like unto the swarms of locusts in oriental countries. Was not this state of affairs foreseen in the vision of Nahum the prophet when he wrote: "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightnings?"—N. Y. Tribune.

London Fire Horses.

Eloquent of the state of affairs in London's fire department is this notice issued by the fire chief: "I have noticed that, when turning out at many stations, the movements of the horses are very slow. Instructions are to be given that the horses are to be trained so as to come up to the appliances smartly. I desire that later on horses shall go to the machines without being led."

A Hybrid.

The older members of the family having departed in gala attire to attend a wedding, the two-year-old Elbridge inquired of Sister Helen, aged five: "What is a wedding?" "I'm afraid you're too young to understand," was the worldly-wise reply, "but it's something between a funeral and dancing-school."—Harper's Magazine.

Nested Eggs.

Eggs in a nest of French fried potatoes are very nice. The nests are prepared by placing cut raw potatoes around the sides of a small wire strainer, and cooking ten minutes in deep fat. Sprinkle with salt and send to table with eggs in the shell or turned out. The potatoes should be cut in straws.—Boston Globe.

If by any chance there is a little asparagus left over, use it in making a delicious omelet. Cut the stalks in inch pieces, put them in a bowl, and pour over them the eggs, well beaten. Season with salt and pepper, mix lightly, and pour into the omelet pan.—Boston Budget.

Personal Security.

"What would you do if you saw a ghost?" said the man who tries to make sport of people.

"Dat ain' a question," answered Mr. Erastus Pinkley. "What bothers me is what dat ghos' is gwine to do if he sees me."—Washington Star.

Licked the Stamps.

A Derby (Conn.) postmistress lost half her tongue through blood poisoning contracted while licking a postage stamp. It was in no way due to carelessness on her part; she was fulfilling her duty to the letter.—Indianapolis News.

Put to the Test.

It is good to know that the ant is expected to destroy the boll weevil. For years the ant has been held up as a model of industry and propriety without doing anything useful that was worth noticing.—Washington Star.

Natural Food of Man.

Man's structure, compared with that of other animals, indicates that fruits and esculent vegetables are his natural food. The man-like apes live principally upon fruits, nuts and grains.

The wheat is all harvested and hay harvest is on. A great many of the meadows are very light and the hay crop will be less than an average. We never had a more flattering prospect early in the season for a heavy crop of apples, but there is comparatively none and what few are on the trees are dropping. We have a fair crop of peaches, pears, grapes, &c.

Those who failed to get their tobacco set at that time have had a hard time to get a stand.—William Wilson shipped a nice bunch of cattle last week for which he received 4½cts per pound.—The advance in the price of lambs last week caused considerable stir among our local stock buyers.—Wheat harvest is over but is scarcely worth mention, John Haley having the principal crop in this neighborhood.—Frank Fullilove, the popular jeweler of Owenton, is visiting his brother G. W. Fullilove, at Rume. He and his wife came up in an automobile.

Brutally Tortured.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has never perhaps been equaled. Joe Golobick of Colusas, Cal., writes: "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." FEMALE WEAKNESS

543 1-2 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1903.
I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.
Wilhelmina Snow
Treasurer, Portland Economic League

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, that is the best reason in the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui today.

Local News.

In this part of the country the fourth of July was bloodless.

Threshing machines will not have a long campaign this year.

A little child of Rev. Pollett, of Walton, died yesterday, at Dry Ridge, its mother being there on a visit.

The A. B. Parker nominated by the Democrats for President, is not A. B. Parker, of Petersburg, this county.

Roadoverseer O. P. Phipps had his boys in the trenches several days last week. He had a mixed command.

Heads of wheat in some fields are not filled for half an inch at either end, which will further reduce the small yield on account of the poor stand.

The Harvest Home posters will be printed this week. With two bands of music and a ballon ascension, the 17th of September will be a gala day.

The new bank at Florence will open for business on the 25th inst. They have a handsome banking house handsomely furnished, and clever men in control.

James L. Clore has remodeled the internal arrangements of his livery stable, and improved the looks of the exterior very much by a liberal use of whitewash.

The rains during the month of June ripped the public roads up badly, and in some places it will require an unusual amount of labor to put them in good condition.

Annie, wife of Anderson Johnson, colored, died suddenly, last Thursday afternoon and was buried on Friday. She was the mother of 19 children, one of which was not a day old.

The big premiums that are hung up for the next fair at Florence are the talk of the horse men the State over, and it is just possible that an unusually fine show of horses will be the result.

What to do Until the Doctor Arrives

If it is a case of colic or cholera morbus give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and you will have no need of a doctor. For sale by all Druggists.

Last Thursday W. E. Vest sold to Noah Glasscock, of Walton, the 135 acre farm of Dr. Loomis, near the town of Independence, Kenton county, for $9,750. It is said to be the handsomest country home in Kenton county.

Supt. Snyder desires to inform the teachers of the county that the State Superintendent Fuqua has not been informed what the per capita for this year will be, but will be able to give the information within the next few days.

Mrs. Salathiel Beemon, aged, 77, died at the home of her son, Perry, out on the East Bend road, last Thursday. The remains were buried at Bellevue. Mrs. Beemon's maiden name was Holtsclaw. She was the mother of several children.

The bank is having a cement pavement put down in front of its banking house, and when the work internal and external is completed, the Boone County Deposit Bank will have as handsome abode as most any rural financial institution.

Thomas Rice, Lennie Eddins, Cliff Hedges and Elbert Clore, gave a dance at the hall in Belleview last Friday night. The boys report a good attendance and a delightful time. The Zellers colored band made music for the pleasure-seekers.

The very excellent condition of J. C. Revill's garden is attracting considerable attention, but when it is remembered that Isham Hamilton, of Georgetown, and Rankin Revill, of Covington, both experts with hoes, spent a day or two in it last week, there is no longer any surprise.

At a meeting held on the 4th inst. to elect a Democratic committeeman for Burlington voting precinct to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of A. B. Rouse, J. M. Eddins was elected. The county committee, six members of which were present, met and elected J. L. Frazier, of Union precinct chairman of the county committee.

Mrs. W. H. Blanton.

The death of Mrs. W. H. Blanton occurred Monday afternoon, June 20th, at her home on Crescent Ave. Erlanger, Ky. She had been ill for several weeks of an attack of paralysis, which caused her death. Since hearing of her serious illness, friends not only in Erlanger, but in Union, where she came as a bride some seventeen years ago, have been in a state of anxiety, and hoping, and praying, that her life which had been so noble, and useful would be spared to her family, and to the many friends who admired and loved her.

Thus passes away from the scene of worldly action one of our best women, whose useful life has been a blessing to the community, and she goes to the well earned peaceful rest, with the benediction of "Well done thou good and faithful servant," from ever circle. Mrs. Blanton was the daughter of the late Judge W. Morrison, of Georgetown, and the grand daughter, of Gen. William Johnson, of Scott county. She was twice married, her first husband having been Temple Buford, from this union two children are left to mourn her death, Mrs. Henry F. Duncan, of Louisville, and Temple Buford, of Chicago. Mrs. Buford was married to Dr. W. H. Blanton, of Union, in 1887 where she lived for several years. Though coming here a stranger to all, by her nobility of character and strong social qualities, she soon won the hearts of all. The latch string of her hospitable home was always on the out side to her numerous visitors and a most cordial welcome was extended to all. Mrs. Blanton united with the Baptist church at Union in April 1887, where she remained a faithful member, until a few years ago, when she transferred her membership to Erlanger, where she remained a consistant member until her death. In July, 1887, she organized the Ladies' Baptist Mission Society at Union. She was the honored and respected President of this Society for several years, and will be long remembered for her many good qualities of heart and mind, and a silent tear will be dropped by the ladies of this Society, who enjoyed her friendship. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from hence forth; yea saith the Spirit that may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them."

Her funeral took place from her late home, Tuesday afternoon, and was attended by a large number of friends, and relations. Rev. Lafe Johnson, of the Baptist church, conducted the funeral services. Her remains were taken to Georgetown, where they were tenderly laid to rest in the beautiful cemetery. To the husband and all who are in sorrow over the passing away of this lovely woman, may you be sustained, and conforted, by your faith in him who "doeth all things well." What is loss to you is to her "unspeakable gain." A FRIEND.

BASE BALL.

The Boones went to Petersburg last Saturday, where they lost a well played game. The Boones presented the strongest line up it has had on the diamond this season, but it was not equal to Petersburg's team, which, after the fourth inning had everything its own way. Following is the score by innings:

The scorer kept no record of the game other than the runs and outs.

The umpiring of Mr. Lindsay, of Cincinnati, was eminently satisfactory to both teams.

The Erlanger team came over last Saturday afternoon and took the Gray's scalps again, by a score of 20 to 17. It was a hit and run game from start to finish, and at one time, the last time the home team batted, it made strong threats of overcoming the Erlanger lead of 10 runs. As a friend to the Grays the RECORDER counsels them to be less scrappy than was the disposition last Saturday. It don't pay boys. Play ball. Following is the score by innings:

The Burlington Grays have been a very successful club, and its reputation has gone abroad. Captain Jackson's correspondence on matters pertaining to games has become so voluminous that he is considering the employment of a stenographer and typewriter. The Captain has lead his braves to victory in 8 out of 10 contests. The Grays will play Bellevue here Saturday.

The Boones and the first nine at Bellevue will play on the latter's grounds next Saturday afternoon, and on the Saturday afternoon following (July 23d) the strong Ft. Thomas team, will come to Burlington for another game with the Boones.

Greenwood Grange will give an ice cream festival at Wm. Batterson's on the 4th Saturday night in this month. Admission, 15 cents.

The Day of the Lord

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1904, by J. M. Edson.)

Chicago, Sunday, July 10, 1904.

Text:—"Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision! for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of decision."—Joel 3:14.

THE phrase, "The day of the Lord," is one which is frequently met with in God's Word. It is the favorite expression of all the prophets in designating the time when God's judgments shall fall upon those who are His enemies; in fact it is equivalent to the term, "the day of judgment." It refers to a definite time, known only to God, and to an event as certain of fulfillment as that night follows day. In fact, because it is the Lord's day, the day when He shall descend into the midst of men and take a final accounting, we know for a certainty that the day of the Lord marks an exact point of time in the Divine economy, and that nothing can delay or prevent its coming. The Lord is exact in His appointments, and never fails in the carrying out of His purposes. When the hands on God's eternal timepiece point to the hour, the day of the Lord will be ushered in, and the events which are to mark that day will begin to unfold. And what a day that will be! Jeremiah calls it a "day of vengeance." Ezekiel declares it "shall be a day of clouds, a time of nations;" that is, a time when whole nations will be dealt with by the Lord. Joel describes it as a "day of darkness and gloominess, a day of clouds and thick darkness, as the dawn spread upon the mountains;" and declares that "as destruction from the Almighty shall it come." Malachi refers to it as the "great and terrible day of the Lord," and Isaiah, realizing the awfulness of that day, cries unto the people, "wail ye," now, before it comes, "for the day of the Lord is at hand."

"THE day of the Lord is near," how near no one can know. God guards His secrets well. God does not mark on man's calendar the time of His movements, but He does tell us that the "day of the Lord is near." God does not reckon on time as does man. With him a "thousand years are as one day and one day as a thousand years." The sun in its course counts off the days and weeks and months and years as reckoned by man, and the day of the Lord draws nearer and nearer. We know that it is nearer by several thousand years than it was when the prophet Joel uttered the words of our text. Yea, and as the judgment of the Lord has fallen upon the individual nations successively since that day the world has witnessed a sort of minor fulfillment of the prophecy, which gives a faint but convincing proof of the greater and more awful day to come. There is the same spirit of unbelief abroad in the world to-day as there was in the days when Noah warned of the coming judgment of God in the flood. Jesus made solemn reference to this when He said: "As in those days which were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and they knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall he the coming of the Son of Man." Careless indifference and stubborn unbelief blind the world to the truth. Either there is hardness of heart which refuses to believe that the "Lord's day" is coming at all, or there is that fatal folly which finds comfort and encouragement in its sin by saying: "My Lord delayeth His coming." Injustice and oppression mark the relation of man to man; the gratification of every appetite and desire and lust is sought with feverish and persistent effort; the human will and heart run riot in the life. Man is having his "day" to the fill, but, know ye! "the Lord shall come in a day when he expecteth not, and in an hour when he knoweth not." "The day of the Lord IS near!"

THERE is a sense in which every day is the Lord's day. God cannot be crowded out of His world, even though the world has plainly declared that it will not have Him rule over it. God is moving in the midst of men to-day in a mysterious way His plans to execute and His wonders to perform. It is the Lord's day in the sense that God is surely and steadily executing the plan of the ages. It is the Lord's day in that He is near to them that fear Him and serve Him. It is the Lord's day in that all the universe is upheld by His omnipotence and directed by His omniscience. It is the Lord's day while nature responds to His touch and life is vibrant everywhere. But the present day is not the Lord's day in the sense that He rules supreme. The will of man is athwart the will of God; the heart of man is turned from the Creator to the creature and the things which appeal to the physical life and the lower animal nature. It is man's day in the sense that he may choose good or evil; may serve God or self. It is man's day, because upon him has been bestowed the freedom of choice. His will is supreme. Within the limits of the human sphere he may think as he wishes, do as he pleases, and go and come as the purpose of life or the fancy of the moment dictates. He does not ask of God whether he may do so and so, or go to such and such a place. He moves about over the surface of God's earth with perhaps never a thought of Him who has created all things and Who has given him the breath of life. His way seems prosperous, his ideals seem high, though they do not reach up to God; his thoughts are steeped in the wisdom of man. His course is with men and of men. It is man's day. Man's day in which he is building of wood, hay and stubble a structure which will fall and be utterly consumed in the "day of the Lord." It is man's day now! Consider it well, for it is different from that great and glorious "day of the Lord."

THE day of the Lord will be marked by judgment upon sin, by destruction of the unrepentant sinner, and by the absolute triumph of God's righteousness. It will be a time when God shall rule supreme; when sin, in all its hideous unsightliness, which is everywhere disfiguring God's fair world today, shall be put away, and when the will of God will be no longer thwarted or hampered by the devices of man. Naught but that which bears the Divine impress will be found anywhere, and the same sweet harmony which prevails in nature to-day as it comes fresh from God's hand will be found to exist among men. There will be no discords then. There will be no more violence, for the lion and the lamb shall lie down together and a little child shall lead them. This is what it will mean for those who have found in God and His Christ their refuge. But to the nations and individuals who reject God's offer of mercy now, it will prove to be a great and terrible day, and who shall be able to abide it? In the center of every cyclone there is said to be a place of perfect calm. All about is the roar of the mighty wind, the crashing of great timbers as they are torn and twisted from their places, the thunder of falling walls, the shrieks of the terrified and groans of the injured and dying, but in the very core of that awful destruction there is perfect calm and safety. There a babe might rest in security and have its sleep unbroken. And it will be so in the "day of the Lord." The Lord, who will execute terrible judgment upon sin and the unrepentant sinner, will become a refuge unto His people.

AND while the day of the Lord will be filled with the awful cry of the lost, while those who have rejected God's mercy and God's Christ are shrieking out in the mad terror of that day, there will rise upon the air to God's listening ear the song of rejoicing because righteousness has triumphed and sin has been put away. It will be a great day of darkness to those who perish, but it will be a day of light and gladness to those who are found within the ark of safety. Not joy because the wicked perish, not songs of gladness because of the "weeping and gnashing of teeth" in the outer darkness, but joy and singing because the righteousness of God has triumphed, and sin has been judged and put away. Do you remember what joy there was in your heart when you opened it to receive the Christ as your Saviour and you realized that you were free from sin and its consequences through the cleansing and saving power of Jesus' blood? Do you recall how sweet the will of God seemed and how the thought that God was to rule in your heart and life thereafter brought inexpressible joy and peace? These experiences are common for those who have accepted the Christ and surrendered to His will, and if such may be the experience here and now, while sin still buffets us and the will of God is not fully done in our lives, neither in the world, what think you will be the joy and peace of the great day of triumph which the day of the Lord will usher in? The foretaste here is enough to fill our hearts full of expectancy and to cause us to cry out with John: "Come Lord Jesus!"

"MULTITUDES, multitudes" are gathering "in the valley of decision, for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of decision." The great day is approaching, and while man's day lasts he is either gathering in the valley of decision, where God's wrath will fall upon him because of sin unrepented of and a Saviour rejected, or he is heeding God's warning message and fleeing from the wrath to come. There are many roads which lead to the valley of decision, to the place of irrevocable and fixed rebellion against God and unavoidable destruction. There is the way of procrastination, and more there be that travel over that road than any other. Comparatively few there are who do not recognize the truth of God, who are not willing to admit that they ought to turn from sin and accept the Saviour, and who do not expect to do so at some future day. But not now. Not when it will interfere with personal plans and ambitions and desires. At a more convenient season when life is not so full and free and abundant; a time when there seems to be less to sacrifice. And so the journey is taken to the valley of decision, and too late, too late, is the cry which at last bursts from the dying lips. And then there is the road of unbelief. Along this pathway travel those who are deaf to God's voice and blind to the evidences all about and within man that God's Word is truth. Then the road of pride and self-righteousness and self-will draws many. They will not see themselves as sinners, they will not yield their will to God. Then there are others who are traveling over the road of good works, which is commonly reported among men to lead straight to the pearly gates and the presence of God, but which leads straight down into the valley of decision, for God says, "by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified in His sight." Good works cannot save, but faith in Jesus Christ only. And there are other roads which lead to this valley of decision. Which are you traveling?

THE RACHAN AND THE CLASSICAL.

STAND-PATISM THE MOTTO.

Republican Enunciation of "Principles" Is an Insult to Intelligence of the People.

The platform adopted by the republican national convention is fundamentally Bourbon. Nothing has been forgotten and nothing has been learned. All the achievements of the past are tagged, catalogued and enumerated, but the future played so trivial a part in the deliberations of the convention that it was all but disregarded.

Considered, however, merely from the point of view of the stand-pat-let-well-enough-alone republicans the platform leaves nothing to be desired. To people who paraphrase Napoleon's maxim and insist that time and the republican party can accomplish everything this is an ideal platform, because it leaves everything to time and the party. Everywhere between planks is this admonition: "Don't bother your blessed heads about anything. We have already solved all the political problems there are to solve; but if any have been overlooked we can be depended upon to solve them as they ought to be solved."

It is in respect to the Philippines and the tariff that this masterpiece of "stand-patism" will be most vigorously and most righteously assailed. Not even the vaguest promises of the most remote independence for the Filipinos are made. The convention curtly informs them that they have "the largest civil liberty they have ever enjoyed," and by implication tells them to run along and not bother the government by asking for anything more.

The tariff declaration, says the New York World, is equally patronizing. A platform that refers to the Wilson law as an act "based on free-trade principles" informs the people with an air of superb economic superiority that "to a republican congress and a republican president this great question can safely be intrusted." This is to say that if the republican machine and the protected manufacturers think a revision of schedules is advisable the tariff will be "readjusted" by its friends. As all previous revisions by the republican party have resulted in higher schedules, this "stand-pat" plank has a certain merit that cannot be ignored. It threatens us with no new burdens.

The least tariff we can possibly tolerate, the convention tells us, must measure the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad. Nothing is said about the difference in selling price of American articles at home and abroad, by which the home consumer pays for extending the protected manufacturer's foreign trade. Neither is anything said about the fact that the greater productive ability of the American workman has in many cases more than overcome the relative difefrffence in wages. There is no promise uttered or implied that the Dingley schedule will be reduced to a point that will measure the difference between the cost of production here and abroad. Even the Chamberlain campaign for a protective tariff in Great Britain to retaliate against the United States and Germany is twisted into an argument in support of the inviolability of the Dingley schedules.

As for reciprocity, the party that tore up the Kasson treaties is willing to reciprocate providing it can be done "without injury to American agriculture." The part is greater than the whole, and the interests of all the people must not be considered as against the least, least trivial interest of any class or individual. Foreigners that wish to trade with us on living terms must produce something that we cannot produce or imitate.

McKinley's admonition that "we must not repose in fancied security that we can forever sell everything and buy little or nothing" made no appeal to the convention. McKinley was long ago outMcKinleyed by his party. If he were alive he could have had no standing in the Chicago convention. Possibly he would have been denounced as a free-trader—a Cobdenite at the very least. The thing to do is to stand pat and fry the fat.

——Gov. Durbin, of Indiana, and other slightly previous statesmen are squabbling over the Fairdbanks senatorial toga. Mr. Fairbanks winks the other eye. He has not resigned as senator yet, —Albany (N. Y.) Argus.

——Secretary Shaw announces that before the campaign is over government statistics will show that wages have advanced more than prices. If one of the bureaus of the government is engaged in investigating this point it would create more confidence in its finding if the secretary of the treasury did not announce the result before it was reached. —Pittsburg Dispatch.

PRESIDENT THE PLATFORM.

He Was the Chicago Convention and Will Run the Campaign to Suit Personal Whims.

One need not trouble one's self with the resolutions adopted by the Chicago convention. These are not the republican platform. Mr. Roosevelt is the candidate. Mr. Roosevelt was the convention. Mr. Roosevelt was the committee on resolutions, the committee on contested seats, and he will be (by proxy) the chairman of the republican national committee. He and the federal patronage have subjugated the republican party. In a broader and an even truer sense, Mr. Roosevelt is the platform, and upon him, his record, and his temperament, the republican party is to stand and fall.

It is said by his admirers and eulogists that Mr. Rosevelt "does things," and because he does things, he is not to be blamed for ignoring the spirit and letter of the Constitution, the century-old limitations of executive power, and the recognized metes and bounds of international law and international courtesy, is the doing of them. Right there issue is taken, and upon this contention much discussion will turn. But if Mr. Rooscevelt can do no wrong—if his "doing things" is a merit so great as to entitle him to be freed of the fetters of constitution, precedent, executive limitation and international usage, then clearly we need waste no time in reading or debating a document so relatively weak and trival as a republican party platform. Good, bad, or indifferent, here is no pledge, no past precedent, no assurance of future performance, which would bind the man who "does things," and and how he has a mind to do them, and is applauded by his retainers for the fact of so doing.

The great question to be determined this year, says the Albany Argus, is and must be whether the people desire four years more of a Roosevelt released from the near approach of a presidential election, constrained no longer, but given the popular mandate to consider himself, his ways, and his make-up, the nation's will and choice. This has been made the great issue, this the paramount plank and platform, not by the Chicago convention, but by Mr. Roosevelt himself.

Is he safe? Is he sane? Is he possessed of that balanced mind, cool, calm judgment and even temperament which are needed by every high public official, but over and above all others by the president of these United States? By what he has done, by what he has said and writtten and by his manner of action, speech, and writing, must Candidate Roosevelt be judged. He himself has made the issue, and he has done and said the things on which that issue rests.

WHAT THE EDITORS THINK.

——The trusts cannot cast their blight over everything. Even though spring lamb has been dear, the mint is cheap. —Washington Star (Rep.).

——The republican national committee recognized the Wisconsin bolters, thus clinching that state for the democrats.—Memphis Commercial.

——The republican national convention opened with the astronomical summer. Does this signify that it goeth before a fall—Boston Herald.

——James Bryce at a London banquet said that Theodore Roosevelt is the "greatest president the United States has had since Washingon." They shouldn't serve those queer mixed drinks at London banquets.—Baltimore Sun.

——The fact that there are united workingmen's singing societies will of course be used as a "prosperity" argument by the republicans. But the truth is that many of us have to sing, or whistle, to keep up our courage.—St. Louis Republic.

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

Police Judge John J. Riley Announced a Startling Innovation.

Lexington, Ky., July 8.—Police Judge John J. Riley, who recently attained notoriety by the re-establishment of the whipping post, announced another startling innovation in criminal procedure Thursday which promises to diminish the number of drunks presented in his court hereafter.

Those charged with being drunk will be given the alternative of taking an emetic, consisting of a glassful of fishbrine or going to jail. One victim took the emetic Thursday and it worked. When small boys are convicted he suspends a long workhouse sentence on condition that the parent inflict a whipping on the culprit in the public square.

Several colored boys have been whipped. Drastic measures, which he recently adopted, ran all the vagrants out of town.

Surrounding towns are beginning to adopt the same measures.

SCHOOL BOOK LAW.

It Will Be Tested Anent Cities of the Second Class.

Lexington, Ky., July 8.—The board of education Thursday night, by unanimous vote, decided to test the school book law adopted by the last general assembly in regard to its application to cities of the second class. This action was based upon a written report from Attorney S. M. Wilson to the effect that a city of the second class had an exclusive jurisdiction over its own text books. The co-operation of other cities of the second class will be asked for a written opinion from the attorney general. In case the latter is unfavorable the matter will be take to the courts for adjudication.

As most of the autos are eight or ten horse power, the toll from Newport to Alexandria and return is from $2 to $2.50. Formerly it was only 50 cents, the same as a horse and wagon. It is claimed the big machines keep travel off the road, as many women who formerly enjoyed evening rides do not do so for fear of accidents.

They Will Be Closed By Attorney General N. B. Hayes.

Covington, Ky., July 11.—N. B. Hayes, attorney general of Kentucky, announces that the poolrooms in Covington will be closed. He has filed three motions in the circuit court for temporary injunctions against the proprietors of the poolrooms and owners of the rpal estate. A LEADER'S KEYNOTE.

John Sharp Williams Sounds Democratic Tocsin.

The Brilliant Southerner Ridicules Republican Promises and Claims and Avers That God and Human Ingenuity Deserve Credit For the Success the Nation Enjoys.

"The address of the temporary chairman of the republican national convention," said Williams, "was in one sense historical. It dealt much in history, at any rate, most of it ancient history, and a great deal of it bad history. There was a labored argument to prove that the party of Roosevelt must be something like constitutional process act as the party of Lincoln and McKinley.

TO DISTRACT ATTENTION.

"It was to draw away attention from Roosevelt-ism, its volcanic, eruptive and reckless character, its overwhelming upon the fact that, at some period in its history, the republican party has been "a party which did things," and did them safely. The author of it hoped that the country lose sight of the fact that it is now, in both of its legislative branches, a party of passivity, of nonaction, of obstruction to reform and progress—in a word, a party whose only sacred precept is the shibboleth known, on the one hand, as known, on the other; a shibboleth drawn from the gambler's table: 'Stand pat;' a precept born of cowardice and fear to move.

A FEW INSTANCES.

"Is it in the going back to ancient history? In the Credit Mobilier? In the De Golyer-Ames scandal? In the whisky ring? In the long saturnalia of Southern reconstruction? Where? Or in modern history? In the post office department? In the public lands bureau? In the full sway of bosses, formerly cursed so bitterly and now taken so fondly to his bosom by the republicans? In the celebrated order of 'Hell Roaring Jake' Smith prescribing 10 as the age above which children were not to labor in one of the islands of the Philippines?

"In the universal honeycombing of our national life with the corruption of privilation-bought special privileges? What has ancient history to do with present misgivings, anyhow?

"But Mr. Root says, 'Offenders have been relentlessly prosecuted and sternly punished.' Isn't this remarkable thundering in the index' for gov. compared with actual republican accomplishments?

"If there ever were a determination fully entertained and finally carried out, it was the determination of the republican administration and the republican legislative body to see to it that nobody should investigate the alleged culprit, in the office department except their colleagues in the executive branch of the government.

"There follows something, however, which will be taken seriously. Secretary Root boasts that the per capita of circulation of money among the people in the United States increased from $24.14 in March, 1897, to $31.02 in May last, and that the credit for that and the consequent prosperity following it was due to the republican party.

"What a curious boast this is for those lately denying so strenuously that the quantity of money had anything to do with the value of money, of the price of other things as measured in money, or with an ascending scale of prices, or with national prosperity.

"This was all denied but yesterday. Now it is asserted that the volume of metallic money has been immensely increased; that it has brought prosperity, and that it has all been due to republican legislation. Due to what act of congress passed by them? Was republican legislation operative in South Africa and the Klondike, and did it cause the discoveries of gold there? Did it cause the new inventions for the more profitable extraction of gold from low ore? Did republican legislation add two billions of gold to the world's stock of money metals in the last eight years?

Was it republican legislation which made the immense crops of cotton, wheat, corn, etc., which enabled these United States to draw more than their pro rata share of the world's stock of money metals, thereby increasing their stock of gold by $7,000,000?

"What partnership is this between God, human industry and ingenuity and the republican party, of which the republican party is the self-assertive senior member? What monumental effrontery is this which enables a party to boast of the benefits of the increased volume of standard metallic money and consequent prosperity by the operation of the quantitative theory of money, which theory they found no language strong enough to deny and ridicule but yesterday?

"Temporary Chairman Root next boasted that the republican party had, by a manipulation which he described of the currency and certificate denomination made it so difficult to get gold out of the treasury in exchange for other forms of money, that practically it can not be done at all to any large extent, and hence that all danger of an 'endless chain,' thereby ceased, had ended. If so, is this not keeping the gold redemption promise to the ear but breaking it to the hope?

ONE-MAN POWER.

"The ex-secretary then boasted that the secretary of the treasury can and does contract and expand the country's currency at his will. He illustrates this by the occurrences which happened in 1902, which he quotes. Remember, he boasts that this is a fact. If so, what a magnificent one-man power it is!

"What do the men who believe that the government ought to go out of the banking business think of this? Who believe that the banks ought to go out of the governing business, think of this remarkable, this startling assertion that one man in the United States can and does contract and expand the currency, which furnishes the lifeblood of commerce, at his own sweet will?

"The ex-secretary then tells us, in a burst of eloquence, that 'the fatal 14th of September, 1901, marked no change of policy.'

"Who is there in America of common sense who does not know better? The changed spirit of the policy of the administration, with regard to reciprocity with foreign nations, with regard to local self-government in the south, and in twenty respects, which it would take too much time to particularize, will suggest themselves to your mind at once.

Chairman Williams then turned to the republican platform, declaring it to be "chiefly a boast, that the republican party is responsible for everything good which has happened." This he denied, referring to "its present obstructiveness and its evasion of the live issues which lie in its pathway to success." He then referred to the republican declaration that upon the access of the republican party to power, after Mr. Cleveland's second administration, it "found the country, after four years of democratic rule, in evil plight, oppressed with misfortune and doubtful of the future," and said:

"The acute reaction which we call panic was inevitably approaching. Even before Mr. Cleveland was elected business was sunk in the depression which preceded the panic of 1893.

"It was not his lord or American condition; but one which had existed from where Vienna nestles on the Danube to where Buenos Ayres commands its bay, one whose foundations had been laid long before it reached us, almost the last among the nations.

"The repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act did no good, of course. The panic went on, until agriculture, the basic industry, revived. The democratic administration demanded and secured the passage of the act repealing the purchasing clause of the Sherman act, thereby for the first time practically establishing the gold standard in the United States. This accomplished fact of a gold basis was accomplished, though not by the republican party, but by the dogged persistency and indomitable will of Grover Cleveland. They would now tell us that the panic was brought about by a tariff act, which was not passed until more than a year after, to-wit, in 1894, when the panic was virtually over.

He explained how the depression was relieved in part by the Indian famine and the immense wheat crop of the United States, that brought the price to 99 cents.

"When wheat went up," he said, "while silver bullion went down, there was furnished a seeming object lesson of the inaccuracy of the contention of Mr. Bryan and his followers, of whom I was one, that there was necessarily a connection in price between the two.

"Western and border state farmers in the wheat belt, who had originally been republicans anyhow, and who had gone off from the republican party because of their belief in this very theory, began to leave the Bryan columns and to join the McKinley columns, first by the dozen, then by the score, then by hundreds, and then by shoals. Thus it came about that Mr. McKinley was elected, because wheat went up, and because the going up of wheat and the consequent increased demand for other things, leading to higher prices and a better volume of trade, promised to their minds prosperity without free silver."

He paid his compliments next to the republican platform declaration that the republican party was responsible for the relief of Cuba and the war with Spain. "It was not the miseries of Cuba," but public demand, that led the republican party to fall in line. Democrats voted for the war measure as enthusiastically as republicans. Not the republican party, but the people of America, fought the quick, victorious war with Spain.

DEMOCRATS WHO SUFFERED.

"It would not be invidious to state the politics of heroes, but it seems to me that I have heard that Dewey was a democrat, that Schley was a democrat, that Miles was a democrat, and it seems to me, too, that I have heard that a republican administration snubbed the first, tried to disgrace the second and insulted the third.

"But for democratic senators and representatives," he said, "demanding and voting for a proviso to the act of intervention, to the effect that the people of Cuba were and of right ought to be free and independent,' and pledging our faith that we would 'wage no war of conquest or territorial acquisition,' but would withdraw our troops after pacification,' the republican administration would doubtless be furnishing to the world to-day, in the case of Cuba, a companion piece to the picture which has been exhibited in the Philippines."

PARTIES AND TRUSTS.

He referred to the republican platform on trusts. "Laws enacted by the republican party and which the democratic party had failed to enforce," it reads, have been fearlessly enforced,' it reads. Here are three statements, first that the republican party, instead of both parties, enacted the laws, which is not true; secondly, that the democratic party has done nothing, which is also not true; and third, that the republican party has enforced the law, which is only partially true.

"Attorney General Harmon, under Cleveland's administration, found the suit of the government against the Trans-Missouri Freight Association lost, took it up, revived it and won it. He then instituted suit against the Joint Traffic Association, and also against the Addyston Pipe Co. The principle established in the case of the government against the Trans-Missouri Freight Association—the principle there contended for by Cleveland's attorney general—is the principle which gave life to the proceedings in the Northern Securities case, and which led Gov. Van Sant, and not the republican party, as has been falsely pretended, to inaugurate that suit.

"The attorney general, in answer to another resolution, failed to show that anything substantial was being done, civil or criminally, against the anthracite coal-carrying railroads and anthracite coal-mine-owners, constituting together, in violation of law, one of the greatest trusts in this country, although a private American citizen had proceeded, at great expense to get up the evidence.'

"TRUST BUSTER" KNOX.

"This same 'trust buster,' Attorney General Knox, has just been appointed by the governor of Pennsylvania a senator from that state on the demand, so the newspapers all say, of the very men who constitute this unlawful combination, or who are, at any rate, the presidents of the railroad companies and the owners of the mines constituting it."

He denounced as absurd the republican claim that it had "perfected the interstate commerce law," which he termed "a ridiculous piece of official impotency."

Then he launched into the republican promise of tariff adjustment "when conditions have so changed that the public interest demands their alteration."

"Does not everybody who knows anything know that the republican party has no idea of making any alterations in the tariff unless they can thereby purchase the support of additional special interests, or tie to them already bought interests in closer bonds.

"Are there not 'conditions' demanding changes in many of the schedules of the present tariff law when scores of highly protected steel and iron products, including rails, locomotives, barbed wire and agricultural implements of American make, are being sold daily in competition with so-called pauper labor of the world, in the home of this same pauper labor? More than that, when they are being carried right by the south door of Great Britain, on through the straits of Gibraltar, and through the Suez canal to Britain's own colony of South Africa and sold there, and when, even more than that, they are sold after freight has been paid and profit obtained at a less price than the same goods are sold to Americans in American markets five miles from the factory. Will any one dare say that the 'public interest' has not already demanded some alterations in the tariff?

"The platform then goes on to say that these alterations can not be 'safely committed to any other hands than the republican party.' Who believes for a minute that the party which has refused every tariff alteration thus far proposed intends to recognize any sort of conditions or any sort of public interest in any 'public interest' in connection with the question?"

TARIFF AND PROSPERITY.

Referring to the republican declaration that "a democratic tariff has always been followed by business adversity—a republican tariff by business prosperity," he said: "The great panic of 1873, if it was caused by any tariff law at all, was necessarily caused by the then existing tariff law, which is the first one ever passed by the republican party, and it had been passed as a war measure.

"From 1861 down to the outbreak of the civil war, the country was nine-tenths of the time under democratic ascendency, with democratic tariff legislation, and nine-tenths of that time our people were prosperous beyond all precedent.

"What the republican platform calls 'a democratic tariff law based on free-trade principles,' referring to the tariff of 1894 —the so-called Wilson-Gorman bill—was the farthest removed from free trade of any tariff law that has ever existed in this country, except the one which bore the name of McKinley, and the one which afterward bore the name of Dingley. But even this was a tariff law which followed adversity, instead of preceding it.

"A succeeding statement in the platform afvors 'commercial reciprocity wherever reciprocal arrangements can be effected . . . without injury to American labor, or any American industry. If the phrase means anything, it means this: That the republican party is not willing to secure immensely larger markets for the produce of our farms, mines, forests, or even manufactures abroad, if in return for them it shall be compelled to admit into competition with any, even the least of our industries, any articles of foreign growth or production.

"Then there is cunningly concealed in the republican platform the hydra-headed of a yet worse form of special legislation, namely, special legislation by direct subsidy, taking money out of the treasury and handing it over bodily to a special class—in this case the class of shipbuilders and shipowners.

"I say it is the worst form of special legislation, because it is naked and without hypocrisy, and hypocrisy is the reverence which vice pays to virtue.'

"Things have almost reached the old decadent days of the Roman republic when government consisted chiefly in distributing bread and giving circuses. The worst of all this is, that it is sought to be justified, before public opinion, upon the pretext that it is done for the benefit of 'American labor.'

"It would be far more justifiable to pass a law to give to every sailor and to every man and woman in the United States receiving less than $1 a day and increase of 50 per cent, than it would by protectionism, or ship subsidy, to pretend to have that end in view.

THE FRANCHISE FLANK.

"The republican platform, to sum it all up, obeys the precept to 'stand pat' in every respect except one, and that is a respect in which well enough might very well have been left alone. That is the plank in which this language is used: 'We favor such congressional action as shall determine whether by special discrimination the elective franchise in any state has been unconstitutionally limited,' followed by the promise made, in that event, to reduce southern representation in the house of representatives and in the electoral college.

ITS REAL OBJECT.

"The real object of the republican party—so far as their plank is concerned, however, specious the phraseology in which it is clothed, is to reduce southern representation, without reducing that of Massachusetts, Connecticut and other states, wherever in the south negroes are disfranchised, not as such, but because of ignorance, by an educational qualification or because of any other right reason, in any other constitutional way. Disfranchisement of a negro in Mississippi for ignorance is a horrible thing; disfranchisement of a white man for ignorance in Massachusetts or Connecticut, is a part of New England higher civilization.'

"It is not the business interests of the country deceive itself. All those contemplating prepare, if Roosevelt is elected on this platform, for another period of uncertainty, unrest, business disturbance and race war in the southern states, instead of that peace and prosperity which both races now enjoy, and which have been rendered possible only by home rule and by white supremacy.

"Let the republicans deceive itself either. If the republican party were sincere in its proposition to reduce southern representation on the ground of the disfranchisement of the negro race in the south, thereby condoning the disfranchisement or pretended "unconstitutional limitation" itself, it would accompany that proposition with another, to wit, the proposition to repeal the fifteenth amendment.

"Consequently, and essentially, the white men of the south will not be much more injured by this sort of agitation than northern people will be.

"This is but the entering wedge to a new period of southern reconstruction. It is the beginning over of the old scheme, revived for political advantage, to retain, as a republican asset, the solid Negro vote in Indiana, Illinois, New Jersey and the conditional states, by demoralising southern industries, unsettling business and labor, disintegrating society, and, as a remote effect, if successful, hybridizing the races there, and Africanizing its civilization.

"Only the democratic party can rely upon. the democracy will nominate for president a man trained in the ways of the constitution, who will not usurp legislative or judicial functions, who will not recklessly violate national usages; who will not keep people guessing about what he is going to do or say next; it will nominate him upon a platform ignoring dead issues and dealing with every present live issue in a conservative, even and unmistakable; favoring economy of administration, an enforcement of honesty of the public service, a wise and businesslike revision and reduction of the tariff by the friends of the masses and of the commonwealth, and not by tariff beneficiaries and their representatives alone, a reduction which shall aim at 'equality of burdens and equality of opportunities,' and whose ultimate object shall be to raise a revenue by taxation to support the Federal government in virility, but in simplicity.

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES.

"A democratic administration will find in our treatment of Cuba an example of American courage, justice and magnanimity to be imitated when it can be wisely and safely done in the Philippines, ultimately leaving them, and giving them the promise now that we will leave them free and independent. The democracy, in my opinion, believes that the white man will have trouble enough to maintain in its full integrity the white civilization now in all parts of his own country. Under a democratic administration the rights of labor will be recognized as no less 'sacred,' no less 'sacred,' no less 'inalienable' than the rights of capital, and both will be dealt with justly and impartially according to their very right. The democratic party will not hypocritically pretend to sympathize with those who desire, on with those who would not, by all lawful and constitutional means, prevent the Africanization or Monogolization of any state or territory within the bounds of the American republic. The democracy, when intrusted with power, will construct the Panama canal speedily, honestly and economically.

SERMON ON THE MOUNT.

"Above all, in conclusion, a good democratic administration will ponder and practice the simple precepts of Jefferson's first inaugural address. It is the political sermon on the Mount for democratic republicans.

"Gentlemen, it is in the power of no man or party to assure success. It is in the power of the humblest to deserve it. God grant that we may have it. Let us, for the sake of our reform, and of the character of our candidate, deserve it. Let us erect a standard to which all good men may repair."

Eggs and Potatoes.

Eggs prepared with potatoes is a nice dish. First make a sufficient quantity of creamed potatoes and break an egg for each person on the top. Put a bit of butter on each egg and place the dish in a hot oven until set. This will be accomplished more quickly if a hot pan is put over them.—Boston Globe.

CUPID'S DIPS AND SUPPENS

What Uncle Sam Needs the Former For as Stated by a Halting Speaker.

A certain congressman from a mountain district, says the New York Sun, is troubled with a weak, squeaky little voice, which sometimes fails in the midst of what might otherwise be an eloquent peroration.

Recently in addressing the house on a matter connected with tariff, he exclaimed:

"Why, tariffs are like a pair of suspenders, sometimes tight and sometimes loose; but Uncle Sam needs them just the same, to keep up his—"

Here the congressman's voice struck a high treble note, flared and stopped.

The house held its breath while he cleared his throat. The suspense, which seemed to last for fully a minute, was more painful to the auditors than to the orator, for everyone was wondering whether he would say "trousers" or "pants," and some were even hoping that they would say "pantaloons." Even "overalls" would be better than "pants," for "pants" is most unparliamentary.

But all fears were without foundation. He cleared his throat with the greatest care, and in a death-like stillness resumed his oration where he had dropped it: "to keep up his running expenses."

The words which followed were lost forever in a gale of laughter.

SAVED CHILD'S LIFE.

Remarkable Cure of Dropsy by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Sedgwick, Ark., July 11.—The case of W. S. Taylor's little son is looked upon by those interested in medical matters as one of the most wonderful on record. In this connection his father makes the following statement:

"Last September, my little boy had Dropsy; his feet and limbs were swollen to such an extent that he could not walk nor put his shoes on. The treatment that the doctors were giving him seemed to do him no good and two or three people said his life were short, even the doctors, two of the best in the country told me he would not get better. I stopped their medicine and at once sent for Dodd's Kidney Pills. I gave him three Pills a day, one morning, noon and night for eight days; at the end of the eighth day the swelling was all gone, but to give the medicine justice, I gave him seven more Pills. I used thirty-five Pills in all and he was entirely cured. I consider your medicine saved my child's life. When the thirty-five Pills were given him, he could run, dance and sing, whereas before he was an invalid in his mother's arms from morning until night."

HONORS WERE PLUMB EVEN

Out-of-Town People Have Something to Talk About as Well as City Folks.

Maxfield Parrish, the illustrator, has a picturesque house in Vermont, and from this pleasant home he often makes excursions into the wildest and most isolated parts of the state, says the New York Tribune.

During a recent visit to New York Mr. Parrish said:

"I stopped overnight at a lonely Vermont farm last month. The house commanded a barren and desolate landscape. It was anything but gay.

"I remember the brief conversation I had with the farmer as he showed me to my bed.

"'A very quiet place,' I said.

"'It is,' said he.

"'Does a newspaper ever find its way here?'

"'Seldom.'

"'Then,' I said, 'you don't hear much of what is going on in New York, eh?'

"'No,' said the farmer, grimly, 'but then, you see, they don't hear much in New York of what is going on here, either.'"

Shore Bird Shooting.

The season of 1904 which opened July 1st in New York State—Long Island gunners report a record breaker. Of the forty odd varieties making Long Island an annual visitation, the flights arriving have been exceeding large and the end is not yet. Plovers and yellow legs and all the other well known varieties are found in their usual haunts in exceedingly large numbers, hence the shooting along Great South Bay from Babylon through Patchogue and Moriches and both sides of Fire Island have been exceedingly good. Same is true on the Shinnecock Bay shooting grounds. Along both shores of Gardners and Peconic Bays, and while not in such a great number of varieties, on the north or Sound shore of the Island the shooting is exceedingly good its entire length. Of the near by grounds, Jamaica Bay with its innumerable islands and flats running well into the water, furnish to the old timer hunting ground that is not excelled and possibly not even equaled elsewhere on the Atlantic coast.

No Mister.

Elihu Root, who has returned to the practice of law in New York city, has engaged a new office boy. Said Mr. Root: "Who carried off my paper basket?" "It was Mr. Reilly," said the boy. "Who is Mr. Reilly?" asked Mr. Root. "The janitor, sir." An hour later Mr. Root asked: "Jimmie, who opened the window?" "Mr. Lantz, sir." And who is Mr. Lantz?" "The window cleaner, sir." Mr. Root wheeled about and looked at the boy. "See here, James," he said, "we call men by their first names here. We don't 'mister' them in this office. Do you understand?" "Yes, sir." In ten minutes the door opened and a small, shrill voice said: "There's a man here as wants to see you, Elihu."—Nashville Banner.

We see by the fiscal court proceedings published last week, that a vote is to be taken on the proposition to prevent stock running at large in the Bullittsville voting precinct. The citizens of Idlewild are heartily in favor of the proposition, as the toll gate premises is where stock congregates both night and day. We hope all will unite in an effort to have the proposition carry at the polls.

PAUL KRUGER DEAD.

Transvaal's Ex-President Died Chanting a Hymn.

The Remains Will Be Buried in Pretoria—Boers Will Wear Mourning Until After the Funeral—British Comments.

Clarens, Switzerland, July 15.—With his last conscious breath chanting the Boer national hymn, which had preceded the rattle of musketry in the kopjes of South Africa and had echoed as the dead Boers were lowered into the grave when struck down by English bullets, "Oom" Paul Kruger, who will figure in history as one of its most unique characters, passed to painless oblivion and then his heart beats came slower and slower until finally the vital forces were exhausted and his soul sped from its earthly confine. "'Tis God's command that here we stand and aye defend our native land." The sentiment of that song, coming from the feeble lips, stopped but the sentiment will go on as will the soul of "Oom" Paul down to the end of eternity.

The end came at 3 o'clock Thursday morning. Mr. Kruger lost consciousness Monday. His daughter and son-in-law were with him at the time of his death. He had been out only once since his arrival here, at the beginning of last month. The ex-president's body was embalmed, and Thursday afternoon the remains were placed in a vault pending funeral arrangements. Application will be made to the British government for authority to transport the remains to the Transvaal. In the meantime they will be temporarily interred here.

Pretoria, Transvaal, July 15.—Gen. Louis Botha, the former commander-in-chief of the Boer forces, Thursday received a cable message announcing Mr. Kruger's death. The announcement called forth general expressions of regret, especially because the ex-president died among foreigners.

Ex-President Paul Kruger.

The flags on all the government buildings are at half-mast. Mr. Kruger will be buried beside former presidents of the Transvaal unless his will has provided otherwise. Memorial services will be held July 17 in all the Dutch churches.

Gen. Botha has ordered that all the Boers shall wear mourning until after the funeral, which, it is expected, will be attended by representatives of every district of the Transvaal.

London, July 15.—The announcement of Mr. Kruger's death was the main feature of all the afternoon papers here. It was accompanied by lengthy sketches of his career. All the papers devoted editorials to the former president's demise, refraining from anything denunciatory and speaking generously of his remarkable characteristics.

The Westminster Gazette said: "Enough time has elapsed between the end of our long struggle with Mr. Kruger and his death to enable us to all pay a sincere tribute to his memory. His stubborn conservatism and tenacity to the lost cause was in many respects heroic."

The Pall Mall Gazette remarked: "Englishmen can afford to give him his due. History will be unable to deny that he was a great man."

The Evening Standard said: "A great figure has now passed finally from the world's stage. However baneful an influence he may have exercised on the affairs of South Africa most Englishmen will certainly concede that his abilities entitled him to the fullest measure of respect."

Rome, July 15.—All the newspapers contain sympathetic references to the death of former President Kruger, calling him the personification of the Boer idea and expressing regret that he should die "a man without a country."

Amsterdam, July 15.—All the newspapers of Holland publish long eulogies of Paul Kruger. The Nieuwe Rotterdamsch Courant says: "We believe as little as he did that a free Boer nation has been lost. Kruger's name will live forever."

London, July 16.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Morning Post, cabling under date of July 15, says: "A naval engagement took place today off Port Arthur."

St. Petersburg, July 16.—A special dispatch from Tatchekino, dated July 14, repeats the account of the attempted storming of Port Arthur on July 10 and says that the Russians assumed the offensive and attacked with the bayonet.

The Japanese retired in the wildest disorder.

The Chinese estimated the Japanese losses at 22,000.

The spirit of the Japanese, the dispatch says, is sinking as the result of the Port Arthur defeat.

Cholera and dysentery are epidemic at Feng-Wang-Cheng and there are many deaths daily.

A heavy movement of Japanese is reported east of Hai-Cheng. The Russians reconnoitered almost to Kai Chou before meeting the Japanese. They drew the shrapnel fire of the Japanese, but having found them, the Russians retired without loss.

Liao Yang, July 16.—Gen. Samsonoff seriously checked the Japanese advance in the direction of Yin Kow July 11. His Cossacks ambushed the Japanese column and put 1,000 out of action. The Japanese attempted to advance to Yin Kow along the coast, but they were hindered by the marshy country, which also increased their difficulties in carrying off their dead and wounded during the retreat.

The Russians had expected a movement in this direction and a company of cavalry with two guns lay in ambush in the high grass, catching the Japanese in the most difficult part of the coast road and shattering their advance column. The artillery fire of the Russians was splendid and the Japanese were unable to make an effective reply. They were forced to retreat. The Russian losses were six killed and seven wounded.

The men were driven to a hotel in Tremont avenue in a stylish carriage by a coachman in livery, and there met Gaffney. They induced him to go with them a few steps from the hotel, where they robbed him and left him unconscious. They were then driven away in their carriage, escaping their pursuers from the hotel, who had been aroused by Gaffney's cries. The police have been unable to gain any trace of the men.

THE CANAL ZONE.

No Settlement Reached in the Questions Pending.

Panama, July 16.—No settlement has been reached of the questions pending between the republic of Panama and the authorities of the canal zone. The Panama government is firm in the belief that the only correct interpretation of the canal treaty is that until the canal shall be constructed all parts of the isthmus are under the direct jurisdiction of Panama. The fact that the relations between the Panama government and Maj. Gen. Davis, governor of the canal zone, are very cordial leads the people of the republic to hope that the questions at issue will be satisfactorily settled.

One of the results of the situation arising out of the decree issued by Gov. Davis establishing a custom house in the canal zone and the order compelling all steamers departing from La Boca to secure clearance papers from the United States authorities is the union of all political parties toward a common end. The last act of the assembly before adjourning Friday was to unanimously approve a proposition that all the congressmen should go to President Amador and offer their services in aiding the government to defend the rights of the nation. The president was deeply moved by this act, which proved that all political parties are with the government in its attitude. In addressing the congressmen, he said he had absolute faith in the government of the United States, whose generous and noble conduct towards the South American republics left no doubt that the canal treaty would be correctly interpreted.

Washington, July 16.—Osceola Kyle, of Alabama, Friday took the oath of office as judge in the canal zone in Panama and will sail from New York next week. There will be five judicial districts with a judge in each.

PASSENGER TRAIN HELD UP.

It Carried Registered and Ordinary Mail and Express Matter.

San Antonio, Tex., July 16.—Southbound passenger train No. 5 on the International & Great Northern railway was held up at 11 o'clock Friday night about four and one-half miles south of Oakwood. The first intimation the railway officials had of the hold-up was the appearance of two frightened passengers at Oakwood, who awoke the operator at that point. They could say nothing beyond the fact that the train had been held up. They did not know how many robbers there were in the party and did not remain on the scene long enough to learn if an attempt was made to blow up the mail or express car. Train No. 5 left St. Louis Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock and is due to arrive in San Antonio Saturday morning. It carried both registered and ordinary mail in addition to express registered matter.

THE GUATEMALAN ANTS.

They Destroy Cotton Boll Worms and Other Injurious Insects.

Washington, July 16.—O. F. Cook, the discoverer of the Guatemalan boll weevil eating ants, has wired the department of agriculture from Texas that the new ants are destroying cotton boll worms and are attacking similar injurious insects with even greater avidity than they do the boll weevil. Another important fact is that the ants do not injure at all the ladybird larvae, which are beneficial insects, Mr. Cook reports that the agricultural value of the ants now depend chiefly upon acclimitization and rapidity of propagation. These matters are being investigated.

Lost $10,000 Bill.

Nearly 15 years ago a man entered the First national bank of Denver and walked into the office of David H. Moffatt, the president of the bank. He had a bottle in his hand that he said contained nitroglycerin, and threatened to blow up the bank unless he was given a large sum of money. Mr. Moffatt sent for the money and among the bills was one of $10,000 denomination. Recently the government called in all $10,000 bills and the one given by Mr. Moffatt is the only one that has not been presented for redemption. No trace of the man who got the money was ever found.

A Wonderful Spider Web.

In the Pacific ocean there is a group of islands called the New Hebrides, where there is a species of spider that weaves a fine cloth. What do you think of that? The natives place a slight framework in some dark corner where there are known to be spiders, and the little insects immediately take possession of the frame and use it as a foundation for a web, with marvelous results. One cap made in this way by spiders was over four feet ten inches long, and over a foot in diameter at the base.

Where Most Wheels Go Around.

There is no place in the world where the wagon or cart traffic is equal to that of Newchwang. During the winter months, when the roads are firmly frozen, there are not less than 2,000 carts, each carrying two tons per day, coming to the port, each drawn by from four to seven mules or ponies; some of these carts are from 30 to 40 days on the road in order to reach the market.

Bank-Note Paper.

The Bank of England note is not of the same thickness throughout. It is thicker in the left-hand corner, so as to retain a keener impression of the vignette there, and it is also thicker in the dark shadows of the center letters and beneath the figures at the ends. Counterfeit notes are thus quickly detected, as they are invariably of the same thickness throughout.

RACE DONE?

Not a Bit of It.

A man who thought his race was run made a food find that brought him back to perfect health.

"One year ago I was unable to perform any labor, in fact I was told by my physicians that they could do nothing further for me. I was fast sinking away, for an attack of grip had left my stomach so weak it could not digest any food sufficient to keep me alive.

"There I was just wasting away, growing thinner every day and weaker, really being snuffed out simply because I could not get any nourishment from food.

"Then my sister got after me to try Grape-Nuts food which had done much good for her, and she finally persuaded me, and although no other food had done me the least bit of good, my stomach handled the Grape-Nuts from the first, and this food supplied the nourishment I had needed. In three months I was so strong I moved from Albany to San Francisco and now on my three meals of Grape-Nuts and cream every day I am strong and vigorous and do fifteen hours' work.

"I believe the sickest person in the world could do as I do, eat three meals of nothing but Grape-Nuts and cream, and soon be on their feet again in the flush of best health like me.

"Not only am I in perfect physical health again, but my brain is stronger and clearer than it ever was on the old diet. I hope you will write to the names I send you about Grape-Nuts, for I want to see my friends well and strong.

"Just think that a year ago I was dying, but to-day, although I am over 55 years of age, most people take me to be less than 40, and I feel just as young as I look." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

STRIKING BUTCHERS.

Efforts Being Made to Settle the Difficulty.

There is a Hitch in the Negotiations Over the Reinstatement of the Man Who Went Out on Strike.

Chicago, July 15.—The strike which has demoralized the packing industry throughout the country, in which over 40,000 butchers and other workers went out on Tuesday, has not yet been settled.

The hitch in the negotiations is over the reinstatement of the strikers. The union demands that every man who went on strike shall be given his old place before an agreement to arbitrate will be considered. The packers declare that they will retain the men they have employed since the strike and will take back the old men in the order in which they file applications for their old positions.

While the peace negotiations were in progress Thursday additional preparations were being made by the packers at the yards for a long siege. The packers hearing that efforts were being made to induce the railroad men who are members of unions to refuse to handle supplies for the plants where the men are on strike, were busy all day putting in great stocks of coal should the railroads attempt to stop their supply.

Chicago, July 16.—Negotiations for peace in the stock yards strike are practically at a standstill, and the strike will continue until one side or the other abates something of the demands made up to the present time.

Chicago, July 18.—There was little if any change in the situation of the meat packers' strike here Sunday. With Michael J. Donnelly, the strikers' leader, in St. Louis looking after that end of the dimculty, there was no effort here Sunday to reacx the peace negotiations which lasted through three days last week and were terminated Saturday night without results. Whether another attempt to reach an adjustment of the controversy by arbitration will be made is problematic as the packers believing they had the better of the argument in last week's conferences, are little inclined to offer any concessions to the strikers. One thing is certain, the packers say, and that is that they will not recede from the position they assumed in last week's conferences, and that the strikers will have to conform to the employers' ultimatum before any of the peace plans looking to a settlement by arbitration will be successful. To add to the packers' determination to stand firm is the fact that they have steadily increased their working force at the plants by the employment of outside workmen, until Sunday it was said that things were in almost normal condition at several of the plants.

Under the conditions the packers have assumed a more independent attitude and are more determined than ever that they and not the strikers shall dictate the terms on which the controversy shall be arbitrated. As the strikers declare that they conceded every point possible in last week's negotiations there is little likelihood that any of the other conferences, for the present at least, would amount to such toward a satisfactory settlement of the strike.

The sticking point to the whole question of arbitration is the reinstatement of the strikers. Mr. Donnelly, at Saturday's conference with the packers, waived every other demand he had made and agreed to order the men back to work, leaving the adjustment of all differences to arbitration if the employers would take back all the strikers in a body. This the packers refused to do, maintaining that they had hired many new workmen since the strike whom they could not discharge. They promised, however, to take back the old employes as rapidly as possible, and in the order in which their applications were filed. The union officials declare that they will never accept this proposition, as they say it would mean the disruption of the union inside of three months.

To complicate the controversy still more the allied craft at the stock yards, numbering 14,000 workmen, have become restless and are anxious to join the men already out, in a sympathetic strike. Whether these men will go on strike or not will be decided Monday when Mr. Donnelly returns from St. Louis.

These unions, representing 30 of the mechanical trades in the packing plants, have decided to quit work if Mr. Donnelly says so.

A small riot occurred Sunday, three men being injured, one fatally.

LOOMIS' BODY RECOVERED.

There is Grave Suspicion That His Met With Foul Play.

London, July 18.—Reports to both the Press Association and the Central News assert that a further examination of the dead body of F. Kent Loomis, which was found Saturday at Warren Point, some 15 miles from Plymouth, has given rise to grave suspicions on the part of the local officials that Mr. Loomis met with foul play. The wound behind the right ear is described as being circular, large and clean, and it is thought it was inflicted before death. It is surmised that Mr. Loomis' body fell into the water near the Eddystone lighthouse.

Joseph G. Stevens, American consul at Plymouth, in response to a telegram Sunday night asking him if these local reports of foul play had any basis, or if he had any ground for suspicion regarding the death of Mr. Loomis, replied:

"I regret I can not make any statements prior to the inquest which will be held to-morrow. The wound on the head back of the right ear is the size of a half dollar. The body is fairly preserved, especially about the top and back of the head, considering the time it has been in the water."

RESERVOIR BURST.

More Than 300,000,000 Gallons of Water Rushed Down the Valley.

Scottdale, Pa., July 18.—With the roar of Niagara, the new reservoir of the Citizens' Water Co. burst at midnight and more than 300,000,000 gallons of water rushed down the valley, sweeping all before it and inundating crops and wrecking buildings in its path. It was discovered about 9 o'clock that the dam was in danger of breaking, and messengers were hastily sent through the valley to warn the people of their peril. Hundreds of lives were thus saved for a few hours later the whole valley was under water.

The damage to the machinery and reservoir alone will amount to at least $50,000. When the torrent swept down upon the valley buildings were torn from their foundations and carried on the crest of the great wave like so many washtubs. Crops valued at thousands of dollars were completely wiped out. Bridges were carried away. In the gorge just below the dam trees were torn out by the roots and stones weighing tons were overturned by the flood.

Darby, a friend and business associate, that he was kidnaped in lower Broadway shortly before noon on Friday last and is now being held for ransom. Letters have been received from Judge McKoon, Mr. Darby says, asking that $5,000, demanded for his release, be paid. According to these letters Judge McKoon, who is 76 years old, met three men who had arranged a business appointment with him on Friday and they took him to a house, the location of which was unknown to him, where he is kept a prisoner. The letters, he wrote, he would throw out of a window to a boy who was passing.

VOLUNTEER FLEET.

It is Seizing German and British Ships in the Red Sea.

Searching For Contraband Goods—The Passing of the Dardanelles By Russian Vessels Causes Comment in Berlin and London.

Aden, July 18.—The North German Lloyd steamer Prinz Henrich, which has arrived here from Hamburg, reports that she was stopped by the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk, and compelled to give up 31 sacks of letters and 24 sacks and boxes of parcels, all intended for Japan.

It is reported that the Peninsular and Oriental Co.'s steamer Malacca, from Antwerp, for Japan, has been seized in the Red Sea by the Russian volunteers fleet steamer St. Petersburg.

London, July 18.—A dispatch from Aden to the Daily Mail says that the captain of the British steamer Walpara reports that the Russian volunteer fleet steamer St. Petersburg signalled him to stop by firing across the bows of the vessel on July 15 while 20 miles off Jebel Zugar, in the Red sea. The Russians examined the papers of the Walpara and declared they would hold the ship as a prize.

The captain protested and was taken on board the St. Petersburg where he gave the Russian officers a guarantee that there were neither arms nor ammunition on board the Walpara destined for Japan. The vessel was detained for four hours and was then allowed to proceed.

The captain confirms the report that the Peninsular and Oriental Co.'s steamer Malacca was seized in the Red sea July 16 by the St. Petersburg on the ground that she carried arms and ammunition of war for the Japanese government.

Almost without exception the newspapers Monday morning in editorials or otherwise comment upon the Russian volunteer fleet steamers passing the Dardanelles and the government is urged to take action, especially for the protection of British commerce in the Red sea and neighboring waters.

The Daily Telegraph, concluding an outspoken protest written with traces of government inspiration, says:

"There is a limit to complaisance when neutral commerce under the British flag is molested in a way to which we have been for a century and a half unused."

Special dispatches from Berlin echo the feeling of irritation that exists in London.

The Standard's Tokio correspondent, cabling under date of July 17, says the Jiji Shimpo in an editorial expresses the hope that Great Britain will see that Turkey lends Russia no assistance by allowing steamers of the volunteer fleet to pass the Dardanelles. The Jiji Shimpo declares that Great Britain is bound under the terms of the Anglo-Japancse alliance to prevent such assistance being given.

London, July 18.—The morning papers have dispatches from correspondents at Gen. Kuroki's headquarters which bring the situation in the far east up to July 16. All of the writers agree in saying that the situation is unchanged but that the armies always are in touch, that the Russians are being strongly reinforced and that a battle may be expected any day.

ATTACKED BY A CROWD.

Detective Who Defended Himself Was Killed By a Policeman.

New York, July 18.—After shooting William Gorrity and Alonzo Dorando, of Manhattan, during an attack made upon him Sunday night by a crowd of men at Schurer's picnic park, at Corona, L. I., Charles Conran, a detective on duty in citizens' clothes, sought refuge under a dancing platform, and was there shot and killed by Policeman John H. Gerrity.

Conran's fight with the crowd had causeh a call to be sent in for police reserves and when they arrived several in the crowd told the officers that the man who did the shooting was under the platform. Nothing was said about Conran being a detective nor of his having shot in self-defense. Gerrity crawled under the platform and ordered Conran to come out. Receiving no answer he fired and Conran was instantly killed. Gorrity and Dorando, who were shot during the attack were from this city. Neither was dangerously wounded.

PICNIC TRAIN WRECKED.

Twenty-One Persons Were Killed and About 70 Injured.

Chicago, July 14.—Twenty-one people were killed and about 70 injured Wednesday night in a collision on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad at Glenwood, 23 miles south of this city.

The collision occurred between a picnic train from this city which was returning from Momence, Ill., and a freight train into the rear end of which it dashed at a high rate of speed. The picnic train was on the right hand track coming north, and the freight was on the left track. A misplaced switch threw the picnic train over on the left track and before the engineer could apply the brakes it ran at 40 miles an hour into the rear of the freight. The engine, baggage car and first coach of the picnic train were demolished and all of the killed and injured were on the engine and in the two cars.

The train which was wrecked left the 31st street station Wednesday morning for Momence. The picnic was the annual outing of the members of Doremus church, formerly a chapel of Plymouth Congregational church, of this city. After spending the day on the picnic grounds at Momence, the train started on the return trip, running in as the second section of the regular passenger train, which is due in Chicago at 8:25.

When the picnic train reached Chicago Heights, four miles beyond Glenwood, where the accident took place, it was switched to the regular southbound track, and although it was coming north it was given a clear track by the operator at Chicago Heights until it should reach Glenwood, four miles away. The train after leaving Chicago Heights gradually increased its speed and when half the distance between the two stations had been covered it was plunging along at the rate of 40 miles an hour. Just half way between Chicago Heights and Glenwood there is a sharp curve, and as the picnic train tore around this on the south-bound track a freight train was backing from the south-bound to the north-bound track. It was partly on both tracks and no train could have passed it in either direction. The bend is so sharp that the engineer of the picnic train had no chance to see the freight before he was upon it. It was too late to do anything but set the airbrakes, but before they could take effect the passenger train smashed into the freight. The engine and baggage car of the passenger train went clear through the freight and were piled up in heaps of wreckage on the further side of the switch on which the freight was crossing from one track to the other. The first coach of the picnic train plunged straight into the wreckage and buried itself in a mass of kindling wood under the demolished baggage car. Nearly all of the passengers in the first were caught beneath the mass of debris, and it was here that the loss of life occurred. The people in the rear coaches were hurled from their seats and many of them were badly shaken up and bruised, but all of the serious casualties occurred in the first car. The uninjured passengers and the trainmen at once hastened to the relief of those who were pinned down under the wreckage, who were shrieking piteously for aid. The scene of the wreck was two miles from anywhere and much delay ensued before some of the injured who were held down by heavy timbers could be extricated. Nothing could be done for them until lifting machinery came from Chicago Heights.

OLD SOL has come to the front with the usual supply of summer warmth.

When bilious take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For Sale by All Druggists.

The sheriff has given notice of the times and places he will meet the taxpayers to receive the 1904 taxes.

THE Democratic national ticket is composed of men in whom the business interests of the country will have confidence, and the orators of the opposite party cannot disturb that confidence.

THE Democratic State Executive and State Central Committees will meet in Frankfort next Tuesday to organize, and next day the State Central Committee will meet in Covington to consider the Hodge-Rhinock contest.

MR. WOODSON'S reelection as National Committeeman for Kentucky makes him a very considerable man, politically, in the State. His reelection was a hard knock for Gov. Beckham and his crowd, who thought they could do Woodson easily.

MR. BRYAN did not bolt, but his published statement may go a long ways toward neutralizing the good that would otherwise have come out of his efforts in behalf of the nominees of the St. Louis convention. Had he declared simply, that he is for the nominees of his party, he would have proven a tower of strength in the coming campaign.

THE Democratic nominee for the vice-presidency has a "barl," and as the coming campaign is calculated to divide the owners of that class of goods, he will, no doubt, be furnished a splendid opportunity to use some of his "barl." The same material that makes the "mar" go has considerably of the same influence on political campaigns, and in the campaign now about to envelop the country, considerable money will be used.

Condemns executive usurpation of legislative and judicial functions.

Opposes a policy of colonial expansion.

Favors a revision and gradual reduction of the tariff.

Favors election of United States Senators by popular vote.

Demands statehood for Arizona and New Mexico.

Favors reciprocity in trade attainments, especially mentioning Canada.

Favors the reduction of the army and navy expenditures.

Favors generous pensions, but by legislative and not by executive act.

Demands honest enforcement of the Civil Service laws.

Deprecates the revival of race animosities by the Republican policy and the Republican platform declaration.

The following table gives the number of each school district in the county, and the number of pupils in same, according to the last census:

BASE BALL.

BOONES vs Ft. THOMAS,

At Burlington Park,

Saturday, July 23, 1904.

Game called at 3 p. m.

The oats and hay harvest arrived about the same time this year.

The Teachers' Institute is less than two weeks off—Aug. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5.

The weather last week was all that hay harvesters could ask, and a considerable acreage was cut over.

Owen Watts, of Bullittsville, was out last week, and collected a drove of nice hogs to put on slop in Lawrenceburg.

The band boys are practicing so industriously it is evident that they have something in view for the early future.

John Baldon brought his engine from Richwood, last Wednesday, for the purpose of entering the threshing campaign.

Warren Parrish and Elmore Fowler were out terrapin hunting last Friday, and found 18 about the size of a goose egg.

With favorable weather the next fair at Florence will bring together an immense crowd of people, and a great deal of very fine stock.

The premium list of the next Harvest Home is published this week. Read it and then select the premiums you want to go after.

In some parts of the county not more than half the tobacco has been set, and matters are beginning to look serious.—Williamstown Courier.

Johnnie Hogan's hand was so badly hurt in the game of ball at Petersburg on the 9th inst., that he was not in condition to catch the game at Bellevue, last Saturday.

June did but little in the way of furnishing hot weather, but July has been doing a little along that line, and before frost flies again several very warm days will be experienced.

Hunters complain that squirrels are too scarce to hunt, while the fisherman say the finny tribe amounts to nothing in the creeks this year. Verily the sportsman will have to hunt a new field.

Eat more corn bread and less wheat cake, is an admonition which will have to be obeyed in this county for the next twelve months, at least, unless wheat grown elsewhere provides the supply of flour.

What to do Until the Doctor Arrives

If it is a case of colic or cholera morbus give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and you will have no need of a doctor. For sale by all Druggists.

The parachute leap that will be pulled off at the Harvest Home, this year, is causing considerable talk among those who never witnessed such a feat. But that will not be the only attraction.

Geo. L. Smith and W. S. White, of Hathaway, were in town, last Saturday, taking initial steps in the county court for a change in the public road from Hathaway to Gunpowder creek near Mr. White's.

The Boone County Deposit Bank has put down a cement pavement in front of its banking house. The interior of the building has been remodeled, papered and painted and newly furnished, and it now presents a very greatly improved appearance.

So far in this part of the county it has been unusually seasonable, but in other neighborhoods the crops have suffered for rain, and many growers have not been able to plant their tobacco for the want of a season. The rains have been purely local.

An insane colored woman of Gunpowder, visited several houses in that neighborhood, one night last week, and disturbed the slumbers of the occupants. Some time since she was tried for insanity, but the jury failed to agree, and she was not sent to the asylum.

Working Night and Day.

Supt. Snyder was very much perplexed last Thursday evening when the examination papers for use on Friday and Saturday failed to arrive. Superintendent Snyder is desirous of making Thursday, the 4th day of the coming Teachers' Institute, both interesting and profitable and is anxious that the friends of education cooperate with him to that end. One feature of the day will be the basket dinner, which the friends in the town and within a reasonable distance thereof will furnish. As State Superintendent Fuqua will be present and deliver an address, there is no reason why that day should not make a record as the most interesting and profitable in the history of the Institute in this county.

At the recent State Democratic Convention held in Louisville, June 8th, one of the most, if not the most conspicuous and potent factors in it was the present able and distinguished Judge of this Judicial District, the Hon. John M. Lassing, than by whom in the past the district was never more ably and honorably served by any of the many able jurists who have adorned our bench. And as a deserved compliment to Judge Lassing for his splendid and untiring service to his party, he was honored by the convention as none other, save the late lamented Gov. Goebel, in that he was named as Executive Committeeman from the State at large, a compliment while never but once bestowed was altogether merrited.—Warsaw Independent.

Dr. J. G. Furnish has tendered his resignation as superintendent of the Asylum for the insane at Lakeland, to take effect on the first day of August. When it became known at the Asylum that he had tendered his resignation a considerable commotion was created among the employes, whoare greatly attached to him because of his uniformly kind and considerate treatment. Dr. Furnish has held the position for four years, and has been a hard worked man, as he is a very kind-hearted and appreciated fully, the responsibility of looking after the large number of unfortunates under his care, his every thought, since he took charge of the institution, being of their comfort and welfare. It is not known where Dr. Furnish will locate, but his Boone county friends would be pleased to have him return to them, but let him go where he may, he will be followed by their best wishes, and being eminently learned in his profession and a gentleman of the old school, they are satisfied success will attend him in the future as in the past.

RAHAB AND THE SCARLET THREAD

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1904, by J. M. Edson.)

Chicago, Sunday, July 17, 1904.

Text:—"By faith Rahab the harlot perished not with them that were disobedient, having received the spies with peace."—Heb. 11:31.

WHAT a marvelous example of God's grace, mercy and love we have in Rahab, that woman of the town, that daughter of the heathenish Jericho. How startling and strange it seems to find her name among those of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and Moses; yea more, that, as Matthew's genealogy shows us, she should have become the ancestor of the Christ. But when we consider that it was God who lifted her to such heavenly associations, that it was God's finger which inscribed her name therealong side those of the patriarchs and prophets, we must recognize her exalted place in sacred history and seek to learn the lesson which this woman and her remarkable story would teach. Let us turn to the book of Joshua and read how and why she perished not, why it was that around her and the members of her family was thrown the protection of the Divine arms, while all the rest in her native city miserably perished. It is a strange and beautiful story, bringing out as it does in such clearness and strength the blessed Gospel story of God's inexhaustible love and infinite mercy. Rahab, a type of the sinner, a stranger to God and doomed to destruction; and further, Rahab, a type of the repentant sinner who is found of God. The scarlet thread letting the spies down to safety and tied in her window bringing salvation to her house in the day when judgment fell, a type of the Christ in His work of preserving the saint and saving the sinner. Jericho, a type of the world lost in sin and doomed to destruction. This in outline is the story and its teaching.

JERICHO is to be destroyed. Rahab as a resident of that city is in awful peril. She, with the other inhabitants, is under judgment for sin. The city and all therein are to be destroyed. Rahab is in peril; she is face to face with death. See her within that doomed city. Each day as it passes brings the day of judgment nearer. Destruction is sure to fall. No human power can deliver. And there we have a perfect picture of the world and the people of the world today, for the world is under condemnation for sin. The people of Jericho are characterized in our text as disobedient, and Paul in the fifth of Ephesians calls the people of the world the "children of disobedience." And "because of these things cometh the wrath of God" upon them. God hath declared all under sin, for among men "there is none that doeth good, no not one." "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." As you turn back and read the story of Jericho, you can realize, as the inhabitants of that doomed city could not, perhaps, that it was under the judgment of God, and that destruction came swiftly and surely, but be not blind, oh soul! to the present condition and the impending judgment. In Jericho you are given in miniature a picture of the world and the destruction which is coming upon it. The peril of Rahab and of Jericho is your peril, to-day, oh soul! You cannot escape God!

AND note, now, the attitude of Rahab and of the inhabitants of Jericho in the face of the peril which threatened them. In Jericho there was only one person who wanted to know the true God, and to obey Him, and in the world today the proportion is nearly the same. One listening to God's voice and turning to Him, where there are thousands who are in disobedience and unbelief going down to death and destruction. When two of God's messengers came to Jericho the people were eager and fierce to kill them. There was only one person, and that a woman, who was willing to receive them. And how Jericho is a picture of the world to-day. Multitudes, multitudes in disobedience and unbelief going down to death, while the few like Rahab are being saved. "Many are called, but few are chosen." How is it with you? oh, soul! You who are in the Jericho of sin and rebellion against God, are you anxious, like Rahab, to know the true God and to be saved from your awful peril of soul death, or are you, as did the people of Jericho, shutting up the gates of your heart tight, thinking to keep God out? The citadel of your soul must some day fall before the onward march of God. For a time you may think yourself secure, but at last your walls of defense will fall with an awful crash, and you will enter the presence of God naked and helpless. Better the attitude of Rahab than that of the rest of the city of Jericho. "Turn ye, turn ye," God cries, "for why will ye die?"

RAHAB'S attitude was one of faith toward God, and this condition of heart led to obedience to God. When she heard of the true God she believed on Him. She wanted to know more of Him. Think you it was a chance circumstance which brought those spies to her house? I tell you nay. For wherever there is a soul which yearns to know God, there it is that God is sending His messengers to point the way of salvation. How does anyone escape the consciousness of God. You realize that, my friend. You know there is a living and true God, even as did those people of Jericho, but is your belief a living faith such as Rahab had? A faith which brought with it a holy fear of God and a desire to know Him better? And if you have such faith you need not perish in the fated city of Jericho, but you may be delivered even as was Rahab. Her faith led to obedience, and saving faith is always obedient faith. "By faith," we are told, "Rahab the harlot perished not with them that were disobedient, having received the spies with peace." Her faith led her to receive God's messengers and to obey their instructions. James calls it a working faith. And saving faith is always more than mere belief in God. Scripture declares that the "Devils believe and shudder." And mere idle, inactive faith in God will never prepare you to meet Him. You believe in God, you say. Are you willing to receive His message? Are you anxious to know Him and His will concerning you? If not, you have no saving faith in Him.

OBEDIENCE involves the scarlet thread. It let the two spies down to safety, and it became the sign in the window which sheltered the house of Rahab when the judgment of God fell upon the city. The scarlet thread, the type of the blood of Christ, protecting the saint and saving the sinner. An obedience for Rahab involved the scarlet thread, so obedience for the sinner involves the blood of Christ. The blood of Christ, God's sacrifice for sin, must be accepted as the sign of deliverance. There was salvation for Rahab in no other way than by the display of the scarlet token in her window. There is salvation for the sinner in no other way than in the blood of Jesus Christ. God's Word declares that "without the shedding of blood there is no remission," and again, "Neither is there salvation in any other, for there is none other name under Heaven given among men whereby we must be saved." Christ is the only door of escape. Jericho is to be destroyed. There is safety in no other place in that doomed city but in the house of Rahab, where the scarlet thread may be seen floating from the window casement. The world is to be destroyed. The sinner is to perish. There is safety nowhere except behind the sheltering blood. The sinner must become obedient to that blood. His faith must reveal his lost and helpless condition because of sin, and his faith must accept the Christ who has offered Himself as the sacrifice for sin. In that He has suffered death upon the cross and thus paid the penalty for sin, He is able to deliver from death them that are under judgment for sin.

"AND she bound the scarlet line in the window." Dear friend, have you bound the scarlet line of Jesus' blood in the window of your soul? The only place of peace in all that great city of Jericho was in the house of Rahab, and it was all because of that bit of scarlet thread, which was a sign between her and God that she was not to perish in the coming destruction. There is no place of peace outside the sheltering blood of Christ. You dare not meet God without it. Why does the presence of death make men tremble and fear? Why is it that in the presence of awful danger, men who have never before known a fear will tremble and call upon God in agony of soul? Ah, friend, it is because the soul is not prepared to meet its God! There was awful fear and terror in that city of Jericho. But in Rahab's house was perfect peace, for the scarlet thread was in the window. And in the heart of the Christian there is sweet abiding peace, for the blood of Christ is there as an everlasting sign to God. And nowhere else in all the world is there real peace known. Will you not enter into that peace? Take the blood of Jesus and bind it as a precious token within your heart, and peace, sweet peace, will flood your soul.

BUT Rahab was not content to enjoy her security and peace alone. She thought of her father and mother, her brother and friends. During those days and nights which intervened between the visit of the spies and the destruction of Jericho she in eager haste warned them of their danger and sought to bring them under the protection of the scarlet thread. We would think it strange had she done otherwise, and yet how many there are who are resting under the sheltering blood of Christ, who are indifferent to the danger of loved ones and friends? Saved, but careless about the salvation of others. Abiding under the sheltering blood, but indifferent whether others find that shelter or not. Oh, is it not awful! The careless, thoughtless indifference of Christians? Awake! Oh Christians! Jericho is to be destroyed. The unrepentant sinners are to perish in the awful destruction. Do you realize it? Loved ones, friends are going down to death. You are behind the sheltering blood, you are safe, but they are lost. They are abiding out in the streets of the world's sin. Destruction is coming upon them! Hasten! Bring them into the ark of Christ! Go out and plead with them, as you value their souls! Go out and bring them in, for Christ died for them. Delay may mean death! You may be too late unless you speak to-day! God help us to realize the peril! God help us to be faithful! For if we speak not, the blood of friends, loved ones and acquaintances may be required of us. God says: "When I say unto the wicked, O wicked man, thou shalt surely die, and thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity, but his blood will I require at thy hands."

When men begin to improve on God's way they are likely to go astray.

HISTORY MADE TO ORDER.

Tariff Assertions in Republican Platform Are Utterly at Variance with Facts.

The tariff plank of the republican party, as adopted at Chicago, says: "A democratic tariff has always been followed by business adversity; a republican tariff by business prosperity."

This declaration is utterly at variance with facts, as all well-informed people ought to know. During the first 70 years of the history of the country the government was controlled by the democrats and the tariffs were therefore democratic. During that time the country witnessed great prosperity. The foundation for our present wealth was laid during those years.

In 1846 a tariff law was enacted which approached nearer to a tariff for revenue only than any the country has ever had. Under that law wealth piled up faster than at any other period during our existence as a nation. Take the census report of 1850 and compare it with the census report of 1860 and it will be seen that the ratio of increased wealth during those ten years was greater than can be shown for any ten years under a protective tariff.

The St. Louis Republic says that during these ten years under a revenue tariff factories increased marvelously and agriculture was more prosperous than at any former era. Farmers became rich and lands advanced in value. In 1860 the capital invested in manufacturing was twice what it was in 1850. Protectionists cannot point to any such period of prosperity under protection.

Then, too, our money system was poor. We had the wildcat state banks. They issued a circulating medium, much of which they never redeemed. The banks went to smash and disorganized and hampered business. In consequence of these bad banks we had financial trouble in 1857, but this was soon over; and notwithstanding the lack of such transportation facilities as have been secured in later years, that ten years' period under a revenue tariff stands out in bold relief and challenges comparison with any ten years under protection.

The republicans gained power in 1860 under a platform that did not hint at protection, but the war came on and as a war measure a protective tariff was enacted. Manufacturers grew rich under high protection and they have continually demanded more and more, until now under the Dingley bill we have the most extortionate tariff the country has ever seen, and the republicans refuse to modify it in any particular.

What followed the first republican tariff? The worst panic this country has ever witnessed before or since, lasting from 1873 to 1878. During that period of five years land values shrank more than half. More men were sold out under execution than during any other like period; more bankrupts were made by that financial panic than by any other; then the army of tramps first sprang into existence in this country; and the worst labor strike the country ever witnessed took place. Pittsburg was the scene of riots and much property was destroyed in many cities. Soldiers were called out in every large city; and people believed that we were on the eve of a great revolution or anarchy.

All this—and we have not overdrawn the picture, as the records will show—occurred under the first republican tariff.

The republicans seem to think people have forgotten that dark period when the country was truly in distress; but if memory fails, the records cannot be obliterated. The history of that five years of "adversity" ought to be reiterated until the republican demagogues become ashamed of their brazen falsehood.

The panic of 1893 was mild compared with the one from '73 to '78; and the one in '83 was under a republican protective tariff, the "McKinley bill." The democratic tariff, known as the "Wilson bill," was not enacted until late in 1894, 15 months after the business "adversity" of which the republican platform speaks; nor was that regarded as a democratic measure. Its history in the senate is familiar.

The McKinley tariff was enacted in 1890 and the country immediately after showed signs of business trouble. The people became restless and dissatisfied. They elected Cleveland by a great majority. The revenues so declined under President Harrison that he prepared to issue bonds; and this unfortunate financial condition was inherited by the democrats when they came into power in 1893.

So the facts of history stamp the republican assertion as false. It is not true that "a democratic tariff has always been followed by adversity; a republican tariff by business prosperity." As the above facts abundantly show, the reverse is true.

The country has been prosperous during the past six years, but many things have conspired to bring about the condition. The increased production of gold made money more abundant. Bad crops in Europe and Asia and abundant crops in this country brought a great amount of wealth to us. Then our system of transportation had become so perfect and our machinery so excellent that we were able to beat the world. We have a wonderful productive soil, a magnificent country, an intelligent and energetic people, and there is no good reason why we should not be prosperous. All these things have made us prosperous, in spite of a tariff system that more or less hampers business and injures the consumer. Our prosperity is not by reason of the "republican tariff," but in spite of it.

PERSONALITY AND POLICY.

Voters Must Investigate and Decide Which Party Will Best Conserve Their Interests.

The republican convention has performed its part, which had been mapped out for it by the oligarchy that runs the republican party. The candidates and platform were selected and concocted in Washington and the delegates were about as useful in shaping events as the fifth wheel to a coach. Not a voice was raised against the stand pat programme. All was ominously unanimous. The trust magnates dictated the programme and their emissaries, present in large numbers, approved and applauded.

The voters who endorse the candidates and platform of the republican party at the polls next November will stamp with their approval all that it stands for. The voters that cast a republican ballot declare in favor of trust high prices and allowing the trusts and combines to continue to sell their products cheaper to foreigners than to the people of the United States. In spite of the extraordinarily high prices and the small, if any, increase in wages, those who vote the republican ticket will say they are satisfied to "let well enough alone" and in the words of Mark Hanna, "continue to let well enough alone."

Nor is that all they will endorse. If they are farmers, they will approve the republican protection policy that does not protect them unless they grow sugar cane or sugar beets or some kinds of tobacco. The cereal grower or stock raiser has no real protection. If they are artisans or laborers they agree to stand pat on the insecure present wages and the certainty of the continued high cost of living that now prevails. The highest republican authority on such matters, Secretary Shaw, declared the republican policy to be high prices and no power on earth can keep up wages, even at their present rate, with factories and mills shutting down, railroads discharging men and the power of the people to purchase declining.

If they are clerks or others with stated incomes, that do not fluctuate with prices, but stand pat, whether the cost of living is high or low, they vote to continue the republican trust domination that boosts prices at their expense.

All voters should remember that they do not vote for any candidate for president directly, they vote for a party with policies. The republican policy, if approved by a majority of the voters, is to drift along and trust that good crops and high prices will continue and claim that any measure of prosperity is of republican manufacture. Those voters who are enamoured of rough riding and strenuousity, should understand that Mr. Roosevelt is but a small spoke in the wheel of the party that has nominated him and that he must carry out republican policies such as the leaders dictate and the platform calls for.

When Mr. Roosevelt accepts the nomination, his letter of acceptance will show that he thoroughly endorses all that the republican party stands for. He cannot object, he must approve. The rule of party is stronger than personality and to object, even not approve, all that the republican platform declares to be the policy of that party, would be disastrous to any and conserve their own interests, the voters must investigate and decide between the policies of the two great parties.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—By putting the Santa Fe official, Paul Morton, in the cabinet the president makes a graceful recognition of the courtesy shown him by the roads which furnished him a free train for his campaign tour.—The Commoner.

—"Heaven spare us from another" period when living expenses are cheap," Secretary Shaw devoutly exclaimed in an address to Delaware workingmen. There's no use calling on heaven with the trusts so handy; besides, they are willing to pay for the privilege.—Milwaukee News.

—This suggestion that Hitt may succeed Hay as secretary of state next March may be soothing to the disappointed candidate just now, but we don't expect to see it realized. Mr. Hitt isn't sturdy enough to act as the agent of our strenuous president in tweaking the noses of foreign kings and potentates.—Boston Globe.

—Will patriotic and thinking republicans remain with their party, or will they join with their patriotic and thinking democratic fellow citizens in overthrowing government for private interests, in restoring government for the public interest, and in making an end of trust rule—of the ossified, soulless, hard times inviting and wholly plutocratic policy of "stand pat?"—N. Y. American.

Cowherd Calls a Halt.

Chairman Cowherd of the democratic congressional committee, has very properly and justly protested to Gen. Palmer, public printer, against the manner in which the publication of the Congressional Record has been manipulated for partisan purposes. The basis for his protest is found in the belated edition of the Record, under date of Monday, June 20, two months after the adjournment of the congress. The publication contains 60 pages of republican campaign literature, prepared and printed by an open evasion of the agreement of the house made in April, that there should be no more permission granted to extend remarks in the Record unless the member first outlined to the house the scope of his argument.—Washington Post.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

DO NOT NEGLECT TILING.

It's the Only Way in Which Thousands of Acres of Land Can Be Improved Permanently.

The wonderful effect resulting from a system of tile drainage, as seen on many farms, should be an incentive to increasing interest in this work. That there should be little improvement of this kind in a new and unimproved country, where land is comparatively cheap, is not surprising. It is not, however, so easy to understand why people are so slow to make such improvements in the older sections of the country where land is high.

That there is a very large amount of land in these older settled portions of the country that would be greatly improved by a good system of tiling there can be no question. A farmer living in western New York, writing to the Rural New Yorker, says: "Even here in western New York, referred to by many as the 'garden of the state,' thousands of acres that are not in proper condition are each year plowed and planted to crops, nor can they be expected to afford favorable results unless nature in some unusual manner renders assistance. The well-known excuse or objection to this system of work made by far too many is the expense to be incurred not only for the tile itself, but for the labor required additional to that of the regular farm labor."

But a large part of such drainage work does not require highly skilled and expensive labor for its performance. The farmer and his regular help can do it when they cannot work in the fields.

In a place where the fall is so slight and the work so difficult as to require such help the improvement that will result will many times pay for its cost. On a great many farms there are many days throughout the season when little profitable work is done and when the time could be spent at such work as tiling to very great advantage.—Prairie Farmer.

AN ADDITION FOR PLANTS.

Artistic Idea That Can Be Carried Out at Small Expense by Lovers of Flowers.

When increased room for house plants is sought by building onto the side of the house an addition such as shown is the most attractive. A shed roof or short double roof has not the dignity of appearance of a flat-roofed square addition. The roof may have slope enough to carry off the water and still be given an appearance as shown in the cut by a simple balustrade about the top. The windows may be put on three sides or on two sunny sides. The addition may be heated from furnace of boiler in the cellar or by a small oil stove. Curtains on the inside to draw down at night will help to retain the heat.—T. E. Murry, in Farm and Home.

Offered Big Trout for Fee.

"The queerest fee I ever had offered to me was by an old farmer up in Monroe county," said a prominent physician who is also something of a sportsman. "I was up there last year for the trout fishing, and one evening I was summoned from the hotel where I was stopping to attend an old woman in the neighborhood who had suddenly been taken ill. After I had fixed her up her husband said to me: 'Doc, I don't know what your charge is, but I ain't got no ready cash about me. I'll tell you what I'll do, though. See that well over there? There's one o' the finest trout you ever see in that there well, an' if you can ketch him he's yourn.' I had no tackle with me, and as I had to return to the city the next morning I missed the opportunity to collect my fee."—Philadelphia Record.

Queer Methods of Dairying.

A report from Consul Lespinasse, Tuxpam, Mexico, describes the quaint methods of dairying in practice in that region. Cream is roughly skimmed and either beaten with a forked switch or swashed about in a bottle until the butter forms. This sells for a dollar a pound (silver) and "is neither good to look at nor to taste." Cheese is made by compressing whey in a coarse cloth, salting and allowing to dry several days, forming an insipid spongy mass, an inch thick and five inches in diameter, worth from 12 to 18 cents. Mr. Lespinasse suggests there is room for improvement. No exceptions to this statement have yet been taken.

Refrain for Road Makers.

After the roads have been well underdrained and graded the application of the following refrain will do much toward giving the average country district the very best of roads:

'Twon't take long to fix your road,
Drag, brother, drag;
If you'd pull a bigger load,
Drag, brother, drag;
It means dollars in the end,
Saved on teams and wagons, friends,
So in this your best ear lend—
Drag, brother, drag.

OLD COW BREAKS RECORD.

Gives Down Twenty-Four Quarts at a Milking and Walks Off with a Chuckle.

Henry W. Brown, of Flanders, L. I., has a cow that is almost prolific enough in milk giving to establish a full-fledged milk route all by herself. She gave 24 quarts of milk at one milking. This is the most astonishing feat yet accomplished by a Suffolk county cow, so far as can be learned.

The cow is about eight years old. She is of no particular breed—just a cow, that's all. Previous to this remarkable record she had been doing nothing wonderful in milk giving; in fact, her best record last summer was 18 quarts at two milkings.

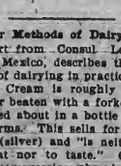
When Mr. Brown went out to milk her he thought the cow looked at him with a rather peculiar expression, almost as if she would say: "I'm going to do something wonderful for you this time." Mr. Brown carried a regular size milk pail, and, seating himself, proceeded to relieve the cow of her milk.

He was not much surprised in filling the pail the first time, but when he got it full he noticed that there appeared to be plenty of it left, and after emptying the pail he started in again. During the filling of this pail the cow kept turning around and looking at him with what her owner declared was a rather amused expression on her face.

When the second pail was nearly filled he muttered to himself: "Great Scott! Brindle, you're a regular fountain."

After emptying the second pailful, and going back toward the cow, he swears the animal fairly laughed at him. When he filled the pail for the second time, he notified his family of the wonderful cow he had out in the barnyard, and remarked that he thought they had better get out the washtub for him to milk in. The third pail was not filled completely full, though, before the supply was exhausted. Both Mr. Brown and the cow heaved sighs of relief when the wonderful milking ordeal was completed, and at the same time both looked proud—the man because he owned such a wonder and the cow because she had done so well for her master.

WILL NOT SELL FERTILITY.



Why the Progressive Farmers of Northern Illinois No Longer Dispose of Their Skim Milk.

The farmers of the corn belt are coming more and more to appreciate the value of their skim milk for feeding on their farms to their calves, hogs and poultry. Talking with the manager of a creamery in northern Illinois, a representative of the Farmers' Review was told that he could buy no skim milk for making up into cottage cheese; for the reason that the farmers in his vicinity would not sell it. They declared that it was worth at least 20 cents per 100 pounds for feeding to their farm animals, and that they preferred to keep it, even if they could get that for it. One man lived not far from a bottling establishment where he could get a good price for his whole milk, but he preferred to haul it to a whole milk creamery that he might get the skim milk to use on his farm. In this same locality one year the farmers quite generally sold their skim milk for shipping to the city, but when fall came found that their hogs were in poor condition on account of having been deprived of the skim milk in the early periods of their lives. The next year they made a change and held back the skim milk for their own use. We doubt very much if 20 cents per 100 pounds represents the true vale of the skim milk for feeding purposes. That may be indicated by the actual chemical content of the milk, but it has a value beyond that, which is the value that it has in combination with corn. It has been shown that corn is worth very much more when fed with skim milk than when fed alone. As a balancer for corn it has a value that the chemist will never be able to determine.

Cure for Gapes in Chicks.

Take a tub, place a quart can in the center of the bottom and cover a heavy blanket over the top of tub lightly. Place the sick chickens in the tub (as few or as many as you can get on bottom around can), on top of this can put a hot stove lid. Now drop eight or ten drops of carbolic acid in a spoon, slip your hand under the blanket and pour the acid on the hot lid. Withdraw your hand and keep covered tight for one minute, and then release your chickens and the work is done. The fumes from the acid kill the worms in the chickens and they throw them out in a few days. You must give this treatment when you notice your chickens beginning to sniffle.—W. C. A COUPE COMPLICATION

By BELLE MANIATES

(Copyrighted, 1900, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

IN the tender dusk of an evening in the early spring Vivian Warne called informally upon her friend, Mrs. Allen. They chatted for a few moments and then Vivian resisted all urging to remain longer, pleading an order of menu cards to be delivered to Mrs. Van Altern, who lived on the other side of the city.

When she came out into the soft darkness she found the unstirred air full of a vapory mist so deadly to plumed millinery. She went back into the house, which was one in a block of stone fronts, to telephone for a carriage. Mrs. Allen regretted the absence of her coachman, but Vivian was accustomed to livery accommodations. Presently young Ned Allen came in and brought the information that the carriage was waiting at the door.

Vivian made a second exit, but when she went out to the curb the driver remained in his seat.

"Awful lot of agony for a cabby," she thought, as she opened the door of the coupe, "I wonder if he thinks I have a footman!"

"Drive to 1215 Fifty-fourth street," she commanded.

He made no response, but held his gaze strictly "front" with the fixedness of a Tommy Atkins on parade.

"Stephens & Co. are getting too swell for me," she reflected, as she seated herself and slammed the door. "What lovely appointments for a livery! I hope they haven't increased their rates along with their style."

She leaned luxuriously back in the corner of the coupe and dreamed of the time when the golden days of fame should waft her from an artist in embryo to a painter of portraits. She was called to reality by the halting of the carriage. Supposing she had reached her destination she opened the door and discovered that she was in an entirely different part of the city and that the coupe had stopped in front of the Atheneum club.

"I didn't suppose Stephens & Co. ever made one coupe answer for two calls," she reflected, as she closed the door, "but I don't mind having a longer ride."

In a moment a man came out of the club and stood where the light fell full upon his handsome face. Vivian uttered a little exclamation of dismay and sank farther into her corner. A year ago she had been engaged to Carton Leigh. They had first met at a house party and afterwards she had visited a friend who lived in his city. There had been some sort of a misunderstanding and he had declared that she alone was entirely to blame and must make the first advances toward reconciliation. Of course no self-respecting woman would do that, and she had therefore returned the ring that had once gleamed upon her third finger and had devoted herself to studio life and many a backward glance tinged with regret, but fortified by a steadfast resolve to never make any overture. She had heard recently from their mutual friend that he was to make this city his home, but she did not know that he had arrived.

She was seized with apprehension. Was he going to get in this coupe? She would not speak until he did. He opened the door and started to get in. She had turned her face away from him, but she felt his start of surprise.

Then she heard him say, in his well-bred, modulated tones:

"I beg your pardon!"

There! He had spoken first, and with a little air of triumph she faced him, the light in front of the club shining full upon her face as it had on his a moment before.

"You!—Vivian!" he said, in a voice that thrilled old memories and feelings, in an instant he was seated beside her, the door had slammed shut and they were away.

"This is too good to be true," he said, joyfully.

"I ordered a carriage from the livery," she said, stiffly, "and they evidently thought it would answer for your order, too."

"Oh, that was the way of it," he said. "Well, I am glad of the mistake, but, are you in much of a hurry? If not, I am going to ask a favor of you. It is very important that I see a man on business who leaves the central depot at 7:30, and there is just time to make it."

"Oh, certainly," she answered, coldly. "It makes no difference."

"It makes no difference, you mean, whether you ride one block or a hundred. Are you as indifferent as that, Vivian?"

She made no response. Presently he broke the silence.

"Did you know that I was living here, in this city, now, Vivian?"

"No; why did you move here?"

"Well, you know my father has more to say about the business than I, and when he decided to move here I could not tell him that it would be very distasteful to Vivian Warne. I was afraid it would not be a business-like consideration to him."

She resented his sarcasm, and he interrupted another silence:

"I have been here a week, Vivian, and have walked the thoroughfares for a glimpse of you."

They had reached the depot now and he stepped from the coupe, saying he would be back directly. She was conscious, even while she fought against it, of a little feeling of gladness that he was going to return in her carriage instead of ordering another. She leaned forward and watched him as he walked away, so straight and stalwart. His voice and presence had all their own characteristics, and, yes, she must admit it—she loved him! And he had spoken first and was very conciliatory. He came back in a few moments, said something she did not hear to the driver, and was once more by her side.

"I am afraid I did not accomplish much in a business way," he said, in tones boyishly buoyant. "I was so distracted lest you, the carriage and driver should vanish while I was away."

He chatted on for a few moments. Suddenly looking out of the window Vivian noticed that they were driving neither in the direction of his club nor her destination.

"This driver is so stupid!" she exclaimed. "He must have forgotten the address I gave him."

"Probably he didn't understand it," he suggested. "I find he doesn't understand a word of English. He speaks in German."

"Oh, then won't you tell him that I want to go to 1215 Fifty-fourth street?

"To Mrs. Van Altern's?" he asked.

"How did you know?"

"I am invited there to dinner tomorrow night. She is a friend of our family."

"I am going to take the place cards to her now."

"And are you going to the dinner?" he asked, joyfully.

"Yes, but where is the driver going?"

"Well," he said, laughing, "don't blame him. The fact is I told him to drive anywhere, Vivian," in a change of tone, "I have not been happy this year. Have you?"

"No!" she half whispered.

"See here, dearest, it was a stupid quarrel—quarrels generally are. Let's rub it off the slate and.—Vivian, do you love me?"

It was an hour later when Mrs. Van Altern received her cards and a call from her two friends. At dinner the next night Vivian found herself most excellently assigned at the table—Carton at her right hand and an extremely deaf man at her left. When the conversation generally became quite animated Vivian could not forbear the little arrow:

"After all," she said, looking roguishly at him, "I had my own way, and that is most precious to a woman."

"How did you have your own way?"

"Why, you said you would never make up unless I made the first advances. And I didn't. I never would!"

"Is that so?" he laughed tauntingly. "Well, Miss Vivian Warne, let me tell you that you are certainly mistaken. You certainly did make the first advance, and a most decided one."

"I don't know what you mean," she said, indignantly. "You spoke first!"

"Yes, I spoke first, but not until you had acted in such a way as to justify me in so doing."

"You are mistaken," she said, with rising anger.

"Don't get angry, Vivian—not until I tell you something that I am going to on the way home to-night."

When Vivian left Mrs. Van Altern's with Carton for an escort a coupe was in waiting at the door and she recognized the driver as the same they had had on the previous evening.

"Have you engaged this driver for the season?" she asked, laughingly, when they were seated within.

"Yes," he replied, slipping his arm about her. "I brought him with me from home. He is a faithful fellow and a careful driver."

"What!" she cried. "This is not—"

"My private carriage," he answered. "Yours if you want it!"

"But I don't understand," she said, perplexedly. "I telephoned from Mrs. Allen's for a carriage and this was the one that came."

"No," he explained. "My father and I live next door to Mrs. Allen's, and I sent the man up home from the city to bring father to the club. I am not very proficient in speaking the German language, and I presume the man simply understood that he was to call at the house and then come for me. He was perfectly satisfied when you got in, and don't blame him, but poor father had to take an electric car. So, you see, after appropriating my carriage and calling for me at the club, I thought—"

"Oh, Carton," she said, "don't! I'll throw up both hands, but I am glad it happened and it was awfully sweet in you not to tell me last night."

WONDERFUL SPRING WATER.

Healing Properties Perform Astounding Cure, as Will Be Seen by This Tale.

Speaker Cannon anticipated the point of a joke which Senator Depew was contributing at a recent dinner, and the victim, in good nature, threatened retaliation, relates the New York Times.

"I will give you a chance," observed the speaker, accepting the spirit of the jest. "Perhaps you have heard how the curative properties of the hot springs in Arkansas were discovered?"

"I will guess it before you finish," challenged the senator.

"That is just what I thought at this time I heard the story," nodded Mr. Cannon. "I obtained it from a native of the district. It seems that the advance guard of civilization in the Arkansas wilderness was a trapper, with the usual dog. One day a bear gave chase to the dog and the fugitive lost his tail. In his flight the dog chanced to dash through a pool of hot water formed by an adjacent spring and—"

"My cue!" laughed Senator Depew, interrupting. "The next day a new tail grew on the dog and the springs were discovered."

"No," replied the speaker, solemnly. "The owner of the dog killed it by poor aim while shooting at the bear. The dog's tail dropped from the jaws of the bear into the spring."

"A dog grew on the tail," suggested Mr. Depew.

"You win," admitted the speaker.

MUSIC AIDS IN HEALING.

Boston Professor Now School of Medicine Through Use of Harmony.

A school of healing, in which the physician will combine with his knowledge of anatomy a thorough understanding of music, and the trained nurse will possess the ability to play a wide range of musical instruments, as well as administer medicines, is the prophecy of the large number of Bostonians who have taken up the "music cure" fad. In defense of their claims they insist that the theory has been given thorough proof already, and that in Europe it has been practiced successfully for several years.

Recently Mrs. Mary L. Livermore asked Miss Christine Brown to play in the wards of the woman's hospital, in Boston, and the results were so pronounced that Miss Brown has become an enthusiast on the subject, and has repeated the experiments with marked success.

The choice of musical compositions, the proper moment for applying them, and a correct appreciation of the patient's condition, comprise the whole secret. For purely bodily ills, ailing ones are advised to try the effects of chords and airs until one is found that has greatest soothing effect. The choice of instruments is wide. No rules have yet been formed on this point, but the violin is thought to be a little more successful than others. A piano, however, is almost equally considered.

The advocates of the cure use many familiar illustrations to defend the fad, among them the fact that mothers in all lands always have sung to their babies, and can soothe the most peevish little ones.

DOG ON 1,800 MILE TRAMP.

Homesick Newfoundland Covers Long Distance in Search of Familiar Scenes.

A Newfoundland dog taken to Portland, Ore., a year ago, has returned to Omaha, Neb., having tramped the 1,800 miles in search of familiar scenes and faces. The animal belonged to Jerry Sullivan, formerly sexton of Holy Sepulchre cemetery of Omaha. When Sullivan and his family moved to Oregon the dog, which was 10 months old, was taken along. It remained six months, but refused to eat, lost all his playfulness, and seemed to suffer from homesickness. One day he disappeared.

Nothing more was heard of him until a short time ago he appeared in Omaha gaunt and shaggy, with cockle burrs matted in his tail, his feet badly blistered.

When he reached Omaha the animal went straight to the house where his master had lived. Finding strangers, he whined dismally, and soon limped sadly away. He is being cared for by a neighbor.

Another Snake Story.

A snake five feet in length, of the garter species, carrying a knife in its mouth, was said to have been seen by several prominent residents in the upper part of Harrisburg, Pa., recently. The noise of a metallic substance being dragged over the pavement first attracted the attention of two citizens, who, on investigating, saw the snake crawling along, dragging the knife on the pavement. When an effort was made to catch the reptile it dropped the knife and escaped under a porch.

Of Minor Importance.

A train was held up in Colorado the other day, but a little thing like that, remarks the Chicago Daily News, could hardly be expected to attract attention in that state.

HE WAS WILLING TO PAY.

But Was a Little Too Foremost in Ordering the Help Around.

A lively looking porter stood on the rear of a car in the Pennsylvania depot. A fussy and caloric-looking old man clambered up the steps. He stopped on the platform, puffed a moment, retained the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and then turned to the young man in uniform and said: "Peter!"

"Yes, sir!"

"I am going to St. Louis. I want to be well taken care of and can pay for it. Do you understand?"

"Yes, sir; I hope—"

"Never mind what you hope. You listen to what I say. Keep the train boys away from me. Dust me off whenever I want you to. Give me an extra blanket, and if any fellow has the berth above me, slide him over into another one. I want you to—"

"But, say, boss, I—"

"Don't talk too much, young man. Here's two dollars. Now I want to get the good of it. Not a word, sir."

The train was starting. The porter swung off to the platform.

"All right, boss," he shouted. "I'm powerful sorry you wouldn't let me talk, but I ain't going out on that train."

PLAYING GOLF IN THE SOUTH

Most Enjoyable Features of the Game Are Those of the Little Black Caddy.

When you manage to bring off a more than ordinarily good shot it is a treat to note the expression on the face of your little negro caddie, says Country Life in America. The look of exuberant joy and pride and the triumphant glance at your opponent's "boy" is followed by a series of soft, melodious chuckles which only a darky can do justice to, as much as to say that he, and he alone, had done the trick, to the utter confusion of the rival caddies. Some of these darkies make good caddies, but the majority are too indolent or uninterested to be more than mere beasts of burden, knowing little of the game and caring less. They tell a story of one—a novice—who at the end of the day's play, after cheerfully following his employer through every bunker on the course and into all sorts of impossible places on the sides, rather startled him by guilelessly asking: "Is you gwine to work to-morrow, boss?"

Of Wide Interest.

Breed, Wis., July 18—Special—Chas. Y. Peterson, Justice of the Peace for Oconto Co., has delivered a judgment that is of interest to the whole United States. Put briefly, that judgment is, "Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best Kidney medicine on the market to-day."

And Mr. Peterson gives his reason for this judgment. He says: "Last winter I had an aching pain in my back which troubled me very much. In the morning I could hardly straighten my back. I did not know what it was but an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. After taking one box I can only say they have done more for me than expected as I feel as well now as ever I did before."

Pain in the back is one of the first symptoms of Kidney disease. If not cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills it may develop into Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism or some of the other deadly forms of Kidney Disease.

Signs of the Times.

"Now is the time to lay in your coal!" is the peculiar way a sign in the window of a Brooklyn store reads. Less ambiguous is the placard of a tailor on the same block, who has a genius for advertising. It says: "Pants, 50 cents a leg; if you buy two legs, the seat thrown in."—N. Y. Times.

Miss Alice M. Smith, of Minneapolis, Minn., tells how woman's monthly suffering may be quickly and permanently relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have never before given my endorsement for any medicine, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has added so much to my life and happiness that I feel like making an exception in this case. For two years every month I would have two days of severe pain and could find no relief, but one day when visiting a friend I run across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,—she had used it with the best results and advised me to try it. I found that it worked wonders with me; I now experience no pain and only had to use a few bottles to bring about this wonderful change. I use it occasionally now when I am exceptionally tired or worn out."—MISS ALICE M. SMITH, 804 Third Ave., South Minneapolis, Minn., Chairman Executive Committee Minneapolis Study Club.

Beauty and strength in women vanish early in life because of monthly pain or some menstrual irregularity. Many suffer silently and see their best gifts fade away. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps women preserve roundness of form and freshness of face because it makes their entire female organism healthy. It carries women safely through the various natural crises and is the safeguard of woman's health.

The truth about this great medicine is told in the letters from women published in this paper constantly.

Mrs. C. Kleinschrodt, Morrison, Ill., says:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have suffered ever since I was thirteen years of age with my menses. They were irregular and very painful. I doctored a great deal but received no benefit.

"A friend advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and after taking a few bottles of it, I found great relief.

"Menstruation is now regular and without pain. I am enjoying better health than I have for sometime."

How is it possible for us to make it plainer that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will positively help all sick women?

All women are constituted alike, rich and poor, high and low,—all suffer from the same organic troubles. Surely, no one can wish to remain weak and sickly, discouraged with life and without hope for the future, when proof is so unmistakable that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will cure monthly suffering—all womb and ovarian troubles, and all the ills peculiar to women.

UNION.

On the maps of postal routes that have been seen to the postoffices there is an offset in the Kentucky and Tennessee line in Simpson county. The question has been asked why is this offset? and we would like for the editor to answer it in the Union news.—[We have investigated the matter and are unable to find any explanation of it. There are several angles in the Kentucky and Tennessee line, as laid down on map, but no mention of them is made by the official boundary of Kentucky.—Ed.]

Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr. Frank Rigg, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It [illegible] a family of [illegible] and while [illegible] it [illegible] I recommend it to [illegible] and without reservation." For sale by druggists.

Lost on 10th inst., pocket book containing $7 or thereabout, on the road from my house to Dry creek by the Souther place, thence to Erlanger. Finder will please return to W. C. C. Rouse, Limaburg.

The run of Kentucky spring lambs on the Chicago market is expected to last until August. Quality is improving, but there is still some deficiency compared with last year. Exporters have been doing little, being unable to get the kind they want. A good feeder and stock ewe demand is looked for.

Samuel Collins, 81 last May, died of Bright's disease at St. Elizabeth hospital in Covington, last Friday night, and on Sunday the remains were interred in the Collins lot in the old cemetery at this place. The deceased was a brother of D. C. Collins, of Covington, and the late Amos Collins. The Ladies' Aid Society of Union Baptist church spent a very delightful afternoon at the palatial home of Mrs. J. W. Conner, Saturday, July 16th, the occasion being the 17th anniversary of the body. Our worthy President, Mrs. N. S. Bristow, opened the meeting with an address of welcome that was tender and touching. This was followed by a paper ably read by Mrs. James A. Huey. Well selected readings by Mrs. Rachel Rice and Mrs. Bernhardt, from Covington, together with good talks from the different members and letters from absent ones that were read and appreciated. Several tributes were paid the memoriy of the late Mrs. Dr. W. H. Blanton, the organizer of the society by Mrs. C. T. Rice, Misses Jennie Taliaferro and Carrie Gaines all steadfast members in its earliest days. Misses Sara and Rachel Conner added much to the occasion by beautifully rendering several well chosen instrumental piano duets. Closing this very interesting program with God's benediction, all repaired to the dining room where the very affable hostess served delicious ices. The color scheme in the spacious dining room was nasturtiums and sweet peas, while in the parlor, hall and living room, huge bunches of purple clematis graced the cabinet, mantels, and other bric a brac. Those who enjoyed this memorable anniversary were Mesdames Elizabeth Huey, Emily Presser, Chas. Baker, J. W. Taliaferro, C. C. Bradford, J. W. Whitson, Erlanger; Rachel Rice, J. J. Garrison, N. S. Bristow, Sara Hicks, Jas. A. Huey, Dora Bannister, Ryland Hedges, Miss Ophelia Riley; Bernhardt, Allingham and Storey, from Covington. G.

BASE BALL.

The Boones played the Bellevues on their ground last Saturday afternoon, winning the game 14 to 5. Houston was in the box for the Boones and let the Bellevue sluggers down with 4 scattering hits, while the Boones hit the ball at will, making fourteen bingles, the number of two-baggers being too numerous too mention. Slayback caught for Hogan, who took first, each making a good record. Following is the score:

The Ft. Thomas ball team will be the attraction at the ball park next Saturday. The Fort boys want revenge for the defeat they got from the Boones before, and are coming prepared to take the Boone's scalps. The manager telephoned Monday for busses to haul their rooters. If you want to see a good game come out next Saturday.

The second nine of Bellevue came to Burlington last Saturday afternoon and defeated the Grays 8 to 6. The Bellevue boys put up a strong game at every point, playing lively ball, while several of the Grays had a violent attack of the "slows." Gray, of Bullittsville, pitched a good game, but was given miserable support at many points. Capt. Jackson's home run in the ninth inning was the feature of the game on the part of the Grays. The Bellevue team presented Crosby, of the Rough Riders, of Aurora, but the boys found him about as easily as any pitcher they have gone up against this year. The Bellevue second nine is a very promising bunch of youngsters, and will make a strong team if they continue to play together. Following is the score:

Grays	0	0	0	2	0	2	0	0	2	—6

Struck out—By Gray, 10; by Crosby, 4. Hits—Grays, 12; Belleview, 11. The Grays will play Walton, here Saturday. Game called at 1 o'clock.

We know nothing of the old bachelors you mention, but deny their being a curse to the community, or that old bachelors are a curse to any community. This is leapyear, and the ladies have a right to go wooing, and if there is any lady about Rabbit Hash who thinks we can add to her happiness, give her our address and we will entertain her to the best of our ability. We prefer an old maid. Of course we don't expect any to call in person, but they can write. Hope they won't all write at the same time.

WALTON.

July 25.—Our town was startled yesterday afternoon by a telephone message from Independence, Kenton county, stating that Attorney John L. Vest had shot and killed ex town marshal, Thomas Riley. Mr. Vest is a son of Dudley Vest of this county, and was born and raised on a farm near Verona which neighborhood the Vest family is old and prominent. Mr. Vest read law with Attorney J. G. Tomlin of this place, and about three years ago located at Independence to practice law, for which profession he had prepared himself well. Some time since Mr. Vest became interested in the telephone business over in Kenton county, where he is building up an extensive local system. Several months ago he installed an exchange at Mr. Riley's residence, and which was looked after by Mrs. Riley, until for reasons satisfactory to Mr. Vest he dispensed with her services, and other business transactions in the same connection seems to have caused ill feelings on the part of both the parties to the unfortunate affair of yesterday. In this as in the case in such affairs there are conflicting reports as to how the shooting was precipitated, although there are but two or three who witnessed the tragedy. John Vest was always a sober, quiet citizen, and every body who knows him is very sorry to hear of his trouble, and anxiously await a correct statement as to how the shooting was brought about. Mr. Vest will be defended by J. G. Tomlin, of this place, and will plead selfdefense, as he believed Riley was endeavoring to draw a pistol when he fired the fatal shot. The examining trial will be held at Independence on Wednesday, and, owing to the prominence of the principals in the sad affair, will be attended by a large crowd.

Lovers Twain

HELEN HAMILTON

(Copyright, 1908, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

TALL and admirably proportioned, with a most distinguished air, modest in bearing, straightforward in manner and frank of countenance and possessed of a captivating personality, Philip Hathcourt was well equipped to win favor in the eyes of women. But Leigh Cornell, the one woman to whom his heart inclined, was still fancy free.

Though they were the best of friends he shrewdly divined that he would be forcing an issue if he told her of his love.

"I hear you are going to sing a solo at St. Luke's next Sunday," he said, as they sat in the box at the theater one night.

Yes; I am to sing 'Angels Ever Bright and Fair.'"

"I shall come to hear you. By the way, we shall have a guest at that time—a friend of my younger brother. He is quite music mad, I believe."

"Who is he?" she asked, carelessly.

"An Englishman—though he spent his boyhood in America. His name is Reginald Derbyshire."

"Oh!" she cried, her eyes full of interest. "Did he live here in this city years ago, and did he fall heir to a title and estates in England?"

"Yes," he replied. "Did you know him?"

"When we were children we sang in a vested choir. We were given the duets, more because I was so fair and he so dark than from any blending of voices. They thought we made a tableau, I suppose. It was like a romance, his becoming Lord Somebody and crossing the seas to his estates, and I! Well, my lines were cast in far different places."

Sunday morning found him in the Hathcourt pew, his brother and their guest, Reginald Derbyshire, also present.

Young Derbyshire had gone to England full of American ideas and with a stolid determination not to become "English," but it was only natural that an impressionable boy should insensibly and by degrees receive the imprint of English sentiments. Gradually he became molded in the character of the country which had been his birthplace, and at last England claimed him for her own. Soon after attaining his majority he again visited his old home. He had an eager interest in everything pertaining to his old life and hunted up his former friends with enthusiasm. He had ever cherished most tender recollections of the little pansy-eyed girl who had sung and played with him. It was of her, in fact, he was now thinking as he appeared to listen to the sermon.

He had scarcely glanced at the members of the vested choir until now, when the organ pealed forth at the close of the sermon, a young girl rose and faced the congregation. She looked as tender and pure as an archangel in her white robes, with eyes uplifted to the oaken rafters of the little chapel.

"One of Raphael's Sistine Cherubs!" thought Reginald.

At the rising cadence of the song and the exquisite play of the silvery timber of her voice his memory awoke.

"Leigh!" he gasped, as the old, familiar air and words rang out. How they took him back to the Sundays of his boyhood!

"And I taught her that song!" was his triumphant thought.

She finished. There was a momentary silence like that solemn pause which follows a benediction. Then, with a tremor in his low, gentle voice, the old pastor offered a heartfelt prayer. Outside the church Reginald waited for her. When she came he rushed forward with impetuous and outstretched hand.

"Leigh!" he cried, eagerly.

A bright, glorious flush rose to her cheeks and a happy light shone in her eyes as she grasped his hand, while Philip, standing by, felt like kicking this newcomer to the ends of the earth.

"I knew you as soon as you began to sing—our old song!" he exclaimed.

She wondered, with a sudden divining, of the reason that Philip had not told him of her. Reginald accompanied her to her home and they talked of other days—the days when she had sung in the choir and the unhappy days that had followed, when her father had died so suddenly, and to support her invalid mother the little Leigh had sung in dance halls and on pleasure boats. At her mother's death, just before he had come into his possessions, she had been adopted by some wealthy people.

"There have been changes indeed in your life since the day I taught you the song you sang to-day," he observed.

"No greater changes than came into your life, my lord," she retorted.

Early in June they were invited to a house party at Roselawn, the country home of the Hathcourts. One afternoon, as Reginald sat beside Leigh on the piano bench watching the slender fingers that glided so softly over the keys, he was struck by a new expression in her eyes. The dazzling brightness of her face had given way to a strange, sweet quiet. Hitherto he had regarded her as a gay little playmate. It occurred to him now that she was a woman.

"Leigh!" he half whispered, "do you remember that when we were children I was your little lover?"

She looked at him with startled eyes. Something in his tone and eyes warned her whither his thoughts were tending. He noted her changing color and pulled himself together. It was not right to flirt with this girl. He [illegible] conversation [illegible] commonplace words. With some hurried excuse, she rose and left the room.

While he was reflecting on girls in general and Leigh in particular Mrs. Wendell, one of the very few who knew Leigh's history, entered.

"You look as conscious, Reggy, as Leigh did just now. It would be a pretty romance if your boyish attachment for Leigh should end in your carrying her to your ancestral halls!"

"Oh, Mrs. Wendell, you know that as lovable as Leigh is, a fellow in my position couldn't overlook the days she was nothing less than a street singer. It wouldn't do in England, you know!"

Leigh, returning to the music room, heard the speech. Her eyes, usually so bright and tender, flashed with spirit as she quietly and unobserved left the room.

There was a grand ball at Roselawn that night and Reginald was one of the first to enter the ball room. Mrs. Wendell hurried to him.

"Oh, Reginald, I've something awful to tell you! Leigh overheard what you said about her having been a street singer. She just told me she heard you!"

He gave a cry of dismay.

"No, not really, Mrs. Wendell! That is awful! Believe me, I shall make amends. I shall ask her to marry me."

Just then a beautiful vision swept past him. Could this figure so slender and stately in trailing gown be that of little Leigh? As she passed through the long room at the side of her adopted father Philip Hathcourt did not remove his eyes from her.

"Leigh," he murmured, as they stood apart for a moment, "may I have the first dance?"

She turned slightly pale, hearing the intensity of his voice, but quietly gave him the promise of the dance. Then Reginald came hurrying toward them.

"Leigh, you were so late in coming!" he cried. "May I tell you how gloriously beautiful you are to-night?"

"I want the first dance," he continued.

"You are too late! I have promised it to Philip."

The first dance ended Reginald hastened to claim her for the next one. It had semed to him that his code of honor demanded by way of apology nothing short of a proposal. But to-night her heightened beauty and the intoxicating delight he felt when dancing with her made him forget any motive but love. His wooing was audacious, passionate and importunate. Her refusal, calm, undaunted and unalterable.

Surprised, yet not baffled, he continued to plead beseechingly.

"I don't understand such inconsistency, Reginald," she replied. "To-day you were proclaiming that you could not marry a street singer!"

"Spare me, Leigh!" he pleaded. "I didn't love you then. You are prejudiced now by reason of that unfortunate and careless remark. Take time, and let your heart soften towards me."

She laughed tantalizingly.

"I don't love you, Reginald! And I never will."

"You did, or were on the verge of it," he protested.

"When?"

"This afternoon before you left the music room so suddenly. I saw it in your eyes."

"You may have seen love there," she said, slowly, "but not for you."

A quick passion seized him.

"I know for whom! Someone whose feeling for you isn't equal to mine—someone who will not—"

"Stop!" she commanded. "My answer is final. Take me back to the ball room."

She was experiencing a slight exultation in the realization of the power a woman can wield over man. This feeling made her eyes more luminous and her face more radiant. They passed Philip in the doorway of the pavilion. He drew back out of view, all the wounds in his heart beginning to ache at the sight of the proud, happy bearing of the girl, whose countenance was glowing and flashing with excitement. He came up to her quickly.

"Will you dance this with me?"

"Certainly," she replied.

"I don't want to dance now," he said, when Reginald had withdrawn. "Let us go to the house, but not to the ball room."

They went into a deserted room, dimly lighted by candles, to a deep window embrasure which looked out on the garden at the back of the house. The moon flying swiftly through great, floating masses of clouds sent a silvery beam upon the gold of her shining hair. Her eyes were full of depth and color.

A little French clock chimed out 12 strokes.

"This is the noon of night," said Leigh, trying to speak lightly.

"Leigh, I have no right to ask—but, did Reginald propose to you to-night?"

"I have no right to tell, perhaps, but I will. He did."

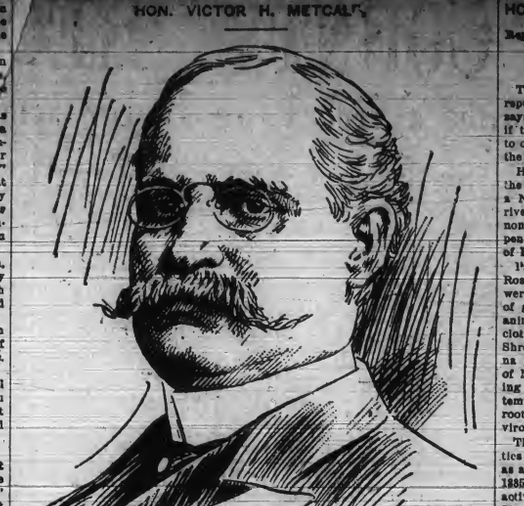
"And you accepted him?" he asked, tensely.

"No, I refused him."

His arms were about her. "Then, Leigh, let me tell you, I—"

"Wait!" she cried.

Her voice was sharp and strained. She drew away from him.



"I want to tell you something—something about my early life. You do not know that when I was a little girl—"

"You sang on the boats and in dance halls," he interrupted, "to support your sick mother. I heard it before I met you. I think it was that which first made me love you!"

She turned soft, wet eyes to his.

"Oh," she said, with a little gasp of joy. "And to think all this time I've been dreading to tell you!"

AN EXTRAORDINARY MALADY

Excessive Cleanliness Becomes a Disease, Says a Medical Authority.

It is from a recollection of his own afflictions as a child that a college professor makes a plea for dirt, says the Philadelphia Record. Children, he avers, are tortured by the madness of mothers. They are not only scrubbed with cruel frequency, but are restrained from wholesome play by the threat of punishment for soiled clothes. Nature, he maintains, has had a good purpose in implanting in every normal child a fondness for dirt, and the constant efforts to defeat this purpose must have a deleterious influence on the character. He considers it a grave invasion of the rights of childhood to insist that the human young, who are in a state of barbarism, should look like angels on parade. "The laws of nature," he declares, "cannot be constantly violated with impunity;" children who have the possibilities of a fine manhood are perverted into vain and finical peacock by the diseased desire of mothers for unnatural cleanliness.

That this desire for excessive cleanliness is in truth pathalogical is affirmed by a medical writer in the London Lancet. He describes it as a hatred or fear of dirt, and has no doubt that it is an infectious germ disorder. The woman whose highest ambition is to be regarded as the best housekeeper; who makes all enjoyment of the home impossible by her eternal vigilance in the matter of dust; whose mind seems incapable of entertaining any other idea than that of absolute cleanliness, is obviously afflicted with this malady, which is called mysophobia. That the disease is extending is beyond a doubt. What has been called the force of example is in fact the effect of contagion. It is chiefly because of the consequences to the children that the subject is considered worthy of attention, but there is little hope that any appeals to mother love will be effective.

MAXIMITE SAFE ENOUGH.

But It Is Almost Fifty Per Cent. More Efficient Than Dynamite.

Mr. Maxim will show you one of his important inventions, his powerful shell-exploder, known as maximite, which in explosive force is about 50 per cent. more efficient than dynamite, and somewhat more powerful than pure nitroglycerine.

This maximite, writes Joseph H. Adams, in "A Day with Hudson Maxim," in St. Nicholas, has lately been adopted by our government as a bursting charge for projectiles and shells, and it is equaled in shattering force by only two other known substances.

In spite of its high explosive quality it is a very safe compound to handle, and is practically unaffected by shock, and will not explode by being set on fire—even if a mass of it is stirred with a white-hot iron. It will burn with a bright green flame, and can be ignited with a match.

All this Mr. Maxim demonstrated by lighting a piece of emokeless powder and dropping it in a dish containing some lumps of maximite. He also melted lead and poured it over dry lumpe of maximite, and, while it burned freely, like sulphur or wax, it did not explode.

In appearance maximite somewhat resembles sulphur, being yellow in color and quite hard. It is easily melted, in which condition it flows like molasses and is poured into steel projectiles.

Cabmen's Sempstress.

A young woman to be seen on the Victoria embankment, London, mending cabmen's coats and overcoats has thus earned her living for three years. OLD NECKWEAR REMODELED Novel Indianapolis Industry That Is Becoming One of Some Importance.

This is an age of remodeling. It seems that anything from a hatpin to a brown stone front can be made over. The latest article to fall prominently into the hands of the renovator is the necktie. It is now no longer necessary for a dealer to carry a stock of old, unsalable neckwear. He can have his ancient stock of neckties made into the latest fashions, and they can easily be unloaded on the public.

If one looks over the list of Indianapolis industries he will find about every kind of enterprise represented here, says the Star. Making over neckties has not been left out, although the factory has been here but a few years. A firm which now engages in this business is located on South Alabama street. Last year thie firm turned out 60,000 dozen neckties, all of which were made from old stock.

The neckwear remodeling factory is a salvation to the dealer, who stocks up with a fine line of imperial puff, windsor string and stock ties. These ties soon grow old, and he cannot sell them at a profit. Formerly he reduced the price on them, and thus they were sold, but now he gathers them all together and ships them to the remodeler. Here they are made into bow ties, which can be sold at any time of the year.

Any ordinary tie, when cut up, will make several bow ties. The number of bows which can be made from other ties varies from three to twelve. The remodeler charges the dealer but one dollar for making a dozen bows and the dealer retailing the made-over necktie gets 25 cents for it. His profits are good and he thanks the man who gave birth to the idea of making over old neckwear.

Nearly all bow neckties are now made from the old stock of other neckties. The process of making over a tie is interesting. It requires seven girls to make over one bow. The old tie goes to a girl to be pressed. It then goes to the marker and then to the cutter. After being cut the pieces go to a girl who sews the bags and points. These are taken to the bow maker. Then the bow is handed to the shield sewer, who, after finishing her work, gives it to the assorter, who trims and gets it ready for shipment. During the busy season of the year the local factory employs 50 girls at the work.

Seeing an itinerant hat remodeler at work suggested to the founders of the local tie-remodeling factory the possibilities in the business of making over ties and a small concern was started which developed into a company which now has a wide trade.

PHOTOGRAPHING LIGHTNING

Any boy or girl who has a camera and a good stock of patience may secure a photograph of lightning. The patience is needed in waiting for the lightning. When a thunder shower comes at night, says "Nature and Science," in St. Nicholas, keep a sharp lookout for an opportunity to secure your picture. You cannot get a picture of lightning during every thunder shower. Clouds or a heavy downpour of rain often conceal the flash from view, and we have "sheet lightning." It is useless to photograph this, but you may by its light get an interesting picture of the landscape.

When the sharp "chain-lightning" comes, select a window from which you can see well, or, if it is not raining, go out of doors and set the camera on the tripod focused as for a distant view and pointed toward that quarter of the heavens in which the lightning is most frequent. The diaphragm should be set to the largest opening that is ever used, the slide drawn, and the lens uncovered as for a time exposure. Then follows a wait of one, two, five, or even twenty minutes, until a bright flash comes within the field of view of the camera, when the lightning takes its own picture. Then cover the lens, push in the slide, and you are ready to try again on a fresh plate.

HONEST, SAFE AND PURE.

Republican Paper Discovers in Parker a Man Who Is Worthy of Public Confidence.

The Chicago Tribune, the leading republican newspaper of the west, says that Judge Parker's personality, if there were need of driving it home to one word, would best be enfolded in the word stability.

He was born a New York farmer in the Hudson river region. He remains a New York farmer in the Hudson river region. His estate at Esopus is none the less a farm because it happens to be called by the estately name of Rosemont.

Parker owns two farms besides Rosemont. He is what his fathers were before him, a practical cultivator of ground and a practical breeder of animals. When he stands in his farm clothes among his Red Poll bulls, his Shropshire sheep, and his Poland China pigs, this chief judge of the state of New York is one of the finest living illustrations of the stability of temperament which keeps some men rooted securely in their ancestral environment.

The same fundamental characteristics can be observed in Parker's work as a judge. He has been a judge since 1885. Before 1885 he had taken an active personal part in local politics. Since 1885 he has never strayed from the bench to the hustings. He has regarded himself as the agent of the state of New York for the settlement of legal controversies and for the maintenance of the science of jurisprudence. From this high vocation he has never been drawn away by any counter call of political exigency or of personal ambition. The serene and unvexed impartiality of the law could be intrusted to no more unwavering hands.

Yet he seeme to have enough distinction of temper to attract interest. He was not much more than a boy when he was elected clerk of a board of supervisors. He was only 26 when he was elected surrogate of Ulster county. He was only 32 when he was reelected surrogate on a democratic ticket which brought success to him alone. He was only 34 when he became chairman of the state committee in the campaign which made David B. Hill governor.

With Hill's election his active political life ceased. At the close of the campaign the man whom he had helped into the statehouse helped him into the judiciary. From 1885 to the present time Parker has been a judge. Also, he has been a jurist. He has drawn so far away from politics that his decisions are developments in jurisprudence and not incidents in party warfare.

Nevertheless his political strength has remained unattenuated. In 1897 he was nominated by the democrats for the office of chief judge of the court of appeals, the highest judicial office in New York. In 1896 McKinley had carried New York state by 268,000. Parker annihilated this majority and created a counter majority of 60,000. He is the only democrat who has been elected to a state office in New York since 1891.

As a citizen and a jurist, Alton B. Parker has been upright, clean-minded and honorable. The democratic party has done well in presenting to the country a candidate of such personal rectitude.

PICKED UP HERE AND THERE.

——The republicans have had a great jubilee "under the oaks." They may gather under the willows one of these days.—Omaha World-Herald.

——All true friends of tariff reform and reciprocity can get together on the tariff plank of the St. Louis platform. It is an ideal pronouncement.—Atlanta Constitution.

——As a delicate compliment to Mr. Knox, who bade farewell to the staff in the attorney general's office, the coal trust on the same day raised the price of anthracite ten cents a ton.—Chicago Examiner.

——Elect the ticket! You bet we'll elect the ticket! Face to the foe—eyes on the target. Every democrat in his place. No mouthing and no monkey business. No nonsense about either '73 or '96. Fools to the rear. Braves to the front! March!—Louisville Courier-Journal.

It Died Many Years Ago.

Nothing that has the name of law is more dead than the fifteenth amendment. The north recognized its demise long ago, and saw clearly that its adoption was a mistake—a gigantic blunder that was saved from being one of the great crimes of the age by the ignorance of the men responsible for it. The provision of the fourteenth amendment to which the platform refers has followed the fifteenth amendment to the grave. Hereafter, as in ante-bellum times, the states will determine who shall and who shall not vote, and no penalty will be imposed for disfranchising illiteracy in Mississippi, Massachusetts or elsewhere.—Washington Post.

Standing Shoulder to Shoulder.

Nothing more significant has marked the politics of this nation for many decades than the amicable consolidation of all the elements of the democratic party. It is an event which cannot be magnified; an event the importance of which cannot be exaggerated. It will have pronounced effect upon the country's career. It cannot fail now to be the subject of widest rejoicing by the democrats of all sections. Democracy's days of estrangement are over. It is now indivisible—and indivisibility means invincibility.—St. Louis Republic.

OUR TICKET IS ALL RIGHT.

Party Can Now Face Coming Fight with Absolute Assurance of Certain Victory.

The united democracy has spoken. It has declared its choice for president, and Judge Alton B. Parker is the party's nominee. Toward this events have been moving for months past, acquiring within the week preceding the convention date an irresistible momentum. All through the proceedings the desire and the purpose of democracy's representatives declared itself, and Judge Parker was nominated in a whirlwind of enthusiasm. Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia, was nominated for the vice presidency. His large experience in public life fits him for the place, and in his person the south once more finds representation on a national ticket.

Judge Parker, says the St. Paul Globe, is a man worthy of the high place, of the loyal support of a great party and of the suffrages of the American people. He is of the finest, highest type that America produces. The bitterest enemy has found no flaw in his armor and no blot upon his escutcheon. His party record is without a blemish. In the great judicial position that he has filled so ably he has won the golden opinion of the bar, the bench and the public. He is beloved by all who know him, and respected by rich and poor for the purity, integrity and strength of his manhood. In the best sense of that grand old word, he is a democrat.

There are many days before us in which to tell the worth of this splendid standard bearer. It is enough now to herald the event, to congratulate the party and the people that have waited for such a man, to sound the note of coming triumph. Let democrats everywhere prepare to face the fight with an assurance of coming victory. For just as this man, strong in his simplicity, his courage, his patriotism, has grown and grown in the party's esteem with the passing of days, until from a comparatively little known figure he has emerged the center of a great party's hope, so will he grow into the popular mind and heart and conscience from this day forth. It is a winning battle that we fight. Democracy has found itself and found its leader. To him the steadfast sone of the republic will turn with undeviating faith, and with him as our candidate we shall win.

Roosevelt Cares Less for Law and Justice Than Any One of His Predecessors.

The Nashville American, a fair-minded southern paper, is right when it says that if the right of any citizen of the United States to vote is denied in violation of the constitution, the republican party does not propose to restore to him that right. It does not propose to protect him in his right as a citizen of the United States. It proposes to leave him helpless and without remedy. It merely proposes, not in the interest of the citizen that is deprived of his rights, but for political purposes and partisan advantage, to reduce the representation of the states in which such citizens live. It would concede the white citizens in such states the right to vote and to be represented accordingly to their numbers, but it would offer no relief to the citizens deprived of the "right" to vote. It would leave them to their fate. And it would be glad to do so. Not sympathy for the negro, or interest in his rights, but a desire to gain a partisan advantage, is the motive which actuates it. There is not much comfort for the negro in this attitude of the republican party, which plainly declares that it has no objection to the disfranchisement of the negro, provided he is not included in the basis of representation.

As for the south, if it should come to a choice between an unrestricted ignorant negro vote and a reduced representation in congress, it will unhesitatingly choose the latter. But there should be no necessity of doing either. There would not be if reason and justice prevail. There should be no attempt to punish the south because of its negro burden.

McKinley was opposed to any such policy. He gave cold comfort to the Paynes and the Crumpackers. But Roosevelt is different. The plank above quoted would not have appeared in the republican platform if Roosevelt had objected to it. The platform was written by a close personal friend under his advice and guidance. It reads like a declaration of war against the south, and attempts to revive the sectional spirit and to arouse animosities that had almost disappeared when the ruthless rough rider appeared on the stage. That it will operate to the ultimate advantage of the republican party we do not believe.

——The schism the republicans were praying for did not materialize at St. Louis. The democratic party is not only thoroughly unified; it is enthusiastically aggressive.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

——Speaker Cannon seems ambitious to succeed the late Senator Hanna as the producer of pat phrases. He says the republican party "moves on." It moves surely, but the direction it will take after the November election may make him glad that he didn't take the vice presidential nomination. "Uncle Joe" is understood to believe in a hereafter.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE VACATION PSALM

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1904, by J. M. Edson.)

Chicago, Sunday, July 24, 1904.

Text:—"Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my Strength and my Redeemer."—Psalm 19:14.

WE have indicated the last verse of the nineteenth Psalm as our text because it should voice the desire and prayer of every soul, but we wish to take the whole Psalm for our theme, and we are going to call it, "The Vacation Psalm." The vacation is the time for rest and meditation. The time when we love to get off into the heart of Nature and listen to the harmony of her manifold voices, to drink in the thousand and one beauties of the vaulted heavens and the verdant earth, to feel the gentle influences stealing in upon our souls as fair Nature comes and cheerfully and faithfully ministers to our needs and smiles with indulgent grace upon our whims and exactions. How patient she is as we take all she has to give us and never so much as voice a "thank you" with life or lips. As we enjoy God's Nature, our hearts ought to turn in grateful thought to Nature's God. The words of our mouth should speak some message back to Nature and to God; our hearts should find their meditation in channels that lead Godward and that will prove acceptable to Him. Nature is not of herself a sufficient teacher and revealer of God. She bears her faithful testimony to the reality and the personality of God, but in the fullest sense of the word she is not a revealer of Him. She gives lavish evidence that there is a God. The heavens declare His glory and the firmament showeth His handiwork. The voice of Nature everywhere whispers of a great and all-powerful and all-wise Creator and ruler. The message has gone out into all the earth, so that we find the consciousness of a Supreme Being to prevail among the most benighted peoples. But this evidence and testimony of Nature are not sufficient revelation of God. If they were, why should not the untutored savage, who has Nature as a teacher, even as those of more enlightened conditions, know as much of God as the latter?

THE Psalm before us places Nature in her right relations to God and man. The full, lofty, graceful lines of its opening verses, with their poetic figure of the splendid sun riding through the heavens in strength and majesty and beauty, even as the carefully-groomed bridegroom cometh forth to seek his bride and rejoiceth as he goes with strong, stately, graceful tread to her abode, give us a rare picture of Nature at her best, and speak to us of God's glory, of His handiwork, of His wisdom and power. But it does not stop there. It goes on from the visible evidence of God to the revelation of God. The trouble with so many people is that they never get beyond the sixth verse of this Psalm. They see God in His created universe, but they refuse to hear Him out of His written Word. They love to walk abroad at night and trace the stars in their course, but they refuse to walk with the Psalmist as he traces the evidences of God in His Word. But it is not sufficient that you should rejoice in Nature and Nature's God; your soul must receive His revelation, and revelation brings obligation. The three divisions of this Psalm cover the ground of the soul's need. The evidence of God in Nature, verses 1 to 6; the revelation of God in His Word, verses 7 to 11, and the obligation of man to God, verses 12 to 14. This, then, is the ideal Vacation Psalm. It lures off into the heart of Nature and speaks of God there. It holds up the Word of God as perfect and sure, as right and pure, as clean and holy and true, and then speaks of its converting power, of its gift of wisdom, of its filling the heart with rejoicing and the eye with a new and glorious light, of its perpetuity, of its value above gold and its sweetness above honey, of its faithfulness in guarding from harm and danger, and of the great reward which is to be realized from obedience yielded thereto.

THE thought of law and order runs through the whole Psalm. The law governing nature and the law governing man. Nature obedient to the Divine will, and graceful and beautiful harmony prevailing between the Godhead and His created worlds. Man given the Divine law and revelation which to obey would produce a harmony that would fill earth with peace and joy and prosperity of millennial promise, and Heaven with the music of the glad angelic hosts, but man violating that law, and despising that revelation. As we walk abroad at night and lift appreciative gaze to the star-studded heavens, we are conscious of a law which keeps them faithfully in their place and steadily upon their course. Day after day we see the glorious king of the day enter the eastern gate of the morning and ride in splendor through the heavens and then retire majestically behind the ramparts of the western horizon, while from its battlements there stream forth the gold and crimson signals of the approaching night, and realize that that splendid sun is obediently traveling the pathway of a Divine law. Spring follows unfailingly upon the retreating footsteps of stern winter, and unfolds the buds into the fullblown blossoms of summer, and autumn brings her gifts of fruits and grains, and paints the landscape in crimson and gold. We have learned Nature's unfailing manifestations and know that spring will follow winter, and summer spring and autumn summer. We know that she operates in obedience to a mighty law.

IT IS but an easy and orderly step from Nature and her laws to man and the laws which should govern him. God is revealed as a God of law and order in His universe. Man recognizes this relationship and this harmony, and why should it be deemed strange and unnatural that God in His relations to man should have laws, which if obeyed issue in beauty and harmony, but which, if disregarded, bring discord and violence? The Psalmist, sensitive to the Divine revelation, passes from Nature and her laws, to man and his laws. He could sit out on the Judean hillside amid all the beauties of that marvelous landscape and enjoy it only as he sang the complete song of man and his relations to God, and you and I must do the same thing. We must not be content with the revelation of God in Nature, but we must seek the fuller revelation of God which is to be found in His Word. See what David thought of God's Word; how he loved to view it from all sides. It was law, perfect law, converting and restoring the soul. It was testimony, sure testimony, bringing wisdom to the simple-hearted. It was statutes, right statutes, making the life to rejoice under their beneficent rules. It was commandment, pure commandment, making the eyes quick to see the good and to put aside the evil. It was holy, Godly fear, cleansing in its power, and enduring forever. It was judgments, true and righteous, bringing deliverance to the obedient heart and punishment to the unrepentant and ungodly. To him this Word was better than the riches of the world, and more satisfying than all the sweets and dainties of the world. It was the danger signal, the guide post, which would keep the feet from slipping into the bypaths of sin, and it was the bearer of rich gifts to those who remembered it to keep it. How much David saw in God's Word! How he loved to look off upon the face of Nature and discover some new revelation of God there, and then how eagerly he would scan his bit of scroll containing God's Word and there find some new thought, some new secret, of God in His relations to him and mankind. But how little we enjoy God's Word. As we go off for our vacation rest, let us learn of God not only in Nature but in His Word; let us seek that harmony with God which prevails between God and Nature, and gives to her such irresistible charm. It may be our privilege to find God's Word meaning to us all that it meant to David.

AND without God's Word, there is no recognition of the personal relationship which exists between God and men. How vague is the thought of God to multitudes of people. Why is it so? Why is it that people like to get lost in the crowd and talk in a vague sort of way of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man? Why is it that men like to think their own thoughts of God, and not God's thoughts for them and about them? Is it not because there is not the sense of the personal relationship which should and must exist between God and man? Is it not because man does not know and does not care to know God? I fear it is. Study your own heart and seek to discover the reason you do not want to know God better. Is it not for the reason we have stated above? The contemplation of Nature gives convincing proof of the existence of a God. The contemplation of His Word brings revelation of that God which we have discovered in Nature. And that revelation brings sense of obligation to God. Hear the Psalmist as he closes. He has beheld Nature and exclaimed how lovely; how the glory of God is manifested. He has beheld God's perfect, pure law and has exclaimed; it is better than gold and sweeter than honey. But what an X ray it has been to his soul! How it has revealed the true condition! How it has brought to light the hidden sins!

THE greatest discovery which man ever makes is the discovery of himself; that is the discovery of his true condition and need before God. Man never does this of and within himself. It takes the Word of God to reveal it to him. David never knew what manner of man he was until he had looked into the mirror of God's Word and there he saw reflected and revealed his true likeness. And as he realized what he had thought he was and then what God had revealed him to be he exclaimed: "Who can understand his errors?" And the answer throughout the ages has been: No man! No man can know himself except as God reveals that self to him through His Word. And with the revelation comes the consciousness of hopeless and helpless state of sin, and the prayer: "Cleanse thou me from secret faults." David as he uttered this prayer saw the blood of the sacrificial lamb as it pointed to the coming of the Perfect One who was to become the Lamb of God to take away the sin of the world. And to you and to me comes the revelation of the saving and keeping Christ. And the note of true harmony is then struck. "Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my Strength and my Redeemer." We recognize the harmony which exists between God and obedient Nature. Oh, that we would realize and recognize the harmony which should exist between God and man. But such harmony can only prevail as we follow the example of obedient Nature, and in turn become obedient to God's laws and God's will. What a world this would be if we would!

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

A HAY-STACKING DERRICK.

Contrivance Like the One Here Described Saves Lots of Time and Lessens Labor.

Many farmers, whose barn capacity is somewhat limited, stack the larger portion of their hay crop until after threshing, and then haul it into the barn later for winter feeding. Under such circumstances this method seems advisable, for then, if the weather should happen to be like what we have had the past two seasons, there is not the danger of losing the entire grain crops. Of course during some seasons there is a greater bulk of roughage to be stored than during other seasons, nevertheless, the majority of farmers know just about the producing capacity of their land, and can quite accurately estimate amount of barn room that will be required to store their crops and from year to year be able,

as soon as a crop is ready to be harvested, to secure it by storing under shelter. There is but little doubt that if the loss sustained from stacking crops were accurately figured out, there would be enough loss upon the majority of farms in five years to pay the cost of building a barn sufficiently large to store all the crops raised upon the farm.

The past two rainy seasons have, I think, demonstrated that capital in barns is a good investment. There are, however, a great many farmers who are abundantly able to have convenient barns for storing their crops who have not, simply because they do not believe the above statement. Upon my own farm I have plenty of storing room for all the hay and grain, if I had not, I would not hesitate a moment to invest in more barn room.

But where the barn room is limited, and it is necessary to stack hay, a derrick similar to the one illustrated in the cut can be erected that will greatly lessen the labor involved in stacking. The derrick shown in cut requires three poles, two 40 feet long and one 37 feet. The two longest poles should be arranged in the shape of an inverted V by bolting the ends together with a three-quarter-inch bolt. The poles should be set into the ground at least four feet in order to help stay the derrick. The derrick can be raised by the use of a rope and tackle, and thus greatly lessen the heavy lifting. It will be necessary to stay the poles by running a No. 10 wire from the top to the single pole over the top of the other poles, and then down to the ground about 30 feet from the foot of the derrick. It will also be necessary to stay the derrick in other directions. The manner in which the fork is arranged is very clearly shown in the cut. This derrick has now been in use five seasons, and has proved very satisfactory.—Leo C. Reynolds, in Ohio Farmer.

RAISING HOGS ON SHARES.

A Practice Quite Popular in Iowa and One That Yields Big Profits to Investors.

Iowa farmers in many cases are renting lands on which hogs are grown on shares, having stocked the farm on shares to tenants. A telegram from Iowa City says that the problem now is, on what basis shall the increase of brood sows and other animals supplied on shares be divided at the end of the season?

The owner of the animals placed out on shares has usually expected at the time of divisions half of the increase of such animals, or if the animals are not sold, an equitable division of them has usually been made. This plan has been carried out many times in this county with both sides of the bargain well pleased, despite the fact that the first owner of the sows gets all the best of the bargain.

The way in which a careful farmer of the county figured it out this spring, and it is on his figures that the most of the present contracts are based, is to take a herd of ten sows, and placing the usual value upon them, about $150, credit that to the owner. He credits also ten acres of pasture land, rented for about $50, to the same side of the book, bringing his investment up to about $200. He then takes the average production, of about six pigs to the sow, and values them at $72, or $720 for the whole herd.

Up to this time it has been the custom for the investor to take half of this sum, or $360, as his share of the increase, and since money has been tight during the past few years, he has had no trouble in getting it. It gives him, however, about 180 per cent. on his invested capital for the risk involved.

WHY THE FARM BOY WINS.

It Is Because His Early Life Has Made Him Responsive to Every Moral Suggestion.

No boy need ever regret that he was born in the country and reared on a farm. He may lack the keenness and polish of the city cousin. He may be embarrassed by his own awkwardness, and feel that he is at a hopeless disadvantage in the race, but the country boy has a wider range of practical ideas. From the very first his little services are in demand. He becomes at once a part of the force that is making for home comfort and prosperity, and feels the independence of one who is helping to support himself and add to the general store. The farm boy is likely to regard his life as one of drudgery, and such it may be, if he loses interest in his surroundings or is pressed with a continual round of duty. There is something heroic in the country boy's struggle with the elements. Rain, snow and sleet only brace his courage. The garnering of the crops, the housing and feeding of the domestic animals, the gathering and preparation of the winter fuel give a purpose and zeal to his toil. Then there is the long tramp, sometimes of miles, to the district school, lessons learned before and after long hours of labor. Is it any wonder there are keen wits developing all outside of graded systems and in defiance of pedagogical order? It is the intensity of purpose with which the mind acts under the influence of vigorous health and the conscious value of time that accounts for these results. So from the farm is being supplied a stream of active world-workers, men not afraid to do their duty, and bubbling over with energy and ambition. Touch the country-bred boy, now the merchant prince or the successful professional man, and how responsive he becomes to every suggestion of moral life! The same cannot be said of boys reared in the midst of other surroundings. It is the contact with nature that makes the indelible impression upon life. No greater gain can come to the country at large than that which comes from the promotion of the love and appreciation of rural life. Health, happiness, purity and peace are the natural inheritance of those who dwell surrounded by fresh air, beautiful scenes, bright skies and pure social influences.—Agricultural Epitomist.

HANDY CARRIER FOR WOOD.

A Little Farm Convenience Which Saves Lots of Work and Is Appreciated by Boys.

It will be much easier to get the daily supply of wood for the kitchen fire if the children are provided with wood carriers. Make the foundation as wide as the firewood is long, and long enough so it will hold a large armful. This foundation can be solid or not, as desired, but is much lighter if made of slats. At each end is fitted a solid upright piece which is as wide, and almost as high, as the width of the foundation. This serves to keep the wood in place, the sides being left open and the wood placed crosswise in the carrier. An iron rod is bent for a handle, or a piece of band iron can be used, either one being fastened firmly to the foundation at the bottom of the outside of the upright ends.

A more simple one that any boy can make has a foundation like the first, and a bent green branch for a handle. For the upright ends, use the branches, bending them so the ends are fastened to the corners of the foundation and the rounded part comes about a foot above it. The corners must be strongly fastened with screws, and the handle be placed outside the end pieces to hold them firm. These carriers do away with the old woodbox, which is so often an eyesore in an otherwise attractive kitchen.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Securing Runaway Swarms.

When large apiaries of Italian bees are kept, it is essential that all blacks and hybrids within a radius of a mile be disposed of, if the swarms are to be kept pure. It is often a nuisance to hive stray swarms, but an apiarist must do this in order to protect his stock. A. I. Root, a large beekeeper of Ohio, sends a man on a bicycle to hive all stray swarms which are reported to him. The man carries a pair of pruning shears, small smoker, bee-veil, gloves and burlap sack, in which to place the bees. The sack can usually be slipped around the bees and the mouth of it tied before the limb is cut. The bees are then carried off in the sack and placed in a hive.—Orange Judd Farmer.

What Modern Farming Means.

Slipshod farming has had its day—too long a day, whose twilight still lingers long after its sun has set. If no other cause would compel the change, the increasing price of land would bring it. From this day forth the farmer who is to hold up his head among his fellows, and play his part in the world's affairs, must put into practice the very best system of handling his land, a system that will produce big yields at minimum costs, and conserve and increase the fertility of his soil. Every other sort of farming will only result in failure.—Farm Journal.

Prevention Cheaper Than Cure.

All diseases are easier to prevent than to cure, and most diseases can be traced to some kind of neglect, whether the animal affected be a horse, cow, sheep or pig.

Plaster of paris scattered over the floor of the chicken house purifies and absorbs foul smells.

Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.,
Dear Sir:

"I took Peruna last summer when I was all run down, and had a headache and backache, and no ambition for anything. I now feel as well as I ever did in all my life, and all thanks is due to your excellent Peruna."—Bess F. Healy.

The symptoms of summer catarrh are quite unlike in different cases, but the most common ones are general lassitude, played-out, tired-out, used-up, run-down feelings, combined with more or less heavy, stupid, listless, mental condition. Relish for food and the ability to digest food seems to be lost.

Skin eruptions, sallow complexion, biliousness, coated tongue, fitful, irregular sleep, help to complete the picture which is so common at this season.

THE Democrats do not have to go up against Senator Mark Hanna this time, and that is one thing in their favor.

IT is entirely too soon to begin parcelling out the votes of the electoral college. In politics it is a long time until November.

THAT Bryan did not bolt the St. Louis convention is a sore disappointment to many Democrats who set the example in the last two Presidential contests.

B. O. GAINES, the hustling editor of the Georgetown News has decided to issue two editions of his paper each week, one edition to be known as the Scott County Democrat. Both editions go at the price of one.

THERE is a very considerable element in the Republican party that does not like Roosevelt, and that element is not confined to the rank and file, but a very large number of the leaders have no love for him.

THE Democratic party is in a much better shape to enter the national campaign than it was in 1892 or 1896, and if the leaders will cease fighting among themselves, something may be accomplished in November.

THE Covington lodge of Elks gave that city an introduction to this great country, last week, that will be of more value to it than all the advertising it ever got. As entertainers the Covington Elks made the hit of the occasion.

THE architect does not think the capitol grounds at Frankfort are large enough as a site for the new capitol, and some of the papers advocate the calling of a special session of the legislature to amend the law so that another location can be secured.

TRIMBLE county mourns the loss of her able son, Joseph McCain, who died a few days since of apoplexy at his home in Bedford. He was author of the McCain tobacco bill that created quite a flurry among the tobacco warehouses in this State a few years ago.

THE services of Senator Hanna both as a finaucier and a director of the campaign will be greatly missed by the Republicans this year. He was one of the most successful political organizers this country ever produced, and there is not a man in that party that approaches him in these particulars.

THE nomination of Judge Parker seems to be especially pleasing to ex-President Cleveland, but in his expression of approval of the nomination he did not refrain from giving Mr. Bryan an uncalled for jab, while Bryan is showing himself more devoted to his party than Cleveland did under like circumstances.

Did the farmer ever stop to think that out of a bushel of corn the distiller gets four gallons of whisky. Out of it the farmer gets 40c, the government gets $4.40, the railroad gets $1, the dairyman gets 13c, the saloon man gets $7 the consumer gets drunk, the wife and children get hunger and rags. Who gets the worst of it.

An editor in Texas hits the right spots when he says: "The sorriest fellow on earth is the one who sits around and cusses his town. If I lived astride the north pole, I would call it home and be ready to boost it. If I could say nothing nice about it, I would say my ice bill didn't come high. I wouldn't stay in a town I had to cuss—not while the world is as big as it is now.

IT has been suggested that when the candidates announce themselves for the nomination, for sheriff, that they state in their announcement also the name or names of the person or persons they expect to appoint deputy or deputies in the event of their nomination and election. The candidates may regard that matter as none of the people's business, but that is where they are mistaken. That is the course pursued by candidates in many counties in the State and it is very satisfactory. Such an announcement would avoid complications and misunderstandings.

It is stated that Superintendent of Public Instruction Tyra, Attorney General Hays and others that the common school fund of this State is entitled to its proportionate part of funds and taxes paid into the Insurance Department, which apportionment has not been made since 1893. Something like $150,000 is involved, and proceedings will be instituted to compel Auditor Hager to make the apportionment.

President W. B. Hawkins of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association, says the committee is at work on the plans of the company and will soon be ready to disclose the same to the growers interest. He says the frustration of the plans of the association last year was largely due to the premature publicity given them which enabled the Continental to forestall them. He promises that they will meet with the approval of the farmers, and exhorts them to hold themselves in readiness to join in the movement to help themselves.

A few ago since the RECORDER carried the semiannual reports of the Erlanger and the six Boone county banks. Each of these banks made a showing that was certainly gratifying to the stockholders. The several new banks started in the last eighteen months seem to have opened up a new field for deposits and loans, and have not drawn on the older banks, to any appreciable extent, for a division of business. In a territory where only a few years ago, it was thought by many, who posed as astute business men, that it was impossible for a bank to succeed, there are now seven banks sustaining themselves nicely, the first bank instituted in the county, having proved a good money maker from the start, notwithstanding the cold shoulder given it by some who should have been its staunch friends. The three old banks represented in these columns, last week, have conducted their business on a conservative plan and have achieved a success beyond their expectation, and the same result will attend the new banks if they follow the example of the older ones, and as the directory of each is composed of good business men that is a guarantee that they will do that same thing.

Preliminary returns to the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Agriculture show the acreage of corn planted to be about 91,930,000 acres, an increase of about 2,130,000 acres, or 2.4 per cent, on the area planted last year, as revised in December.

The average condition on July 1 of spring and winter wheat combined was 84.5 as compared with 80 on July 1, 1903, and 82.9 at the corresponding date in 1902.

The acreage of potatoes, excluding sweet potatoes is greater than that of last year by about 90,000 acres, or 3.4 per cent. The average condition on July 1 was 93.9 as compared with 88.1 on July 1, 1903, 92.9 at the corresponding date in 1902, and a ten-year average of 92.0.

The tragedy of which a Walton correspondent writes, was a shock to Boone county people.

The old time dirt floor picnic, at which the lads and lassies used to enjoy themselves from the rising until the setting of the sun, would now be classed as a relick of barbarism, but for real, genuine sport, it has no equal in its modern successor.

Some of the local base ball fans are strange guys. If the Boones win a game they kick and ask why they don't get teams here that can play ball, and when they are defeated, they kick again and say the Boones can't play. Consistency does not enter into their make-up.

BASE BALL.

A team of jolly, good natured ball players came down from Walton last Saturday to do the Grays of this place, and in their ability to turn the trick they had an abundance of confidence. The team was accompanied by a considerable number of rooters, who were equipped with tin horns, megaphones and lusty voices. Attorney F. E. Curley was general manager and chief coacher, and Deputy Sheriff B. B. Hume was master of transportation. The game was called shortly after one o'clock. The Walton team got off well, while the Grays behaved badly, it looking for a while as if they would be left at the post. The very favorable start gave the Walton rooters much encouragement and they made the welkin ring, as they believed they had the game "dead easy." This winning clip was kept up by Walton for half the distance, when the team began showing distress, and the Grays commenced closing the gap, which was done with a spurt of speed that put tin horns and megaphones out of business. At the eigth post the teams were neck and neck, and the Walton boys laboring hard, and when the turn was made into the home stretch the Grays moved away from their opponents with almost lightning speed, and Walton saw all chances of winning out disappear. When the Grays went under the wire the result was marked up 12 to 8 in their favor. Following is the score:

Struck Out—Gray 7; DeJarnette, 7. Hits—Grays, 12; Walton, 12. Chief mourners—Atty. Curley and Deputy Sheriff Hume.

The principal event in local base ball circles, last Saturday, was the game between the Boones and a team from Ft. Thomas, the manager of which had notified managers Rouse and Crisler that he was coming to take the Boones' scalps, and good did he make his word. Having been beaten in a former game, 2 to 1, the Ft. Thomas manager knew at what points it was necessary to strengthen his aggregation. The game between these teams was called at 3:30 and it was soon discovered that it was to be a pitchers' battle. The teams were well matched and the contest was a pretty one throughout, there being numerous close plays on each side. It is true the Boones were defeated but in nowise disgraced. The pitcher for the visitors was the hardest proposition the Boones have gone up against this year. Following is the score:

The Institute Next Week.

The subjects on the first day's program are "Purpose of an Institute," "Attention;" "Habit," and "Moral Education." These subjects have been assigned to teachers who will make the session interesting:

On the second day "Discipline," "Promptness," "Common School Graduation," "Primary Reading," "Advanced Reading," and "School Management in General," will have the attention of the Institute, and will be thoroughly discussed by leading local educators.

"Arithmetic," "Language," "Nature Study," and "Grammar," will compose the material upon which the teachers will work the third day.

Thursday, the fourth day, is expected to be the biggest day of the session, and "Spelling," "Hygiene," "Trustees, Duties, Relations to Teachers," "Patrons," and "The Teachers," are the subjects to be handled that day. At 2:30 p. m. the graduating exercises will take place, and they always prove interesting, and they will be more interesting than usual this year. At night the banquet for teachers and the alumni will be made a pleasant affair. Superintendent Snyder has invited all who can to bring baskets of provision on Thursday, and at noon a regular, old fashioned basket dinner will be enjoyed. Mr. Snyder has the promises of State Superintendent Fuqua to be present on Thursday, and he will add much to the interest of that day by an address.

Friday will be devoted to "History," "Civics," "Report of Librarian," "Course of Study," and reports of committees.

The program will be interspersed with good music.

The Law requires all those who hold Certificates to teach in Boone County, as well as those who anticipate being examined in August, to attend the entire session.

Mrs. Timmons is with her husband at the hospital and is assisting in nursing him. At the time the cablegram was sent the disease was diagnosed as a threatening attack of typhoid fever, which is very prevalent among the officers and men of the North Atlantic squadron, now in Mediterranean waters. Ensign Timmons is on the Kearsarge, the flagship of Adm. Baker, in command of the squadron.

A CANCER HOSPITAL.

Philadelphia, July 22.—Plans for the founding in this city of a cancer hospital of national scope were formulated at a meeting of physicians and philanthropic citizens held here on Thursday. The proposed institution is to be known as the American Oncologic hospital.

The hospital is to be devoted exclusively to the treatment of tumors and cancerous affections and scientific research into the causes underlying the increase in the prevalence of cancer. Statistics read at the meeting show that during the year 1870 there were 99 deaths from cancer in the combined populations of seven of the largest American cities; during 1898, but 28 years later, the deaths from cancer in these cities numbered 4,273. Comparing these figures with the increase of population it was found that in each million of the population of these cities in 1870 there were 354 deaths from cancer, while in 1898 the number had increased to 664 cancer deaths in each million.

THE PORTLAND MINE.

Was Again Closed By the Action of the Military Authorities.

Denver, Col., July 22.—The Portland mine is closed again in consequence of the action of the military authorities. The mine was giving employment to about 500 men. Squads of soldiers have arrested 40 of these, including the entire mechanical force at the three working shafts. This comprised engineers, firemen, master mechanics and skilled men in other departments. The men thus summarily removed from their labors are accused of no crime, the only accusation being that they refused to sacrifice their membership in the Western Federation of Miners and take out Mine Owners' association working cards. Six of the 40 men arrested were declared to be "all right" by the military board and were released. Twelve others were released on their own recognizance.

REUNION OF THE ELKS.

Thousand of Them Gathered in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, July 20.—While the 16th annual reunion of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks has been in progress all this week, the 40th meeting of the grand lodge did not begin until Tuesday, when morning, afternoon and night sessions were held.

As there were but two candidates for grand exalted ruler the lines are said to have been drawn rather distinctly on the ballot taken which resulted as follows: W. J. O'Brien, jr., of Baltimore, 710; Samuel H. Needs, of Cleveland, 379; majority for O'Brien, 331.

While the delegates were engaged in these continuous sessions there was much agitation among the visiting Elks over the exposures in the annual reports about the alleged extravagance in the expenses of certain general officers and the discrepancies between the different reports.

Grand Treasurer Needs reported cash on hand to date of $107,285.

That part of retiring Exalted Ruler Fanning's report referring to efforts to get a charter in Mississippi for Negroes was strongly approved.

At Tuesday night's session the following officers were elected by acclamation: Grand esteemed royal knight, F. C. Tomlinson, of Winston, N. C.; grand esteemed lecturing knight, Charles W. Kauffman, of Hoboken, N. J.; grand tiler, W. W. McClellan, of Pittsburg.

Cincinnati, July 21.—The Elks, assembled here, called Wednesday the banner day, not only of the 40th grand lodge, but also of the order. During the day they had a parade, which Chief Marshal Dunne estimated as ten miles long, with over 15,000 uniformed men in line and many floats and other designs. The 40 bands, averaging 30 pieces, made a total of 1,200 blowing their horns, while no one could estimate the thousands of throats along the line rivaling the horns in making noise.

After being in session almost all night, the grand lodge had elected all of its officers except the grand secretary. At the afternoon session Wednesday Fred. C. Robinson, of Dubuque, Ia., was elected grand secretary after a spirited contest, three ballots being necessary.

The next convention will be held in Buffalo July 10, 1905.

Cincinnati and Hamilton, O., Covington, Newport, Bellevue and Dayton, Ky., although represented in the parade Wednesday, were not eligible for the prizes awarded as follows: Chillicothe, O., for having greatest number of men in line in the parade, $500; Richmond, Ind., for wearing the most unique uniforms in the parade, $500; Dayton, O., for making the neatest appearance in the parade, $500.

In the contest between the lodges of Cincinnati, Covington, Newport, Bellevue and Dayton, Ky., the loving cup was awarded to Covington.

Cincinnati, July 22.—Following the ball and other festivities during the night, the programs Thursday for the 40th meeting of the grand lodge and the 18th national reunion of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks were not entered upon early.

The feature Thursday was the Session of Sorrow in memory of Past Grand Exalted Ruler Meade D. Detweiler, who was at his death chairman of the board of governors of the National Home for Elks, near Richmond, Va.

While other Elks are enjoying a series of festivities, the members of the grand lodge have been in session all day and again Thursday night. The recommendation of Grand Exalted Ruler Fanning abolishing the grip and sign was adopted. The committee on ritual was directed to prepare a new edition for exemplification at the Buffalo lodge next July.

Capt Champe S. Andrews, exalted ruler of New York, was appointed by Grand Exalted Ruler Fanning as a member of the board of governors of the Elks' national home, near Richmond, Va., to serve the two years of the unexpired term of Wetweiler. Grand Exalted Ruler O'Brien will have the appointing of a member of the same board for a full term.

After suspending the Peoria lodge for three months and installing the officers the grand lodge adjourned shortly before 1 o'clock Friday morning.

Dr. Herran for several years was secretary of legation here and after the hurried exit of Minister Concha was charge d'affaires until the legation was closed last winter as a result of the Panama affair. He signed with Mr. Hay the Hay-Herran treaty for the construction of the canal which the Colombian congress rejected.

Mr. Herran is expected to return here in the autumn. When last heard from he was in Colombia with his family.

R. encampment at Boston, the lines of the Western Passenger association have decided to fix no specific rates east of Chicago. This was determined upon at a meeting of the rate clerks of the association Friday, when it was decided to make the rates from all western territory to Boston on account of the encampment on the basis of one fare for the round trip in western territory, plus the rates tendered by the Central Passenger association.

THE STEAMER GAELIC.

Some Anxiety Regarding Her Safe Arrival at Yokohama.

San Francisco, July 23.—The officials of the Occidental and Oriental Steamship Co. have expressed some anxiety regarding the steamer Gaelic which sailed from this city on July 16 for Japanese ports. The Gaelic, which flies the British flag, has in her cargo a large amount of foodstuffs and machinery both of which are contraband of war and are liable to seizure. She is due in Yokohama in about eight days and the officials of the company here say it would be an easy matter for the Russian Vladivostok squadron to intercept the Gaelic before she reaches Yokohama.

GETTING A PUFF OF FAME.

At Times It Is a Face And Then Again a Name That Brings the Puff.

Justice Brewer is from Kansas, and his state is justifiably proud of him, says the Kansas City Journal. Soon after his elevation to the supreme bench a cigar manufacturer in Topeka dedicated a ten-cent "domestic" cigar to the jurist, named it "Our Justice," and on the cover of each box pasted a portrait of Mr. Brewer.

A few years ago the justice was in Topeka on a business trip. The hotel clerk recognized him, and the negro bell boy, although he had no idea who the newcomer was, knew from the way he was ordered about that the patron was of some consequence. Going up in the elevator the negro stared constantly at the tall, dignified man.

Suddenly the black face was wreathed in smiles, and the boy said:

"'Scuse me, boss, but ain't you de gemmen dat invented dem 'Ouah Justice' cigars?"

"And then," he said, "there is 'E Pluribus Unum,' the man that makes the bass drums."

Proved Beyond a Doubt.

Middlesex, N. Y., July 25.—(Special)—That Rheumatism can be cured has been proved beyond a doubt by Mrs. Betsey A. Clawson, well known here. That Mrs Clawson had Rheumatism and had it bad all her acquaintances know. They also know she is now cured. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it. Mrs. Clawson tells the story of her cure as follows:

"I was an invalid for most five years caused by Inflammatory Rheumatism, helpless two-thirds of the time. The first year I could not do as much as a baby could do; then I rallied a little bit and then a relapse. Then a year ago the gout set in my hands and feet. I suffered untold agony and in August, 1903, when my husband died I could not ride to the grave.

"I only took two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and in two weeks I could wait on myself and saw my own wood. I dug my own potatoes and gathered my own garden sass last fall. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills put the Kidneys in shape to take all the uric acid out of the blood.

Miss Nellie Holmes, treasurer of the Young Woman's Temperance Association of Buffalo, N.Y., strongly advises all suffering women to rely, as she did, upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your medicine is indeed an ideal woman's medicine, and by far the best I know to restore lost health and strength. I suffered misery for several years, being troubled with menorrhagia. My back ached, I had bearing-down pains and frequent headaches. I would often wake from restful sleep, and in such pain that I suffered for hours before I could go to sleep again. I dreaded the long nights as much as the weary days. I consulted two different physicians, hoping to get relief but finding that their medicine did not seem to cure me. I tried your Vegetable Compound on the recommendation of a friend from the East who was visiting me.

"I am glad that I followed her advice, for every ache and pain is gone, and not only this, but my general health is much improved. I have a fine appetite and have gained in flesh. My earnest advice to suffering women is to put aside all other medicines and to take Lydia E. A FIGHT TO A FINISH.

Allied Unions, Except Teamsters, Join Striking Butchers.

Four Train Loads of New Employes Were Taken to the Chicago Stock Yards Sunday Before Darkness Had Set In.

Chicago, July 25.—Determined on a fight to a finish to enforce the demands of the striking butchers, a sympathetic strike of all the union workmen employed in the meat packing industries throughout the country with the exception of the teamsters was declared Monday morning at 7 o'clock.

Instead of joining in the sympathetic strike the teamsters will make another effort to bring about an adjustment of the controversy by arbitration. This decision was reached late Sunday night at a meeting of the joint council of teamsters unions throughout Chicago, who met to consider the indorsement of a decision reached Sunday afternoon by the packing house teamsters' union to quit work with the other allied unions. The decision of the stock yards teamsters was almost unanimous in favor of striking, but as it is necessary according to the rules of the teamsters' union for the joint concil to sanction any strike movement, all the union teamsters in the employ of the packers will remain at work during the struggle or until the joint council gives their permission to a strike should their efforts to settle the matter by conciliation Monday prove futile.

The committee appointed at Sunday night's meeting were notified to get into communication Monday morning as early as possible with the packers. Whether the teamsters' efforts for peace will prove successful none of the packers' representatives who were communicated with Sunday night would say. The decision to make another effort for peace was reached at such a late hour Sunday night that it was impossible for the packers to get together to decide on what answer would be given to the intermediary committee Monday. The reason given by the teamsters' council for their action is that they have never before been consulted in the present trouble and that therefore before they would sanction a strike of the stock yard teamsters they wished to make an official investigation of the trouble before asking the international officers of the union to officially order the men on strike.

No conferences were held Sunday either by the packers or the labor leaders, or jointly, in an effort to reach an adjustment of the controversy. Both sides rested Sunday, apparently waiting for Monday's developments. Whether or not the packers would make any concessions to the demands of the labor leaders in order to prevent a general walkout of the trades at the stock yards, would not be discussed by any of the packing house representatives Sunday, but from the preparations going on at the different plants during the day it was plainly evident that the packers intended to fight for their independence. All labor leaders declared that they would await Monday's developments before considering further negotiations, and that the packers would have to make the request for a resumption of peace negotiations, as the unions had no intention at the present time of doing so.

Preparations for the struggle which was expected to reach a climax Monday morning were being made at the different packing plants all during the day and far into the night. Dozens of representatives of the packing houses were scattered all over the country in search of men to fill the places of the strikers. Four train loads of new employes were taken to the yards before darkness set in to join the non-union men already established inside the plants.

Stockades have been erected at all the different plants to protect men whose work exposes them to danger from mob violence. All through the stock yards there were not only evidences of preparations for a long and bitter struggle, but superintendents of the packing establishments, police officers and union leaders gave expression to anticipation of troublous times to come. Chief of Police O'Neill, who spent the day making plans for Monday, said:

"No one knows what will happen. The opportunity is here for one of the greatest labor contests in the country and apparently there is no hope for averting it. The police will be able to handle the situation, however, without outside assistance, no matter what happens."

AN ABDUCTED GIRL.

She Recovers Consciousness and Tells of Her Adventures.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 25.—Ines Record, the 13-year-old girl who was found in an unconscious condition by a searching party at the side of a country road last Tuesday night, revived sufficiently Sunday to give her father a detailed account of her adventure.

Her story repeated Sunday supplements the statements made on last Thursday to her sweetheart, when she temporarily revived from a long period of unconsciousness. Immediately after making the statement she suffered a relapse and since then, until Sunday, no one has been allowed to question her.

She reiterates her first story that a white man accompanied by a Negro entered the house while she was writing a letter. Seizing her they bound and gagged and placed her in a buggy when she says she fainted. When she revived she was being carried into the woods.

There the men told her that she must go to St. Louis with them and if she refused she would be killed. While telling her of their purpose, the white man, who did the talking, held a revolver at her temple. Miss Record says she told the men they could kill her, but she would not go.

She was then carried to the buggy and driven by a circuitous route, she thinks, until within a short distance of where she was found. Again she was taken into the woods, where the white man renewed his threats to take her to St. Louis. Finally, the girl says, he offered her $1,000 if she would go. When she refused a knife was drawn across her throat, with the threat that it would cut deeper if she did not consent to go. On hearing her refusal she was carried for some distance and lowered into water, waist deep, several times. After this she says she remembers nothing.

She describes the white man as large and powerful, and wearing a slouch hat. Her recollection of the appearance of the Negro is vague.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 25.—It was learned Sunday that President Roosevelt met with a painful accident here last Wednesday by being thrown from his horse and he himself as well as his friends realize that the injuries he received could have been more serious, if not fatal.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt were out riding when the horse he was astride stumbled over a stone and the animal fell to its knees. The affair came so suddenly that Mr. Roosevelt was thrown with full force over the horse's head, alighting in the road on the back of his head.

A TWO DAYS' BATTLE.

Heavy Engagements Took Place Near New-Chwang.

Russians Suffer a Defeat and Are Evacuating New-Chwang by Order of Gen. Kuropatkin—Russians Destroying Their Property.

Tokio, July 23.—Gen. Kuroki, after a severe fight, occupied Kiao-Tung on July 19. The place had been fortified by the Russians, who defended it stoutly. In the fighting Gen. Kuroki's troops drove the Russians from their strongly fortified position on the Chi river, which is northwest of Motien Pass and east of An-Tung, inflicting upon the enemy more serious losses than they sustained themselves. The fight began on the 18th and ended on the 19th. The Japanese lost 425 men in killed and wounded. The Russian losses are estimated at 1,000.

Tien-Tsin, July 25.—News has reached here that a battle is raging outside of New-Chwang. The fighting can be seen from the housetops. In the engagement of Saturday the Russian losses are reported to have been 700. The Japanese are slowly nearing New-Chwang. Great excitement prevailed in that city during Sunday's and Saturday's fights.

A report from New-Chwang states that Saturday's battle was at Ta Haul Tong, six miles distant, and that the Japanese were successful. Many Chinese refugees arriving at New-Chwang have reported that nine Japanese gunboats from Port Arthur have arrived at Tah Ting Shan.

New-Chwang, July 25.—A battle was fought Saturday near Ta Tache Wlao, attended, it is believed, with heavy losses. The progress of the battle was watched by many people in New-Chwang from the roofs of houses. The day was clear and the smoke of the guns could be plainly seen.

Tokio, July 25.—The Russian Vladivostok squadron has sunk the merchantman which it captured off the coast of Izu province Sunday. The name of this ship and her nationality is not known and nothing has been learned of the fate of her crew. Witnesses ashore saw the merchantman following the fleet. Then they saw her fired upon, after which she disappeared.

The Russian warships were last reported at 11 o'clock Sunday morning to the southwest of Cape Iro, Izu province, steering to the west.

Cape Iro is about 65 miles southwest of Yokohama, and 50 miles from the entrance to the bay upon which Yokohama and Tokio are located.

St. Petersburg, July 25.—Orders have been sent to the volunteer fleet steamers St. Petersburg and Smolensk to refrain from interference with foreign shipping. It is expected these steamers will eventually join the Baltic fleet and will be replaced by ordinary warships.

Tien-Tsin, July 25.—In accordance with orders issued by Gen. Kuropatkin, the Russians commenced to evacuate New-Chwang Sunday. Monday morning the Russian railway station was in flames. The Russians are evidently destroying their property previous to evacuation.

Port Said, July 25.—Advices received here say that the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk fired three blank shots across the bows of the British steamer Ardova, the cargo of which consists of coal and explosives, and the vessel not stopping, the Smolensk sent two loaded shots at her, one of them passing over her amidships and the other over her stern. The Ardova was then seized and her crew transferred to the Smolensk. The vessel will be brought to Suez.

The Ardova, Capt. Smith, sailed from New York, June 15, for Manila. She arrived at Port Said July 11.

Washington, July 25.—Any action which may be taken regarding the seizure of the British ship Ardova by the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk is a matter for the British government. It is not a matter which in the least concerns the United States. This is the view taken in official circles here. However, the decision of the Russian government to withdraw the authority given to the volunteer fleet to make searches and seizures simplified the situation very materially. Presumably in view of this new attitude of the Russian government the Ardova will be released promptly, the seizure disavowed and the incident will be closed without delay.

Yokohama, July 25.—The Vladivostok squadron Sunday sunk the British steamer Knight Commander, from New York, off the Province of Izu, after transferring the crew of the Knight Commander to the steamer Tsinan, which arrived here Monday morning. The two vessels were sent to Vladivostok in charge of prize crews. The American Trading Co. are the agents here for the Knight Commander.

As she was nearing her home Sunday night, being without an escort, she was accosted by the stranger. She warned him not to approach. Passing a pile of bricks she took up one in her hand just at the time the stranger advanced and placed his hand upon her arm. The first national democratic platform ever adopted—that of 1832—contains this plank:

"We declare that the rightful power of all legislation is to enforce only our national rights and duties and to take none of them from us; that no man has the national right to commit aggressions on the equal rights of another, and that is all from which the law ought to restrain him; that every man is under the natural duty of contributing to the necessities of society, and that is all the law should enforce on him.

"We declare hostility to the dangerous and unconstitutional creation of vested rights, or prerogatives by legislation, because they are usurpations of the people's sovereign rights; no legislator or other authority in the body politic can rightfully, by charter or otherwise, exempt any man, or body of men, from the jurisdiction or operation of the laws which govern the whole community."

In 1840, the national democratic convention again declared: "Justice and sound policy forbid the federal government to foster one industry to the detriment of another, or to cherish the interests of one portion to the injury of another portion of our common country; that every citizen and every section of the country has a right to demand an equality of rights and privileges and complete and ample protection of person and property from domestic or foreign aggression."

The democratic platform of sixty-five years ago—the first ever formulated—are sound in theory and application today. There should be no backward step by the democratic national convention of 1903.—Glasgow Times.

You can grow flowers anywhere, if you only know the proper kind for each location. There is no portion of the earth's surface that cannot be covered by some kind of plant growth, nor a situation so desperate that it could not be redeemed with the life and cheer and color that flowers give. You have only to select the right variety of seed and you will find that there is no clay too tough, no sand too hot and dry, no rocks too devoid of soil, no winter too severe. If you have a swamp and are afraid of it, you can transform it into a water lily pond or a hog garden. If you own a bit of woods you can fill it with wild flowers. In the heart of the biggest city a ten inch hole can be made in the pavement, as they do in Boston, to cover the wall of the houses with vines. The slums have their window boxes, and the house-leaks grow upon the shingles of a roof. Even the dump heap that you pass daily need not be an eyesore. Put a package of sunflower, poppy or morning glory seed in your pocket, and scatter the seed over the offending spot. And of all the people who enjoy the transformation, you will enjoy it most.

Within the memory of living men the standards of wages at the time current have been unsettled throughout the country on at least three memorable occasions. The discovery of gold in California in 1849, as a sequel to the war with Mexico, brought revolution in prices. The Civil War, 1861-65, withdrew millions of men from ordinary pursuits and left labor systems to be replaced under rates inflated by a disturbed currency. The war with Spain, 1898, with its temporary diversion of labor and its territorial expansion, has been too recent for its effect to be fully measured. Besides these influences the coincident developments of steam and electricity, as applied to manufacturers and transportation, have so diversified and intensified and specialized all forms of labor that farm labor is no longer a distinctive term. Agricultural labor can no longer be discussed intelligently without special treatment of the peculiar forms into which it has become separated by conditions of soil, climate, and distance from dense bodies of population. All this emphasizes the imperative need of education and training for the work of the modern farm, whether in the field with grain, stock, cotton, fruit, dairy and garden product or in the house.—Scientific American.

Many gardeners fail in raising cucumbers and melons on account of the ravages of the striped melon bug, diabotica vittata. The pest is easily controlled. Take four ounces of soap and boil in one quart of water until soap is dissolved. Add four tablespoonfuls of coal oil. Beat while hot for ten minutes. This quantity will last all summer if put away in a cool place. Take one tablespoonful of the jelly to bucket of water, stirring together. Water the vines once or twice a week. This mixture will not injure the most delicate plant and is a perfect insecticide.

Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr. Frank Riggs, of Franklinville, N. Y., in speaking of this remedy said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard and while especially beneficial to children, it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by all Druggists.

Late chicks, that is those hatched in July and August, are as a rule less vigorous than those hatched in April, May and June, as the earlier chicks are from eggs laid during a period when the hen is full of vigor and health, and has not been reduced in vigor by a long continued spell of laying; and chicks from these earlier eggs are as a rule more vigorous and make more rapid growth than these chicks from eggs laid at the end of the laying season when the hen has been reduced in vitality by her long spell of laying and even where the hen may have had a rest of a few weeks, perhaps having been brought off a brood of chicks, yet the hen will not be of the same vigor and strength as at the beginning of the season and chicks from those eggs will as a general thing be lacking in vitality as compared with the chicks of the earlier months. And the fancier who may have been unfortunate in his early hatches and in experimenting with late chicks must make up his mind that special care is necessary to bring the late comers through in satisfactory condition. They must not run with chicks of earlier hatch, as the older ones will drive them about, and make life generally miserable for them. They should have a separate run where they may be free from annoyance by larger chicks. Their feed must be liberal and of good quality, and their quarters sufficient protection from heat and cold, and the cold wet weather of the fall months, as generally we will have days of heat cold and wet, and these late chicks must have shelter that will make them comfortable, no matter what the weather. They will then stand a chance of coming through in good shape and developing into birds fit for late shows, and for late hatchings the next year, or better still to hold over for the breeding season of their second year, when they will have fully matured. It requires careful attention to make the breeding of late chicks a success.—American Poultry Advocate.

They tell a pretty good one on a newly [illegible]ed Postmaster down in Indiana; it is said that after a week had elapsed after he took charge that the railway clerks reported to the bureau chief that the new P. M. was not sending out any mail from his office, whereupon the chief wired the new P. M. why he had sent no mail to the train. In reply the chief received this message: "I know my bizz, I ain't got the sack full yet."

Here is a psalm in politics that was not written by the sweet singer of Israel:

"The politician is my shepherd; I shall not want for any good thing during the campaign. He leadeth me into the lair of the blind tiger for my vote's sake; he filleth my pocket with good cigars and my glass of beer runneth over. He preareth my ticket for me in the absence of my better judgement; yea though I walk through the mud and rain to vote for him, and shout myself hoarse when he is elected, straitway he forgetteth me, lo, when I meet him in his own office he knoweth me not.

Surely the wool has been pulled over my eyes all the days of my life."—The Sun.

EXECUTOR'S SALE

Of Land and Personalty

Thursday, Aug. 4th, 1904

On the premises, half mile west of Verona, on the Verona and Big Bone road, I will, as Executor of John M. Sleet, expose to public sale 257 acres of land. This land is in two tracts, being divided by the public road. In one there are 104 acres. On this is a new residence, built in 1903, at a cost of about $2,000. There is, also, a good tobacco and stock barn, cistern at barn and one at house and never failing springs, about 10 to 15 acres of virgin forest and from 25 to 40 acres that have been in blue grass for twenty years or longer. It is well fenced and in a fine state of cultivation.

The 153 acre tract, immediately opposite the other, has about 30 acres of virgin forest and is the finest tobacco land in Boone county without any qualification. It lays well, is well fenced and has on it a pond of water covering an acre or more of ground and several feet in depth. This is a fine body of land.

Both tracts are within one mile of depot at Verona. Terms easy, so easy that the tobacco grown will pay for the land within the time that will be given.

At the same time I will sell the personalty, consisting of work mules, hogs, sheep, milk cows, old corn, hay, farming implements &c. Sale to begin at 10 o'clock.

COMMISSARY.

July 30.—Marriage adds either to a man's happiness or to his misery.

H. P. Parsons made a business trip down on Woolper, last Tuesday.

T. J. Walton finished putting up hay, Tuesday. He has about 75 tons.

J. J. Lillard and Xen Scott finished putting up hay, last Saturday evening.

Mrs. Slayback entertained Mrs. Wm Snelling and Mrs. Louis Merrick, last Monday.

We met our old friend, Bob Popham last Saturday. He looked as natural as an old shoe.

R. A. Brady brought us from Burlington to Commissary, last Saturday evening, in 25 minutes.

Will Arnold shipped 63 hogs, this week, that averaged 236 lbs., and sold them for $5.80 per hundred.

Walter Lonisker and wife are the proud possessors of a new baby girl, who arrived last Saturday morning.

James West and sister, Grace, of Clore's Ridge, were guests of Louis Merrick and wife, Saturday night and Sunday.

Ladies, why not have another chicken soup at Commissary. We are hungry for soup. About next moon would be a suitable time.

James Thompson, of Petersburg, passed here, Thursday with quite a bunch of late lambs, purchased from three or four different parties.

Gilly Weisickle and wife, of Middle Creek, visited Ransom Ryle and wife on Gunpowder, last Sunday. They report our old friend Ransom doing well.

The Jeffersonville School Trustees made a ruling on sweaters, and the school girls may wear them to school provided they tuck them inside their skirts.

Eugene Kelly, wife and children came up to W. T. Ryle's Tuesday evening, and spent the night, and Wednesday, Gene and wife made a business trip to Cincinnati.

Orin Phippe, near Burlington, bought 18 head of the cattle of Will Arnold, near Bellevue, last week. Price paid, 5 cents per lb. They are to be taken by the first of August.

Editor Riddell says the blackberries brought into Burlington are of a very indifferent quality. We picked him some that we thought extra nice, at least as nice as the price.

Miss Sadie Marshall, of Middle creek, entertained with a play party, last Saturday night. Quite a number was present, and a pleasant and an enjoyable time was had by all.

Lawrence Phippe, the Middle Creek horse-tamer—a second Rarey, passed through here, last Monday evening driving one of Ben Allphin's unruly, and stopped for a few minutes chat.

W. T. Ryle, wife and daughters, Misses Artie and Stella, J. J. Lillard and Miss Josie Grant, Xen Scott and mother, Bernard Rogers and wife, were last Sunday guests of Will Arnold and sister, Flora.

It is rumored that the Belleview P. M., Mrs. Adams, and her brother, Tom Marshall, will purchase, or take the place of Louis Merrick on the farm purchased 2 years ago by Noah West, and that Merrick will move on to the farm of Pete Clore on Clore's Ridge.

A couple of our neighbors were talking about wills and contests, when one remarked that if he ever made a will he would have a clause inserted, that if any of his relations contested they were not to get one cent. "That is unnecessary," said the other. "Why so?" the first asked. "Because if there is a contest the lawyers will see that your relatives don't get anything."

Uncle Sam has, within the last five years at the Philadelphia mills, coined 3,000,000,388 pennies. This is the only mill that coins pennies. The mill will, if it has not already done so, cease to coin pennies for a time, there being a surplus now on hand. If this five years output were collected in a heap it would make a good size stage mountain at least. Placed side by side in a straight line, they would make a ribbon of pennies over 35,000 miles long which would nearly, if not entirely, girdle the earth. Piled on top of one another, they would reach up toward the stars for a distance that would take a good many Eiffel Tower to equal, for it would not be less than 2,800 miles—far beyond the point where the force of gravitation is supposed to be very active. There is supposed to be about 290,000,000 children under 10 years of age in the world. Uncle Sam would be able from his present stock of pennies to give each child on earth 10 pennies as a keep sake and have enough left to fill a good sized savings bank.

July 31.—Coaling at the island is unusually poor this year.

Your reporter picked 48 gallons of blackberries in two days. Who can beat the record.

Our second nine beat the Gasburg team her last Saturday 5 to 3. Deck and Bruner for Gasburg, and Flick and Cook for Bellevue, were the batteries. Petersburg and Bellevue played the second game, and the home team was in the lead in the fifth inning, and in the seventh inning bad throwing let the visitors run in in flocks. Tafferty, Hoffman and Wheetge for Petersburg, and Conner and Cook for Bellevue, did the battery work. Cook is one of the best catchers in this county. Score—16 to 6 in favor of Petersburg.

Perhaps the most enjoyable event of the season in this part of the county was a barbecue at Henry Phippe's, last Sunday. The fish were fried to a turn, and the mutton, ditto, while some of Speckman's best was on hand to wash the bones out of the throats. Henry is one of the best entertainers in the county on an occasion of that kind. Love and Joe Morand, of Aurora, represented Speckman, and Morand favored the crowd with several fine selections on the banjo, and to say he is an expert performer would be putting it mildly. This occasion will long be remembered by those who participated. RYLE.

ROOSEVELT'S ADDRESS

The President's Response to the Committee Appointed to Notify Him of His Nomination.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Notification Committee:—I am deeply sensible of the high honor conferred upon me by the representatives of the republican party assembled in convention, and I accept the nomination for the presidency with solemn realization of the obligations I assume. I heartily approve the declaration of principles which the republican national convention has adopted, and at some future day I shall communicate to you, Mr. Chairman, more at length and in detail a formal written acceptance of the nomination.

Three years ago I became president because of the death of my lamented predecessor. I then stated that it was my purpose to carry out his principles and policies for the honor and the interest of the country. To the best of my ability I have kept the promise thus made. If next November my countrymen confirm at the polls the action of the convention you represent, I shall, under Providence, continue to work with an eye single to the welfare of all our people.

A party is of worth only in so far as it promotes the national interest, and every official, high or low, can serve his party best by rendering to the people the best service of which he is capable. Effective government comes only as the result of the loyal co-operation of many different persons. The members of a legislative majority, the officers in the various departments of the administration, and the legislative and executive branches as towards each other, must work together with subordination of self to the common end of successful government. We who have been entrusted with power as public servants during the past seven years of administration and legislation now come before the people content to be judged by our record of achievement. In the years that have gone by we have made the deed square with the word, and if we are continued in power we shall unswervingly follow out the great lines of public policy which the republican party has already laid down; a public policy to which we are giving, and shall give, a united, and therefore an efficient, support.

In all of this we are more fortunate than our opponents, who now appeal for confidence on the ground, which some express and some seek to have confidentially understood, that if triumphant they may be trusted to prove false to every principle which in the last eight years they have laid down as vital, and to leave undisturbed those very acts of the administration because of which they ask that the administration itself be driven from power. Seemingly their present attitude as to their past record is that some of them were mistaken and others insincere. We make our appeal in a wholly different spirit. We are not constrained to keep silent on any vital question; we are divided on no vital question; our policy is continuous, and is the same for all sections and localities. There is nothing experimental about the government we ask the people to continue in power, for our performance in the past, our proved governmental efficiency, is a guarantee as to our promises for the future. Our opponents, either openly or secretly, according to their several temperaments, now ask the people to trust their present promises in consideration of the fact that they intend to treat their past promises as null and void. We know our own minds and we have kept of the same mind for a sufficient length of time to give to our policy coherence and sanity. In such a fundamental matter as the enforcement of the law we do not have to depend upon promises, but merely to ask that our record be taken as an earnest of what we shall continue to do. In dealing with the great organizations known as trusts, we do not have to explain why the laws were not enforced, but to point out that they actually have been enforced and legislation has been enacted to increase the effectiveness of their enforcement. We do not have to propose to "turn the rascals out," for we have shown in very deed that whenever by diligent investigation a public official can be found who has betrayed his trust he will be punished to the full extent of the law without regard to whether he was appointed under a republican or a democratic administration. This is the efficient way to turn the rascals out and to keep them out, and it has the merit of sincerity. Moreover the betrayals of trust in the last seven years have been insignificant in number when compared with the extent of the public service. Never has the administration of the government been on a cleaner and higher level; never has the public work of the nation been done more honestly and efficiently.

Assuredly it is unwise to change the policies which have worked so well and which are now working so well. Prosperity has come at home. The national honor and interest have been upheld abroad. We have placed the finances of the nation upon a sound gold basis. We have done this with the aid of many who were formerly our opponents, but who would neither openly support nor silently acquiesce in the heresy of unsound finance; and we have done it against the convinced and violent opposition of the mass of our present opponents who still refuse to recant the unsound opinions which for the moment they think it inexpedient to assert. We know what we mean when we speak of an honest and stable currency, by which we mean the same thing from year to year, and we do not have to explain that we do not intend to debase the standard of value by which we measure the payments of the wage-worker, the farmer, the merchant, the manufacturer, the investor, the banker, the capitalist, the man who has saved a little money, the man who has saved a great deal of money, by which we measure the deposits in the savings banks, the premiums in the insurance companies, the profits of the stockholders in the great industrial and railway corporations, the fees of the lawyer, the income of the doctor, the stipend of the clergyman, the salary of the teacher, the pension of the soldier, the allowance of the soldier's widow, the deposits of the farmer in the country bank, the earnings of the wage-worker in the great city. We know what we mean when we say that we will not consent to any change which will lessen the purchasing power of the dollar, whether that change be made by lowering the quality of the dollar or by raising the purchasing power of the dollar through contraction

DOING THE WILL OF GOD

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher.

(Copyright, 1904, by J. H. Elson.)

Chicago, Sunday, July 31, 1904.

Text: "And He stretched forth His hand towards His disciples, and said: Behold, My mother and My brethren! For whosoever shall do the will of My Father Who is in Heaven, he is My brother, and sister, and mother."—Matt. 12:49-50.

A PHRASE common in the world to-day is "God's will," or the "will of God." However much or little the term is understood, certain it is that it is frequently used. As part of the Lord's prayer, it finds frequent utterance in religious gatherings and fraternal organizations. It is so easy to speak of God's will, but it is quite another thing to realize its meaning and to so think and act as to bring the will of God to pass. To do God's will requires an understanding of what that will is, and the purpose and ability to do that will as it is revealed. It would be folly for the child to attempt to do its father's will unless it had a clear understanding of what that will was. And, further, it would be unlikely to perform that will, granting that it did know what it was, unless the attitude of the heart was right and there were a desire to do and ability to perform. And, again, the loving and wise and faithful father would not expect or demand of his child that which he was unable to perform, nor would he demand or expect less than that which would call forth the best effort of the child. And, further, the father would not be so unreasonable as to expect the child to perform his will if he had not revealed and made plain to the child just what that will was. We have two viewpoints, then, from which to consider our topic, from the father's standpoint and from the child's standpoint; from the standpoint of the one whose will is to be done and from the standpoint of the one who is to do that will. The father must make his will plain to the child, and must be wise and careful to exact or expect nothing of the child but that which he is capable of performing. And the child must seek to know the father's will and must have the desire and purpose to perform it. And this statement of the case of the relation of the earthly parent to his child exactly illustrates the relation which man sustains to God.

GOD has a will to be done on earth even as it is perfectly done in Heaven. And that this will may be perfectly done requires first that God shall reveal that will to man; and second that He shall require not less nor more than man is able to perform. Man on his part must seek to know what the will of God is and then have the desire and purpose to perform that will as it is revealed to him. This, I think, fairly states what is involved in the doing the will of God. And we must recognize the fact that the will of the all-wise, all-loving, all-faithful Heavenly Father is best for man, even as we recognize in human relationships that the will of the wise, loving and faithful parent is best for the child. The child is not always able to see it and understand it. He lives for the moment, he weighs things on the scale of appetite and desire, and that which he wants the most he judges to be the best thing for him. But not so the parent. He looks down the years and, desiring things for his child which will best fit him for life and its social and business relationships, he wills this and that for the child. The child often does not understand, he cannot see the value of doing this or that or of keeping from this or that indulgence, but if he is an obedient and loving child he will cheerfully say: "Father knows best," and do his best to perform his father's will. And this is exactly the case as regards the relations of God and man.

DO YOU desire to be included as a member of Jesus' family circle? Do you long to have Him stretch forth His hand and point you out as belonging to Him in a peculiar and close relationship? There is only one way to have your desire and longing satisfied, and that is to do the will of God. And this involves knowledge of the will of God and ability and desire to perform that will. And what is the will of God for man? Just as the earthly parent desires its child to be the very best, to realize the very best, so God, in infinitely higher and better degree, desires for man the very best. He commands: "Be ye holy; for I am holy." And Jesus summed up all the wonderful teachings of the Sermon on the Mount in the words: "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father Which is in Heaven is perfect." God searched through all the centuries before Jesus came into the world to find a man who could perfectly fulfill God's will, and He found him not. The very best specimens of manhood failed. Noah, Abraham, Moses, the prophets, and even David, failed. There was "none righteous, not even one." All had sinned at some point in their lives and come short of the glory of God. But Jesus came and was holy in life and character, even as God was holy; He was perfect in keeping the law of God, even as His Father Which was in Heaven was perfect. And in Jesus, the Son of God, was realized God's will for man. And Jesus turns to you and to me and says: "Whosoever shall do the will of My Father Who is in Heaven, he is My brother, and sister, and mother."

HERE, then, is the will of God concerning us, that we be holy even as He is holy, and to be perfect as He is perfect. But you say, God has appointed us a task impossible to perform. And surely it would seem so in the face of the sin and failure of men from Adam down to the present time. But let us look into the matter a little more deeply to see if God has provided a way out of the difficulty. Surely it is not unreasonable for me as a father to lay upon my son a task which is beyond his skill and strength to do, if I provide a way by which the performance of the task is made possible. And surely God cannot be charged with unreasonable exaction when He commands us to be holy and perfect, inasmuch as He has provided a way by which man may meet His commands and conditions. God says: "Be ye holy," and then pointing to His perfect Son, He says: "Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." Unrighteous before God apart from Christ, but in Christ, accepted because of His righteousness. As Paul puts it in the third of Philippians: "That I may be found in Christ, not having a righteousness of mine own, even that which is of the law, but that which is through faith in Christ, the righteousness which is from God by faith." The first condition, then, of doing the will of God is in obtaining from Him that righteousness which we have not of ourselves, and this is realized by a faith in Jesus Christ as the personal Saviour and the One Who cleanses from all sin.

DOING the will of God, then, involves the acceptance of Jesus Christ as Saviour, and this act depends upon the real desire to do the will of God. It involves the attitude of the heart towards God. The Scribes and Pharisees, the leaders of the Jews, came to Jesus, talking about God their Father, and pretending to be zealous for God and the doing of His will. But they were not willing to accept the Christ, the Son Whom God had sent into the world to save the world from sin and unrighteousness; and, because they were not willing, Jesus declared they were of their father the Devil, and that they did his will and not God's will. Man cannot do the will of God while his attitude towards God is not right, any more than that child who is in rebellion against the parent can do its father's will. A rebellious heart cannot do the will of parent or God. Note the parable which Christ spoke of the two sons. One with rebellion in his heart said, when told to go and work in the vineyard: "I will not go." And while rebellion ruled he went not. But afterwards he repented and went. The desire to do the father's will took possession of his heart and he went and did it. And the second son who outwardly assented, but went not, lacked as much as did the rebellious son the desire to do the father's will. He recognized the right of the father to command him to go into the vineyard, but he was so busy doing his own will, and seeking his own desires, that there was no room to desire the will of the father, and so went not.

HERE we have illustration of two classes of people in the world today. Both refuse to do the will of God. One class recognize the claim of God upon them, but being so occupied with their own affairs, and the doing of their own will, they fail to do the will of God. The other class in rebellion of heart refuse to recognize that God has any claim upon them. And would that it were true that all in such rebellion would repent and do the will of God. But, alas, many, many will not! But there are those who are coming. The will is being given up for God's will; the desire of man is being given up for the desire of God. The family circle of Jesus is growing. In ever widening stretch of arm He points out His mother and brethren, including not those who only say Lord, Lord, and go on doing their own will, but including those who do the will of God. The acceptance of Christ is the beginning of the doing the will of God. The successive steps are taken as we do the will of God as it is revealed to us. One step at a time, is God's order. God's Word assures us that "if any man willeth to do His will he shall know of the teaching." If you live up to the light you have, when you need more light for the next step, God will see that you have it.

DOING the will of God may bring suffering, but it means blessing in the end. But what comfort to know that the affliction is in line with the will of God. Peter says (and who is there who knew what suffering meant better than he—surely none, save it were Paul): "Wherefore let them also that suffer according to the will of God commit their souls in well doing to a faithful Creator." The Godly shall suffer persecution, but what glory is to some day shine out of that suffering! We say "Thy will be done" as though it were the hardest and saddest thing in all the world, when it is the most glorious, for that will will find its joy and realization ultimately in the best and most enduring. Doing God's will is a copartnership affair. Christ by His indwelling Spirit is present and ready to help us do what we cannot do ourselves. And not only does Christ's strength become our strength, but His desires become our desires. The Spirit maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered; and He which searcheth the hearts knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit, because He maketh intercession for the saints according to the will of God." Surely, this is blessed encouragement for those who desire to know and do the will of God. Christ the One Who gives us His righteousness, Christ the One Who dwells within to help us do the will of God. The highest end and aim of man should be, as Peter puts it, to no longer live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God. Let us will to do the will of God!

THE PLATFORM CONDENSED

What the Chicago Declaration Means When Translated Into Plain, Everyday English.

The real republican platform is a short document and runs as follows, as translated by the St. Louis Republic:

"We are the Grand Old Party. We are called a grand old fraud, the same being obvious; but we don't mind so long as we are comfortable, which we are, thank you; and we want to stay where we are, because it pays.

"We strenuously assert and insist that everything everywhere is all right and that everybody is satisfied. We are perfectly satisfied with ourselves and are unable to see that anything we have ever done is wrong. We are unable to view with anything but alarm anything which any other party under any circumstances whatever would do. 'Prosperity' is good enough for us, and the people may go to.

"There are no issues in this campaign. There is no trust question. The trusts are just as good as they can be and Mr. Roosevelt says that they are very good. We like them ourselves, at any rate; which means at any rate of duty. Speaking of the tariff, incidentally, we are its friends and especially is it our friend. We would no more think of revising it than of knocking the bottom out of our campaign barrels. In fact, we will not—no, not while Pierpont lunches with the president. Clipping the schedules would be like cutting coupons green. Let the 'good things' run on and ripen—is our motto; and it is for us to judge of what are and what are not good things.

"Somebody has said something about a boodle issue, but we ask the people to forget it. If the g. o. p. can forgive its own offenders, surely the least the people can do is to forget. The most the people can do—well, we don't like to contemplate that. We love the people, of course, but we are terribly afraid of them.

"We love the black people more than we do the whites. We love them so much just before election that we invite them to lunch. The rest of the time the southern people can feed them.

"We indorse everything Mr. Roosevelt has done. We don't like to, but we are compelled to. We shall argue that he is 'sane' and 'safe'—but our plan is to change the subject as soon as possible.

"The constitution is a very old-fashioned document and doesn't compare to Mr. Roosevelt's ideas of government. It should never be allowed to stand in his way. After all, what is the constitution between friends—the friends of protection, of monopoly and imperialism?

"Speaking of imperialism—ours is a great government, but it is nothing to what it will be when Mr. Roosevelt gets through with it. Imperialism among other things is a good excuse for blowing ourselves. It means new offices and will help the organization. The organization will help itself. We believe in government of the organization, by the organization and especially for the organization.

"Having thus put everything beyond all question, we call upon the people to stand by us. We hope they will not interrupt our era of prosperity. We believe with Lincoln that you can fool some of the people all of the time and all of the people some of the time. We should like to fool all of the people all of the time, but, realizing the impossibility of this, we shall be content to fool a majority of the people one more time."

NOTES FROM MANYWHERE.

——Wherever our platform is silent, the country can rely upon our candidate, and where our candidate is silent, the country can depend upon our platform.—Houston Post.

——Democratic confidence is an appreciable stable quality this year. It's going to be easy to beat the First Citizen of Oyster Bay if everybody keeps moving.—N. Y. Daily News.

——Depew denies that he likened the Roosevelt-Fairbanks ticket to "a bunch of firecrackers and a long stick of damp punk." But he hasn't said a better thing in a long time.—Albany Argus.

——In the case of Judge Parker the office seeks the man. In that of President Roosevelt it has been a relentless and not altogether scrupulous hunt of the man for the place.—Philadelphia Record.

——The universal admiration evoked by Judge Parker's courage is another proof of the accuracy of Hosea Biglow's statement that the people "du like a man thet ain't afeard."—Providence Journal.

——Secretary Shaw says that wages have kept pace with prices. The man who has to work to keep the dinner pail full can prove by his own experience that Secretary Shaw is talking for votes, not telling the truth.—The Commoner.

——The republican party refrained from denouncing Mormonism. Smoot was among the first to telegraph congratulations to Roosevelt. There is no "supersensitiveness" in the white house at present.—Buffalo Courier.

——Postmaster General Payne declares that his party will make the money question an issue. Does he refer to the money grafted for years from the post office department, involving the interesting question of "the man higher up?"—Atlanta Constitution.

——Col. Bryan said to the convention: "Twice I have borne the party standard, but to-day, as a private citizen, I am more interested in the democracy's success than when I was a candidate." This is a very high order of party patriotism. Col. Bryan has not disappointed his friends.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

THE MEETING AT JACKSON.

It Showed Once More That the Average Republican Is Devoid of All Finer Feelings.

Candidate Roosevelt made a mistake in not attending the mass meeting under the oaks at Jackson, Mich., to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the birth of the republican party where its first state convention was held. Probably he desired to give Secretary Hay a clear field for his lavish eulogy; but Mr. Hay is an old-school newspaper man and would not have been deterred by false modesty from publishing his paid puff. Candidate Fairbanks was present and was eulogized as "a man in every way fit for the highest place in the nation"—absit omen! Had Mr. Roosevelt attended he might have said something in his strenuous way about Fremont, whose name is not even mentioned in the reports of the proceedings. Fremont, "the Pathfinder," was a popular idol, the first republican candidate for the presidency, as Roosevelt is the last. Without Fremont there would have been no Lincoln and no Secretary Hay and no Roosevelt. A name so important to the party should not have been forgotten.

New York Town Topics makes the pertinent observation that all the speakers seemed paralyzed by the thought that the work of the republican party has been accomplished in 50 years, within the memory of living men. Formed to settle the negro question, yet the negro question is more unsettled and more threatening than ever. Its original mission ended by emancipation, the republican party then revived the whig theory of a protection tariff. In 50 years it has debauched the judiciary, made congress the tool of the bosses, twice usurped the government, destroyed our mercantile marine, disorganized our finances and indulged in reckless extravagances. After recent republican administrations the democracy has been obliged to come to the rescue of the country and restore a sane and safe policy. In 50 years the republican party has had only two presidents to whom it can point with pride—Lincoln and McKinley—and both were assassinated by madmen. Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Benjamin Harrison were not mentioned at the Michigan love-feast, and you never hear their names at any republican gathering. Oblivion alone can save them from the impartial verdict of posterity when the record of 50 years is reviewed.

SILENCE OF JUDGE PARKER

Only a High-Minded Man Could Have Acted as Did the Democratic Candidate.

Judge Parker held a high judicial office which separated him from party controversy, and when his nomination for the presidency was suggested he clearly made up his mind that he was precluded from any personal effort or expression on his own part either to help or hinder the result.

The Philadelphia Ledger (Ind.) says this unexampled and unpractical attitude was an offense to the practical politicians on all sides, who professed to see in it merely an evidence of cowardice or of coloriessness, and insisted that the candidate should be made to speak out. The firmness with which Judge Parker nevertheless adhered to his deliberate convictions of propriety, in the face of irritation and even of insult, showed a high ethical standard and a moral courage scarcely less than that so forcibly displayed later when the time to speak had come. The occasion chosen for his message to the convention was in absolutely logical accord with his previous silence. Before he was nominated, he had no opinion to express upon the convention's action; when he was made its candidate, he spoke with no uncertain sound, giving the convention opportunity to reconsider its action if dissatisfied.

Just a Word About Plows.

A farmer votes for protection. In turn the manufacturers of American plows combine and advance the price of their product. The farmer pays an excessive price for his plow—probably a third more than it should cost him. The manufacturers may have a surplus of stock. This is exported. But it cannot be sold in foreign markets at the domestic price, especially in free trade markets. But it does not need to be sold at that price. Its manufacture is so cheap, especially under consolidated operation, that the freight to South America can be paid and the plow may still be sold there below the home price, and vastly lower than the American price—although the latter is not affected by marine freight charges. The farmer may honestly believe in protection, but that does not alter the fact that all the benefits go to the manufacturer of the plow, and the farmer pays them.—Kansas City Star.

——Agricultural reports indicate that the grape crop this year will be the largest in the country's history. Now, step up, Gen. Grosvenor, and claim credit for the republican party for placing appendicitis within the reach of the humblest citizen.—Washington Post.

Why We Can Be Hopeful.

With a deficiency in the revenues, with prosperity dwindling, with railroads and mills reducing their payrolls by the thousand, with labor becoming restive and business men apprehensive, with a republican record of unprecedented extravagance and suppressed investigations, and a president whose ruling passion is to glorify force and whose impulsive recklessness has occasioned widespread distrust and alarm, Judge Parker ought to win.—N. Y. World.

Women who work, whether in the house, store, office or factory, very rarely have the ability to stand the strain. The case of Miss Frankie Orser, of Boston, Mass., is interesting to all women, and adds further proof that woman's great friend in need is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered misery for several years. My back ached and I had bearing down pains, and frequent headaches. I would often wake from a restful sleep in such pain and misery that it would be hours before I could close my eyes again. I dreaded the long nights and weary days. I could do no work. I consulted different physicians hoping to get relief, but finding that their medicines did not cure me, I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it was highly recomended to me. I am glad that I did so, for I soon found that it was the medicine for my case. Very soon I was rid of every ache and pain and restored to perfect health. I feel splendid, have a fine appetite, and have gained in weight a lot."—MISS FRANKIE ORSER, 14 Warrenton St., Boston, Mass.

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak, sick and discouraged, and exhausted with each day's work. Some derangement of the feminine organs is responsible for this exhaustion, following any kind of work or effort. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you just as it has thousands of other women.

The case of Mrs. Lennox, which follows, proves this.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Last winter I broke down suddenly and had to seek the advice of a doctor. I felt sore all over, with a pounding in my head, and a dizziness which I had never experienced before. I had a miserable appetite, nothing tasted good, and gradually my health broke down completely. The doctor said I had female weakness, but, although I took his medicine faithfully, I found no relief.

"After two months I decided to try what a change would do for me, and as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was strongly recommended to me I decided to try it. Within three days I felt better, my appetite returned, and I could sleep. In another week I was able to sit up part of the day, and in ten days more I was well. My strength had returned, I gained fourteen pounds, and felt better and stronger than I had for years. I gratefully acknowledge its merit. Very sincerely yours, MRS. BERT E. LENNOX, 120 East 4th St., Dixon, Ill."

BOONE CO., RECORDER
Wednesday, - - Aug. 3, 1904.
W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher

THE political mud-slinger will be in his glory in the next few weeks.

THE Covington column of the Cincinnati Enquirer has been swung into line for Rhinock for congress.

THOMAS TAGGART of Indianapolis, was elected chairman of the Democratic National committee, last week, and Urey Woodson, of Kentucky, secretary.

A. P. Collins, one of the county's oldest and most worthy citizens died at his home near Richwood, Monday, after a long illness. Funeral tomorrow at Florence.

I find nothing better for liver derangement and constipation than Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets.—L. F. Andrews, Des Moines, Iowa. For sale by all Druggists.

The Auditor of the War Department has rendered a decision giving additional pay to three Kentucky regiments mustered in for the Spanish-American War. The First regiment is to receive $1,749,29, Second regiment $570,-36, Third regiment $778,49.

A FRIEND of the RECORDER desires it to publish the "Sunday Law." As it is quite lengthy the following synopsis is given. Besides what is an unlawful act on anyother day of the week, the following is unlawful on Sunday. To barber, to play billiards or pool, to hunt, to work. For each of the above offenses there is a fine.

BELOW is the new game law for this State, and which is of interest:

No person shall kill or pursue with such intent, or have in his possession when so killed any rabbit or squirrel between the fifteenth day of September and the fifteenth day of November in each year, provided anyone may catch rabbits with dogs or snares.

The Navy Department has decided that it has no authority to permit the raising of the hulk of the battleship Maine. The decision was written by Judge-Advocate-General Diehl. It is in accordance with letters written by Judge Darling in answer to inquiries from wreckers who thought that perhaps they could make a profitable speculation by floating the wreck.

THE State Central Committee met in Covington last Wednesday and took up the Hodge-Rhinock contest, and decided unanimously, that Joseph L. Rhinock is the regular Democratic nominee for Congress in this district, and ordered that his name be placed under the Democratic device on the ticket at the November election. The Hodge people made no fight before the committee.

The post-office department has ruled that no sheriff, deputy sheriff, police officer, or jailer, has any right to open the mail of prisoners, or persons in custody accused of a crime. The postal laws distinctly forbid an officer from prying into the affairs of a prisoner. The letters and all other mail of prisoners must be directly delivered to the person addressed unopen. No law authorizes any officer to tamper with mail matter. A civil officer has no more right under federal law than the ordinary citizen. The officer or citizen who fails to respect the mail of another person subjects himself to indictment for an offence punishable by a fine of $500, imprisonment at hard labor a year or more. The above ruling is wrong.

United States Internal Revenue Commissioner, John W. Yerkes, has just issued the following very important ruling, which should prove of interest to physscians in the State: "A practicing physician who without holding the special tax stamp of a retail dealer under the internal revenue laws of the United States, furnishes his patients with distilled spirits, wine, malt liquors under conditions consulting sale of these liquors directly or indirectly, involves himself in liability to criminal prosecutions under these laws unless he shows that the liquors have been compounded into medicines by the addition of some drug or medical ingredient. If the liquors are not so compounded he can not sell them even for medical use, without involving himself in special tax liability."

The great presses of the government printing office will soon begin to rattle off millions of copies of speeches delivered in the house and senate at the last session of congress by both Democrats and Republicans. These will be used as campaign documents and sent through the mail under the frank of the one who delivered the particular speech. The pamphlets are mailed as parts of the Congressional Record and therefore, as public documents, are sendable through the post-office under the congressional frank.

A unique fire test is to be made in Louisville in the next few weeks. The new Seelbach's Hotel, now approaching completion at Fourth and Walnut, is to be set on fire and every attempt made to burn it down. The building is claimed to be absolutely fire proof, and the test is to be made after the building is complete and ready for the furniture. One room is to be filled with wood shavings and other combustibles, the fire started and then the door closed. The fire department is not to be called, except to protect adjoining buildings should the test prove that the building is not fire-proof. The deliberate effort to burn a magnificent new building is rather unusual and the test will be watched with interest.

SOME of the counties in this State will hold Democratic primary elections on the day of the regular election in next November. Where it has been tried it is said it has proven a great vote getter for the ticket voted for at the regular election, and that is one reason why primary elections on regular election days are becoming popular. Now, in this county there is a large Democratic vote that never comes out to a regular election, but a very large proportion of that stay-at-home vote is always found at the primaries, so would it not be good politics on the part of the Democrats in this county to have the primary to nominate candidates for the regular election in 1905, held on Tuesday after the first Monday in next November? Besides increasing the Democratic vote at the November election, a primary election would be the means of increasing the delegate vote of the county in the State and district conventions. This is a matter well worth being considered by those who are looking after the party's affairs in this county.

There is not much wheat in the central part of this county, but "taters" and hoecake will be plentiful, and that is some consolation.

The people of Walton are beginning to realize the benefits to be derived by their town from a good school. It brings to them the best class of citizens.

Some neighborhoods in the southern part of this county have suffered badly for rain, and the crops therein will be considerably injured by the drought.

It will be only a short time now until the luscious homegrown watermelon will make its appearance on the market, much to the delight of the small boy and others.

Notice.—Persons having stock must keep it up at night as well as during the day. I shall take up all the stock I find at large at any time. B. B. ALLPHIN, Sheriff.

There is some very fine tobacco in this part of the county, while in other neighborhoods, where it has not been so favorable, the crop has anything but a promising appearance.

Quite a number of Boone county people have attended the Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, but from now on the number of visitors from the county will be greatly increased.

R. B. Huey, of Locust Grove, sold his farm, last week, to J. R. Akin and Sons, of McVille, at $30 per acre. Mr. Huey will move to Walton, where he purchased property some time since.

Tony Bentler's separator broke down at Henry Barlow's, in Pleasant Valley neighborhood, last Wednesday. The break was of such a character he deemed it a loss of time to attempt to repair it, and purchased the new separator that belonged to Jeff Rouse.

While cleaning up at J. E. Smith's threshing yard, one day last week, Buzz Rockweil, who was feeding Hewitt's machine, let a large sheet get caught by the cylinder, around which it rapped until the machine was "choked down." It required some time to cut the sheet out. Fortunately the machine was not broken.

Some of the stockholders of the Kentucky Oil & Refining Co., received postals last week that presented a state of case in regard to the affairs of the company that is anything but encouraging. No doubt oil stock held here could be purchased very low now.

O. P. Conner received a letter from John L. Rouse, of Georgia, Monday, in which was enclosed a sample of exceedingly fine White Burley tobacco which Mr. Rouse raised last year. He says there is any quantity of fine tobacco land for sale cheap near him.

Ed Rice, of Idlewild neighborhood, had bad luck with his Wilstar colt, which he had sold for $100 to be delivered in a few weeks. He was handling it for the purpose of taking it to the fairs, and it reared up and fell, breaking one of its fore legs. It had to be killed 200 pounds of fish and 100 kegs of beer were taken out to Rock Springs, some three miles back of Grant, for an outing of about 60 persons, this week.—Rabbit Hash item in Rising Sun Recorder.

O. P. Conner has bought of Judge John M. Lassing the property he purchased of J. C. Revill, the Judge reserving a strip 96 feet wide the entire length of the street south of the property. Price, $3,500. The Judge still owns the Morgan Academy lot, and the parcels he purchased of W. A. Gaines and F. Riddell.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c at all Drug Stores.

Judge Lassing has purchased Mrs. Anna Hind's handsome residence in Walton, and will move into it about the middle of this month. Everybody in Burlington bewails the loss of the Judge and his estimable wife, and it will be many a long day before the town will acquire two more as valuable citizens. The people of Walton are certainly to be congratulated on having them become citizens there.

No Substitute Offered.

Harmony Lodge I. O. O. F. of Big Bone, did herself proud, last Friday night, in the matter of entertaining visiting brethren. The occasion was that of a district meeting and the Harmony brethren anticipated the presence of a large number of visitors, and to refresh the inner man, they barbecued a bullock, and made burgoo that rivaled in quantity and surpassed in quality that in many instances for pretentions political gatherings. The first announcement that greeted the visitors upon their arrival was an invitation to eat and the last request made of them about midnight was to eat, and both received a hearty response. Both editions of the supper were served in a large wareroom, and besides the barbecued meat and burgoo there were numerous other articles of food to tempt the appetite, and several waiters were on the alert to see that every person present was fed. Odd-Fellows to the number of 100 were present and each had his appetite with him. At the hall the work in the initiatory and first degrees was exemplified in the most impressive manner, the Harmony team doing the initiatory work, while a mixed team conferred the first degree. Harmony lodge has a nice, commodious home, and is well prepared for doing the work in the several degrees. The membership of the lodge is composed largely of young men, who are taking great interest in the order. The work having been completed good talks were made by several of the brethren, it being conceded that brother Shotwell, of Morning Star, after a little good natured prodding by some of his home brethren, made the speech of his life and of the evening. The meeting was a complete success from every standpoint, and when the visitors took their departure their hearts were filled with gratitude for the excellent reception they had met, and felt that the evening had been well spent. The Petersburg delegation went down on the Pauline, while the Daisey carried the Bellevue crowd, and the ride, going and coming, was delightful. The water was as smooth as a sheet of ice, and, like a large mirror, reflected the beautiful scenery afforded by the Indiana and Kentucky hills.

NOTES.

The next district meeting will be held with Morning Star lodge on the second Wednesday night in September.

Messrs. Diers, Beverly and S. L. Edwards represented the lodge at Walton, and were worthy of the positions they filled.

Dr. Hopkins, of Rabbit Hash, and one of his Pendleton county friends came very near not showing up until the eleventh hour.

Orvill Alloway, of Petersburg, was the oldest member present and enjoyed the proceedings as much as any of the younger men.

The Petersburg delegation was composed largely of young men headed by Solon Early, J. W. Berkshire and B. F. Jarrell.

F. P. Walton, of Covington, was there. Frank has contracted a habit, lately, of connecting with all the good things in the two orders to which he belongs.

Esq. Geo. W. Baker, was present and enjoyed the proceedings. He is a member of many years standing, and has seen the personal of his lodge changed almost entirely.

One of the most enjoyable features of the occasion to J. J. Walton, was the moonlight walk from the springs to Hamilton. The weather was pleasant and the road in excellent condition.

On the return trip the Pauline and the Daisy made a quick run to Rising Sun, at which place the former became tired of bringing up the rear and took the lead, her passengers cheered vigorously.

Among the visitors was D. M. Chandler, of Pleasant Hill, Missouri, a member of the lodge to which our ex-county man, Tillman H. Cloud, belongs. He was enthusiastic in his praise of the way Kentucky Odd-Fellows do things.

When the Bellevue crowd arrived it broke neither ranks nor step until one of the springs had been flanked. Some of them had never tasted the product of the noted spring, and thought they had been given a dipper in which a deposed egg had exploded, and their facial contortions were ludicrous.

A DRASTIC ACTION.

Venezuela Seizes Properties of New York and Bermudez Asphalt Co.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, July 30.—Ambrose Howard Carner, the former managing director of the New York and Bermudez Asphalt Co. (who was recently appointed receiver of the company as a result of the suit brought by President Castro), accompanied by Attorney General Irabarrer, arrived at Guanaco Thursday on the Venezuelan gunboat Bolivar and, backed by Venezuelan soldiers, took possession of the properties of the company, including the asphalt lake, against the energetic protests of Capt. Cooley, the company's representative. The steamer Viking, belonging to the company, escaped seizure and reached this port with the news of the government's drastic action.

Foreign companies residing in Venezuela are alarmed over President Castro's aggressive policy, which is directed also against French, British and German companies.

Washington, July 30.—The action of the Venezuelan government in seizing the properties of the New York and Bermudez Asphalt Co. has caused an unpleasant impression in government circles. Officials are unable to understand the reason for what appears to be such an arbitrary proceedure as the supreme court of Venezuela heretofore has upheld the claims of the company to its properties. Following notice of the action of the Venezuelan government a few days ago in securing an attachment against the company with a view it was understood of obtaining damages because of aid alleged to have been given the revolutionists. United States Minister Herbert W. Bowen, at Caracas, was instructed to make a full and complete report to the state department of the various illegal steps which have been taken by Venezuela together with other information bearing on the subject that may be available and pertinent. His report is anxiously awaited and on it will depend the course to be taken by the United States for the protection of the vested rights of the company, which seem to be so seriously endangered by the attitude of the Castro government.

AGAIN DEPORTED.

Cripple Creek, Col., July 30.—Patrick McCarvel, one of the men who were deported over the Kansas line by the military early in June, returned to Victor, where he owns property, including a large hall and a business block valued at $25,000. When McCarvel stepped from the train he was taken in charge by Maj. H. A. Naylor, acting city marshal. McCarvel was allowed to attend to some business affairs when he was placed on board the first outgoing train with a warning that in future police protection would not be afforded him if he again returned. McCarvel originally was deported for openly expressing sympathy with the Miners' union and denouncing Gov. Peabody and his military subordinates.

ROOSEVELT NOTIFIED.

Told of Action of Republican National Convention.

He Made a Speech of Acceptance—The Political Campaign of 1904 Was Formally Opened at His Home on Sagamore Hill.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 28.—Theodore Roosevelt Wednesday formally opened the political campaign of 1904 at his beautiful country home, Sagamore Hill. Standing on a spot made dear to him by the associations of a life time, surrounded by his family and relatives and friends, and in the presence of an assemblage of men distinguished in all walks of life, he formally received and accepted the nomination of the republican party for president of the United States.

President Roosevelt's speech of acceptance was characteristically forceful, and direct in argument and replete with epigrammatic passages. It was received with immense enthusiasm by his auditors. Prosperity may be said to have been the keynote of the address, while the achievements of the republican party in statesmanship at home and abroad were depicted with the touch of a skilled hand.

As the president concluded his speech, Speaker Joseph G. Cannon, chairman of the notification committee, grasped his hand and congratulated him cordially.

The speech of the president will be circulated extensively in the campaign, as, aside from the letter of acceptance which he will issue in a few weeks, it will be his only public utterance during the campaign.

All of the details of arrangements for the ceremony of notification had been worked out carefully, and from the arrival of the special train from New York with the notification committee abroad, until its departure, not a hitch occurred.

In accordance with the wish of the president the ceremony was made as simple as possible.

The formal notification of the action of the convention was made on behalf of a committee representing every state and territory in the United States, by Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the national house of representatives.

Shortly after noon all of the guests had arrived, but the ceremony of notification did not begin until 12:37 p. m. After some consultation between the president, Speaker Cannon, Chairman Cortelyou and Secretary Loeb, it was decided to hold the exercises on the veranda. The heat was too great to admit of the guests being requested to sit on the lawn. It was found that all the guests could easily assemble on the veranda, within hearing distance of the speakers.

The ceremony was entirely informal. As Speaker Cannon, attired in a dark gray frock suit, stepped up on a chair standing near the veranda railing, he was given a cordial reception.

Mrs. Roosevelt, surrounded by her children, Kermit, Ethel and Quentin, stood facing Mr. Cannon, almost in the center of the crowd.

President Roosevelt shook Mr. Cannon's hand heartily at the conclusion of his speech, and then mounted the chair to deliver his address in response. He was given so cordial a reception that it was quite a minute before he could proceed. He was in excellent voice, and though he followed the printed text of his speech, he seldom referred to it. The address was punctuated by applause.

The visitors then assembled on the lawn and the group was taken by a photographer.

NATIONAL CHAIRMAN.

Democratic Committee Elected Thos. Taggart, of Indiana.

New York, July 27.—The national democratic committee met here Tuesday and unanimously elected Thomas Taggart, of Indiana, chairman. NEW YORK ANARCHISTS.

They Voiced Their Approval of the Assassination of Von Plehve.

New York, July 30.—Five thousand persons, all that could crowd into Cooper Union, cheered themselves hoarse Friday night over the death of the Russian minister of the interior, Von Plehve. The great hall was dotted with anarchists, who in frequent frenzies of excitement waved red bandanas and voiced their approval of the assassination. At every mention of the bomb thrower there was a din that lasted several minutes, and cries of "Legio, Legio, Legio," echoed through the hall. The mass meeting was held by the United Russian revolutionists to celebrate Von Plehve's death, which they believe will mark a new era of liberty for their brethren in Russia. The leaders of the revolutionists in this city endeavored to keep the anarchists away, but the meeting was public and the latter quietly stole in one at a time. The police estimated that 500 anarchists were present.

EX-JUDGE M'KOONS.

Letter Received From the Missing Man Dated El Paso, Tex.

New York, July 30.—A letter was received in this city Friday from former Judge Daniel McKoons, who mysteriously disappeared three weeks ago, stating that he was in El Paso, Tex. The letter, which was addressed to Judge McKoons' son, was rambling and incoherent and indicated that the writer's mind was affected. It was represented at the time of Judge McKoons' disappearance that he had been kidnaped and was being held for ransom, but this view was not accepted by the police. Since that time the missing man's son has received several letters from widely separated parts of the country.

STEAMER ARAGONIA.

She Is Detained at Astoria, Ore., Pending Instructions.

Portland, Ore., July 30.—The Portland and Asiatic Co.'s steamer Aragonia, which sailed from this port for the Orient Thursday, carrying an assorted cargo of flour, railroad materials, tobacco, etc., is detained at Astoria, pending further instructions from her charterers. It is understood in shipping circles that the Aragonia will not follow the usual route of steamers sailing from northwest ports for the far east, but that her course will be corrected as to minimize the possibility of capture by Russian war vessels. The Aragonia carries a cargo similar to that carried by the seized Arabia and largely consigned in like manner.

THE SMOOT INVESTIGATION.

It Will Be Continued in Utah Soon After the Election.

Esopus, N. Y., July 30.—Senator Fred Dubois, a member of the committee on privileges and elections, which conducted the investigation of the protests against Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, retaining his seat in the senate, announced here Friday that the investigation will be continued in Utah soon after election. It is likely that the committee will also visit Mormon settlements in Idaho, where especial inquiry will be made into the subject of church domination of politics. The investigation was started early in the last session of congress and continued until adjournment.

Killed at the Supper Table.

KILLED BY A BOMB.

M. Von Plehve, Russian Minister of Interior, Assassinated.

The Assassin, a Finn, is in the Hospital Severely and Perhaps Fatally Injured By the Explosion of His Own Bomb.

St. Petersburg, July 29.—M. Von Plehve, minister of the interior, was assassinated at 9:50 o'clock Thursday morning by a bomb thrown at his carriage while he was driving to the Baltic station to take a train for the palace at Peterhof, where he was to make his weekly report to the emperor.

The assassination is believed to be the outcome of a widespread plot, the existence of which has been suspected for several days. Numerous arrests have already been made, including that of the assassin, a young man who is believed to be a Finn named Legio and who is now in a hospital severely and perhaps fatally injured by the explosion of his own bomb. An accomplice of Legio, also apparently a Finn, but whose name is unknown, has been arrested. He had in his possession a bomb which he tried to throw but he was overpowered by the police just in time to prevent great loss of life.

The assassin wore a brown overcoat and a railroad official's cap. He stood on the sidewalk just as Minister Von Plehve's carriage was about to cross the canal bridge near the station. The minister was escorted by a number of detectives on bicycles, and one of them jostled the assassin, who then rushed into the road and threw the bomb after the carriage. The missile struck the hind wheel and exploded with fearful force, killing or wounding over a score of persons. Minister Von Plehve and his coachman were killed outright and an officer of the guard was fatally injured.

One of the cyclist detectives arrested the assassin, who endeavored to escape though wounded by splinters in the face, arm and abdomen. He made no attempt at resistance, however, when seized by the detective, and confessed his crime, but refused to give his name.

The police immediately after the explosion arrested a suspicious individual who took refuge in a hotel opposite the scene of the tragedy. He carried a bomb similar to that thrown by Legio. As soon as the police saw the bomb they scattered but an employe of the hotel rushed up behind the accomplice and pinned his arms.

The force of the explosion was so terrific that it only broke every window within a radius of half a mile, but reduced the heavy paving stones to powder, heaved up the pavement and flung a heavy piece of the ironwork of the carriage across the canal, severing the thick mast of a barge, which fell, stunning the captain of the barge. Everybody in the street was knocked down and more or less bruised.

The mangled remains of the minister of the interior were conveyed to a humble chapel adjoining the station, the windows of which miraculously escaped destruction. The priests and people, with characteristic Russian piety, at once joined in a solemn requiem. The square in front of the station was filled with a reverent crowd of peasants and laborers and the busy hum of traffic was silenced.

A no less impressive service was conducted at the minister's stately residence Thursday evening to which only intimate friends were invited. The magnificent staircase and the reception rooms were draped in black. The body of the minister was completely covered by a white shroud which concealed the ghastly mutilations. It reposed in a black and silver casket in a corner of the vast hall surrounded by luxuriant palms.

As Minister of Justice Muraviefl was driving to the Peterhof palace Thursday afternoon to report to Emperor Nicholas the assassination of Minister of the Interior Von Plehve, stones were thrown at him and his carriage windows were broken. The identity of the minister's assailants has not yet been discovered.

CHIEF OF POLICE SAVED.

Newberry, S. C.—W. H. Harris, chief of police of Newberry, says: "I suffered for a number of years with kidney complaint. There was a dull, aching across the small of my back that was worse at night and made me feel miserable all the time. The kidney secretions were dark and full of sediment, and lack of control compelled me to rise a number of times during the night. Between this annoyance and the backache it was impossible for me to get much sleep and my health was being undermined. I tried a number of remedies, but nothing helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. The use of this remedy according to directions promptly brought about a change for the better. After using two boxes the backache all left me, the kidney secretions cleared up and the action of the kidneys became normal."

Mustard Paste.

For a mustard paste take one-half flour and one-half mustard and blend thoroughly before adding water. Apply between linen or flannel cloths. When the paste begins to redden the skin, remove and rub the affected part with sweet oil. Then replace the plaster. If this method is followed the mustard may be left on without injury to the patient for a considerable length of time. This is a physician's prescription.—N. Y. Post.

There were 317 clear days in the year.

BUNCH TOGETHER.

Coffee Has a Curious Way of Finally Attacking Some Organ.

Ails that come from coffee are cumulative, that is, unless the coffee is taken away new troubles are continually appearing and the old ones get worse.

"To begin with," says a Kansan, "I was a slave to coffee just as thousands of others to-day; thought I could not live without drinking strong coffee every morning for breakfast and I had sick headaches that kept me in bed several days every month. Could hardly keep my food on my stomach, but would vomit as long as I could throw anything up and when I could get hot coffee to stay on my stomach I thought I was better.

"Well, two years ago this spring I was that sick with rheumatism I could not use my right arm to do anything, had heart trouble, was nervous. My nerves were all unstrung and my finger nails and tips were blue as if I had a chill all the time, and my face and hands yellow as a pumpkin. My doctor said it was heart disease and rheumatism and my neighbors said I had Bright's Disease and was going to die.

"Well, I did not know what on earth was the matter and every morning would drag myself out of bed and go to breakfast, not to eat anything, but to force down some more coffee. Then in a little while I would be so nervous, my heart would beat like everything.

"Finally one morning I told my husband I believed coffee was the cause of this trouble and that I thought I would try Postum, which I had seen advertised. He said 'All right,' so we got Postum, and although I did not like it at first I got right down to business and made it according to directions, then it was fine and the whole family got to using it, and I tell you it has worked wonders for me. Thanks to Postum in place of the poison, coffee, I now enjoy good health, have not been in bed with sick headache for two years, although I had it for 30 years before I began Postum and my nerves are now strong and I have no trouble from my heart or from the rheumatism.

"I consider Postum a necessary article of food on my table. My friends who come here and taste my Postum say it is delicious." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

STRIKE IS EXTENDING.

Meat Workers in New York Are Ordered Out.

Probabilities of a Settlement By Opposing Interests in Chicago Are as Remote as Ever—Packers Will Ignore Unions.

Chicago, July 30.—Unable to arrange a conference with the representatives of the New York packers, Michael J. Donnelly, president of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America, has ordered a strike of all the members of his organization employed in New York by Schwarschild & Sulzberger and the United Dressed Beef Co.

The order, which was telegraphed to New York Friday night, did not go into effect until Sunday, as the men in the eastern packing plants do not report for work on Saturday. The decision to extend the strike to the east was not taken until after Mr. Donnelly and his associates had spent the day in a fruitless effort to arrange a meeting with representatives of the eastern packers who came to Chicago Thursday night to acquaint themselves with the situation here.

That the probabilities of a settlement by the opposing interests in Chicago are as remote as ever was plainly demonstrated Friday when Henry C. Wallace, of Des Moines, Ia., and A. L. Ames, of Buckingham, Ia., called on the different packers with a proposition from the strike leaders offering to concede the most important point in the controversy if the employers would agree to renew peace negotiations. Mr. Wallace and Mr. Ames were told by the packers that there was no possible chance for any further conciliatory move and that the packers were now in a position where they could force the labor unions and that they proposed to do so. The packers' answer was delivered to the strike leaders and the men from Iowa left for home Friday night.

In one disturbance a mob captured a loaded meat wagon after it had left the stockyards Friday, upset the wagon and threw the meat into the street. The most serious riot of the day occurred in South Chicago, where five men were arrested for trying to prevent the delivery of meat. Although the strikers and their friends became very boisterous when it became known that President Golden had been arrested and made all sorts of threats, no one was seriously injured in any of the many disturbances that occurred. The police have the situation so well in hand that before the would-be rioters can get fairly started in their purpose they are scattered by the blue coats in all directions.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Both the packers and the strikers spent Sunday in strengthening any weak spots that could be found in their defenses preparatory to another week of effort to bring their opponents to terms. Notwithstanding that it was Sunday, all the plants were operated during the forenoon in order to get rid of the live stock that had been left over from last week. The remainder of the day was spent by the employers in installing new men in the strikers' places and arranging many of the small details which had been overlooked last week during the heat of the conflict. Over 1,000 new men were added Sunday to the number already at work in the different plants. Among Sunday's arrivals were many skilled laborers, something the packers have been sadly in need of ever since the strike started. The employers have experienced little difficulty in procuring all the unskilled men necessary to operate the plants to their full capacity, but there has been a decided scarcity of skilled workmen and for this reason the by-products of all animals killed have been let go to waste.

The strike leaders spent the greater part of Sunday in preparing a statement to the public. In this statement the unionists explain their side of the controversy, declaring that it is the packers and not the men who are responsible for the present state of affairs in the packing industry.

In a fight at the Nelson Morris plant Sunday afternoon between Andrew Sims and John Davis, both non-union workmen from New Albany, Ind., the former was stabbed and killed. Simms was employed by the packing company as a waiter in the improvised dining room which has been fitted up for the men employed as strike breakers. Davis was employed as a cook by the same concern. While eating dinner Sunday they became involved in a quarrel over the food. In the fight that followed Davis was getting decidedly the worst of it and, drawing a knife, stabbed Simms three times. Simms died in the hospital two hours later and Davis was arrested.

SENDS AN ULTIMATUM.

Germany Demands of Venezuela Payment of Interest On Claims.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Aug. 1.—It is reported that Herr Peldram, the German minister at Caracas, has delivered an ultimatum demanding the immediate payment by the Venezuelan governmnt of the interest on the amount of the award to be paid to Germany as stipulated in the protocols signed by Herbert W. Bowen, representing Venezuela, in February, 1903. If this demand is not complied with, the report says, the minister will leave Caracas August 4.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Not a little surprise is evidenced here over the news from Willemstad, as the general impression has been that President Castro was meeting the demands of the protocols signed by Mr. Bowen. Germany, Italy and Great Britain, acting to the decision of The Hague tribunal, were to have preferential treatment in the payment of their claims against Venezuela after which the non-blockading powers were to be paid. All the payments were to be made out of 30 per cent. of the customs receipts of the ports of Laguayra and Porto Cabello, which were to be set aside for that purpose. There has been a feeling of dissatisfaction among some of the members of the diplomatic corps at Caracas over various acts of President Castro and some reports which have reached here have intimated that a full 30 per cent. of the receipts at the two posts named was not being set aside for the payments of the claims as provided in the protocol. This may have a bearing on the action which is said to have been taken by the German minister.

At the same time provision also was made that if Venezuela failed to keep the terms of the protocol the Belgian government was to take charge of the customs at the ports named and administer them until the claims of the powers were settled along the lines agreed on. This, the officials here think, should remove the necessity for any arbitrary action by any of the powers signatory to the protocols.

KUROPATKIN'S ARMY.

It is Almost Completely Surrounded at Port Arthur.

There Are Some Unofficial Indications That Matters Are Rapidly Maturing For Either An Engagement or a Retreat.

Liao Yang, July 29.—The Russian retirement from Ta Tche Kiao was terribly galling to the rank and file who, after two days' hard fighting, held their positions and believed themselves on the eve of a great victory.

St. Petersburg, July 30.—It is announced that there was no news from Port Arthur and no more reason to credit the report that it had fallen than the many similar ones previously in circulation.

Che Foo, July 30.—Refugees who have just arrived from Port Arthur confirm previous reports that a general assault has been begun by the Japanese on that fortress and they declare that the Russians are sanguine that the Japanese could not succeed in capturing the place even though they had twice as many troops. The Russians, according to the refugees' story, are still hoping for succor from Gen. Kuropatkin. They are unwilling to believe the reports of his defeat at Ta Tche Kiao. The refugees further confirm the reports that the Russian fleet is in a state of repair, but say that the fleet is unwilling to attack that of Adm. Togo on account of the mines which the Japanese place nightly at the entrance to the harbor. It was believed at Port Arthur that if the Vladivostok squadron or reinforcements from Gen. Kuropatkin should arrive the Russian fleet would take the risk of going out.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—Although public attention has been distracted from the events of the war during the past week, first because of the fear of international complications, and second, because of the assassination of Minister of the Interior Von Plehve, the situation at the front is regarded as critical.

The enveloping movement of the three Japanese armies of Gens. Kuroki, Nodzu and Oku around Gen. Kuropatkin's position appears to be almost complete, and the extended line of the Japanese seems to be the only drawback to concerted action. It is realized here that the Russian general must now either fight or withdraw the whole army northward. He is being closely pressed at Hai Cheng. At that place Gen. Kuroki's northern column makes it extremely dangerous to remain there, because, while holding the position to give battle against the Japanese, whose advance is notoriously always slow and careful, Gen. Kuroki might pass through and cut his railway communications to Liao Yang.

While nothing is definitely known there are some unofficial indications that matters are rapidly maturing for either a battle or a retreat. For instance, the refusal to accept further press telegrams at Hai Cheng is shown by the fact that one of the press correspondents had to ride through to Mukden to file an account of the Ta Tche Kiao fight. This might be construed either that preparations are making for a retirement or that the wires are very crowded, incident to a concentration at Hai Cheng or Liao Yang.

A few days are expected to determine which course Gen. Kuropatkin has elected to pursue.

There is no inclination here to doubt that there may have been pretty severe fighting at the outer positions of Port Arthur, possibly accompanied by a bombardment from the sea, but it is not believed that the Japanese are yet ready to storm the fortress. Rr. Adm. Withoft, in command of the naval forces at Port Arthur, is relied on to put to sea if the condition of the fortress becomes desperate. While no definite information is obtainable the report that the fortress is short of ammunition is considered by the public as the most disquieting feature of the situation there.

The Vladivostok squadron is expected back in port Sunday or Monday.

London, Aug. 1.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at New-Chwang, in a dispatch dated July 31, says that there has been heavy fighting for two days in the marshes south of Haicheng during the gradual Russian retirement from To Tobe Kimo.

THE DEPORTED MINERS.

Council Are Devising Means to Enable Them to Return.

Denver, Aug. 1.—Attorneys H. N. Hawkins and John H. Murphy, counsel for the Western Federation of Miners, are devising ways and means to enable the deported Cripple Creek miners to return to their homes. Papers are being drawn and application will be made to some court, possibly the federal court, for an injunction restraining the citizens' alliance and mine owners from interfering with any deportes who return to the Cripple Creek district.

The Western federation officials are also making arrangements to reopen the union stores in Cripple Creek and Victor that were raided and looted by mobs on June 6 and 7.

Sheriff Edward Bell, of Teller county, has advised against the reopening of the stores or the return of the deportes, fearing that such action will lead to violence.

MURDER OR SUICIDE?

Dead Body of a Pittsburger Found Near Wheeling, W. Va.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 1.—The body of Joseph Lamar, jr., of Pittsburg, was found Sunday afternoon in an advanced state of decomposition in a clump of willows on the river shore near the heart of the city. When the body was lifted a knife with a three-inch blade fell from the inside of the shirt and an examination showed that it had been plunged through the heart.

Lamar left his home in Pittsburg ten days ago after a quarrel declaring that he would return a corpse. It is not believed that he suicided, however, as his over and undershirts were carefully buttoned and were not cut. Physicians say he would not have had the strength to do this after plunging the knife into his heart.

He has prepared a letter to Miss Gould explaining the nature of the damage.

Two Negro Suspects Taken to the Jail in Savannah, Ga.

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 1.—Will Cato and Paul Reed, Negroes, suspected of the murder and burning of the Hodge family near Statesboro, were brought here Sunday morning for safe keeping. Evidence has developed that tends to show a still more heinous crime was committed upon the persons of Mrs. Hodge and her 9-year-old daughter, Kittie, before they were killed. That robbery was not the prime motive of the crime is shown by the finding of a purse containing several dollars near where the body of Mrs. Hodge was found.

WHITTAKER G. A. R. POST.

It Will Separate From the Kentucky Department.

Louisville, Ky., July 29.—To emphasize their refusal to be led by a member of the race they fought to free, the members of Walter C. Whittaker Post No. 75 will separate from the Kentucky department and take a special train to the G. A. R. encampment at Boston in August and after arriving there may bring up the negro question. When Department Commander Bausmith, of Kentucky, took up the arrangements for sending the Kentucky delegation to the encampment he appointed W. H. Pearce, junior vice commander, to lead the delegation in the parade, the senior commander and Commander Bausmith himself not desiring to attend. On account of the fact that Pearce is a Negro, Whittaker post took the action referred to and members are communicating with other Kentucky posts in regard to the matter, expecting that these may join Whittaker post in the stand taken.

At the recent state encampment of the Kentucky G. A. R., held at Frankfort, a movement was started looking to the ultimate separation of the Negro and the white members. It was shunted aside but the order in Kentucky is much agitated over the matter, which will undoubtedly come up again. About one-third of the Kentucky members of the G. A. R. are Negroes.

Miss Bradley is one of the most popular girls in Kentucky.

Dr. South is one of the leading physicians in Frankfort. He is the son of the late Barry South, who was a prominent politician, and brother of Mr. Jerry South, of Arkansas, at one time lieutenant governor of that state.

THE DAY LAW.

Its Constitutionality May Be Tested In the Courts.

Lexington, Ky., July 30.—Local republicans declare that they will test the provisions of the Day law, passed by the last general assembly, which prohibits co-racial education in this state, when the four Filipino students, which have been assigned to the Kentucky university by the government bureau of education, shall attempt to enter that institution. W. D. Oldham, in an interview Friday, declared that he would carry the matter to the courts should the Filipinos try to enter. He said: "The Filipinos are nothing but Negroes and far inferior, both physically and mentally, to our Negroes, and if these Oriental Negroes are brought here and an attempt made to enter them at the Kentucky university I shall go to the courts and test the constitutionality of the Day law. I am no abolition crank, but if our Negroes at home come under the ban of this law then the black savages from the Pacific Islands must be treated likewise."

This declaration has created considerable comment even in republican circles, and many interpret it as a dangerous utterance in that the Filipino question is an issue in the presidential campaign.

BASE BALL

The Grays and the Eurekas, of Erlanger, hooked up here again, last Saturday, and played an exciting game. The Eurekas made a nice appearance in their new uniform, white shirt and pants, red cap, red belt and red and white stockings. Eb Clore, the first man up for the Grays, hit for a clean home run. Capt. Jackson was the next man up and laced out a nice three bagger, which he tried to stretch into a home run, and was nailed at the plate, the ball being relayed in nicely. The Grays put but one run across the plate in the first inning, while the visitors succeed in chalking up two. In the second inning the Grays took the lead and kept it, getting one more home run after the first inning. There was considerable bad throwing on both sides, but in many instances the errors thus made were overcome by fast playing later in the inning. Bad throwing is a weakness with both clubs, and with that corrected they will put up a strong game. Each of these clubs has won two games from the other this season. Following is the score of last Saturday's game:

Home Runs—Clore, Kirkpatrick. Three Base Hits—Jackson, Clore, Gray. Struck Out—By Gray, 10; by Slater 3.

The Boones went over to Home City, last Saturday afternoon, and defeated the strong team there in a nice game. Being short one man in his line-up, manager Rouse held down sack No. 1, sending Slayback to short and Hughes to third, where they put up a sensational game. The battery work of Hogan and Houston was fine, Houston holding his opponents down to two clean hits, while he was at the bat four times and made four hits. A fly muffed in the field after two men were out in the ninth inning, gave Home City their only run. These clubs will play here in the afternoon one week from next Saturday. Following is the score of last Saturday's game:

Three-base hits—Hogan, H. Kirk. Two-base hits—Houston 2, Hogan, H, MacBriar. Bases on balls—McBriar 6; Houston 2. Struck out—McBriar 6, Houston 9. Hits—Home City 2; Boones 11.

A team, aboutone third of which was Hebron boys and the remainder from Cincinnati, Home City and way points, tackled the Boones here last Monday afternoon, and were defeated 7 to 3. Two of the Boones' best players, Hughes and Slayback, were not in the game, their places being supplied by Clore and Jackson of the Grays. Neppert was in the box for the visitors and was hit 10 times, while they got 5 off of Houston, who had the visitors faded from the start, and struck them out at will.

The Hebron and Ludlow teams will play at Hebron next Saturday afternoon.

Petersburg defeated Bellevue last Saturday 16 to 6.

A very large crowd witnessed the best game of the season here last Saturday afternoon. It was between the Anrora Rough Riders, and Belleyue's first team. The visitors lead until the fifth inning, and it was looking blue for the home team, when a lucky drive to right field scored two runs, which were soon followed by four more. A feature of the game was the heavy batting of the home team. Following is the score.
